Foreword

THE EUROPA YEAR BOOK was first published in 1926. Since 1960 it has appeared in annual two-volume editions, and has become established as an authoritative reference work, providing a wealth of detailed information on the political, economic and commercial institutions of the world.

Volume I deals with international organizations and the countries of Europe, as well as providing the first part of the alphabetical survey of the rest of the world. This third section, which lists countries from Afghanistan to Brazil, has been moved to Volume I for the 1978 edition so that the two volumes are of a uniform and manageable size. Volume II now lists the rest of the countries of the world from the British Dependent Territories to Zambia.

The information is revised annually by a variety of methods, including direct mailing to the institutions listed. Many other sources are used, such as national statistical offices, government departments and diplomatic missions. The editor thanks the innumerable individuals and organizations throughout the world whose generous co-operation in providing current information for this edition is invaluable in presenting the most accurate and up-to-date materials available, and acknowledges particular indebtedness for materials from the following publications: the United Nations' Demographic Yearbook, Statistical Yearbook and Yearbook of Industrial Statistics; the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations' Production Yearbook; and The Military Balance 1977-1978, published by the International Institute for Strategic Studies, 18 Adam Street, London, WC2N 6AL. Gross National Product figures are taken from the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development estimates.

January 1978.

INTERNATIONAL COMPARISONS

The following tables provide a general comparison of population and economic statistics for every independent state (excluding the Vatican City) and every other territory with more than 25,000 inhabitants (excluding the Gaza Strip). An attempt has been made to provide comparable information under each heading and the figures presented refer to the latest period for which uniform data are available in each category.

Area figures refer to total area, including inland water. Unless otherwise indicated, population figures are mid-year estimates. Most of the data refer to de facto population (persons actually present in the area); though some are estimates of de jure population (persons normally resident). Figures for life expectancy are estimates, prepared in the Population Division of the United Nations, of the average number of years of life remaining to a new-born child if subject to the mortality conditions (recorded or assumed) of the period 1970-75. It should be stressed that the figures refer to the average life expectancy at birth for both sexes. In many developing countries mortality rates are high during the first few years of life, but those who survive infancy have a life expectancy much greater than the average at birth. It is also noteworthy that in all developed countries the life expectancy of females is greater than that of males.

Gross National Product figures can be taken as indicators of the comparative sizes of the various national economies, and Gross National Product per capita figures provide an index of the comparative wealth and poverty of the countries. Owing to unequal distribution of wealth a G.N.P. per capita figure can by no means be taken as an average income. Sources are quoted at the end of the tables, but it must be stressed that the G.N.P. and G.N.P. per capita figures are approximations and may be used only as a general index. In particular, a wide margin of error may be expected in estimates for socialist economies, and in G.N.P. per capita figures under $100, where the subsistence sector is unusually important and the degree of precision tends to decrease as the ratio of subsistence production to total G.N.P. increases. Figures refer to G.N.P. in U.S. dollars at market prices (based on a weighted average for 1973-75), with totals rounded to the nearest ten of the unit employed. Data on G.N.P. per head are based on World Bank figures for population, some of which differ from the estimates shown elsewhere in the table.

PART I

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

THE UNITED NATIONS

First Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Founded in 1945 to maintain international peace and security and to develop international co-operation in economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems.

ORIGIN

The United Nations was a name devised by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was first used in the Declaration by United Nations of January 1st, 1942, when representatives of twenty-six nations pledged their governments to continue fighting together against the Axis powers.

The United Nations Charter was drawn up by the representatives of fifty countries at the United Nations Conference on International Organization, which met at San Francisco from April 25th to June 26th, 1945. The representatives deliberated on the basis of proposals worked out by representatives of China, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States at Dumbarton Oaks in August-October 1944. The Charter was signed on June 26th, 1945. Poland, not represented at the Conference, signed it later but nevertheless became one of the original fifty-one members.

The United Nations officially came into existence on October 24th, 1945, when the Charter had been ratified by China, France, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States, and by a majority of other signatories. October 24th is now universally celebrated as United Nations Day.

PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

The purposes of the United Nations are:

- To maintain international peace and security;
- To develop friendly relations among nations;
- To co-operate internationally in solving international economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems and in promoting respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms;
- To be a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in attaining these common ends.

The United Nations acts in accordance with these principles:

- It is based on the sovereign equality of all its members.
- All members are to fulfil in good faith their Charter obligations.
- They are to settle their international disputes by peaceful means and without endangering peace, security and justice.
- They are to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against other states.
- They are to give the United Nations every assistance in action it takes in accordance with the Charter, and not to assist states against which preventive or enforcement action is being taken.

The United Nations is to ensure that states which are not members act in accordance with these principles in so far as it is necessary to maintain international peace and security.

Nothing in the Charter is to authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are purely the national concern of any state.

The official languages of the United Nations are Arabic, Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish. Its working languages are Chinese, English and French. Spanish is also a working language of the General Assembly and of the Economic and Social Council.

Membership of the United Nations is open to all peace-loving nations which accept the obligations of the United Nations Charter and, in the judgment of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

The original members of the United Nations are those countries which signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1st, 1942, or took part in the San Francisco Conference, and which signed and ratified the Charter.

Other countries can be admitted by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. A two-thirds majority vote by the Assembly is required.

Members may be suspended or expelled by the General Assembly on recommendation of the Security Council. They may be suspended if the Security Council is taking enforcement action against them or expelled if they persistently violate the principles of the Charter. The Security Council can restore its rights to a suspended member.

THE MAIN ORGANS

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The General Assembly was established as a principal organ under the United Nations Charter; first met January 10th, 1946. It is the main deliberative organ of the United Nations.

MEMBERS

All members of the UN. Each delegation consists of not more than five representatives and five alternates with as many advisers, technical advisers and experts as may be required.

ORGANIZATION

President for 32nd Session (September–December 1977):
LAZAR MOJSOV (Yugoslavia).

Vice-Presidents: Chairmen of the delegations of the People's Republic of China, Cyprus, Denmark, Ecuador, France, Gabon, Guatemala, Indonesia, Lesotho, Madagascar, the Netherlands, Peru, Sierra Leone, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom, the U.S.A. and the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen.

The Assembly meets regularly for three months each year, but special sessions may also be held. It has the power to adopt recommendations only, not binding decisions. Important questions are decided by a two-thirds majority. Each nation has one vote and each vote is equal.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY COMMITTEES AND COMMISSIONS

MAIN COMMITTEES

There are seven Main Committees, on which all members have a right to be represented. The First to Sixth were appointed on January 11th, 1946. HIGHER EDUCATION

United Nations University Council.

SECURITY COUNCIL

Established as a principal organ under the United Nations Charter; first met January 17th, 1946. The task of the Security Council is to promote international peace and security in all parts of the world.

MEMBERS

Permanent members:

China France U.S.S.R. United Kingdom U.S.A

The remaining ten members are normally elected by the General Assembly for two-year periods:

Until December 1978: Canada, Federal Republic of Germany, India, Mauritius, Venezuela.

Until December 1979: Bolivia, Czechoslovakia, Gabon, Kuwait, Nigeria.

FUNCTIONS

The Security Council has the right to investigate any dispute or situation which might lead to friction between two or more countries, and such disputes or situations may be brought to the Council's attention either by one of its members, by any member state, by the General Assembly, by the Secretary-General or even, under certain conditions, by a state which is not a member of the United Nations.

The Council has the right to recommend ways and means of peaceful settlement and, in certain circumstances, the actual terms of settlement.

In the event of a threat to or breach of international peace or an act of aggression, the Council has powers to take "enforcement" measures in order to restore international peace and security. These include severance of communications and of economic and diplomatic relations and, if required, action by air, land and sea forces.

All members of the United Nations are pledged by the Charter to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with special agreements, the armed forces, assistance and facilities necessary to maintain international peace and security. These agreements, however, have not yet been concluded.

The Council is organized to be able to function continuously. The Presidency of the Council is held monthly in turn by the member states in English alphabetical order.

Each member of the Council has one vote. On procedural matters decisions are made by the affirmative vote of any nine members. For decisions on other matters the required nine affirmative votes must include the votes of the five permanent members. This is the rule of "great power unanimity" popularly known as the "veto" privilege.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

In practice, an abstention by one of the permanent members is not regarded as a veto. Any member, whether permanent or non-permanent, must abstain from voting in any decision concerning the pacific settlement of a dispute to which it is a party.

United Nations (Main Organs)

SUBSIDIARY BODY

Military Staff Committee: Consists of the Chiefs of Staff (or their representatives) of the five permanent members of the Security Council and assists the Council on all military questions.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL—ECOSOC

Promotes world co-operation on economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems.

MEMBERS

Fifty-four members are elected by the General Assembly for three-year terms: eighteen are elected each year. Current membership:

Until December 1977: Argentina, Bulgaria, Canada, China, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Ecuador, Ethiopia, Gabon, Japan, Kenya, Norway, Pakistan, Peru, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, Yemen Arab Republic, Zaire.

THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

The Trusteeship Council has supervised United Nations' Trust Territories through the administering authorities to promote the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the inhabitants towards self-government or independence.

MEMBERS

The Council consists of member states administering Trust Territories, permanent members of the Security Council which do not administer Trust Territories, and enough other non-administering countries elected by the Assembly for three-year terms to ensure that the membership is equally divided between administering and non-administering members.

Administering Country:	Other Countries:
United States	China, People's Republic
	France
	U.S.S.R.
	United Kingdom

Since 1968 there have been fewer administering members than non-administering members on the Council, and therefore the parity mentioned above could not be maintained.

ORGANIZATION

The Council meets once a year, generally in June. Each member has one vote, and decisions are made by a simple majority of the members present and voting. A new President is elected at the beginning of the Council's regular session each year.

The only territory remaining under United Nations trusteeship is the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands (Micronesia). This has been designated a strategic area, and the supervisory functions of the United Nations are, in its case, exercised by the Trusteeship Council under the authority of the Security Council.

The United States reported to the Trusteeship Council in June 1977 that work was in hand to bring the Trust Territory to full independence. One of the island groups, the Northern Marianas, had approved a Covenant to establish a Commonwealth in full political union with the United States; and this had been accepted by the Trusteeship Council.

The future status of the remaining island groups, the Marshall and Caroline Islands, had yet to be determined; the Administering Authority was working with the Micronesians for a resumption of formal negotiations to that end. The United States looked to termination of the Trusteeship Agreement by 1981.

INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

Peace Palace, The Hague 2517 KJ, Netherlands

Set up in 1945, the Court is the principal judicial organ of the UN. All members of the UN, Switzerland, Liechtenstein and San Marino are parties to the Statute of the Court.

Registrar: STANISLAS AQUARONE.

The court is composed of fifteen leading judges, each of a different nationality, elected with an absolute majority by both the General Assembly and the Security Council. Representation of the main forms of civilization and the different legal systems of the world are borne in mind in their election. Candidates are nominated by national panels of jurists.

The judges are elected for nine years and may be re-elected; elections for five seats are held every three years. The Court elects its President and Vice-President for each three-year period. Members may not have any political, administrative, or other professional occupation, and may not sit in any case with which they have been otherwise connected than as a judge of the Court. For the purposes of a case, each side—consisting of one or more States—may, unless the Bench already includes a judge with a corresponding nationality, choose a person from outside the Court to sit as a judge on terms of equality

FUNCTIONS

The International Court of Justice operates in accordance with a Statute which is an integral part of the UN Charter. Only States may be parties in cases before the Court; those not parties to the Statute may have access in certain circumstances and under conditions laid down by the Security Council.

The Jurisdiction of the Court comprises:

1. All cases which the parties refer to it jointly by special agreement (there have been five such).
2. All matters concerning which a treaty or convention in force provides for reference to the Court. About 700 bilateral or multilateral agreements make such provision. Among the more noteworthy: Treaty of Peace with Japan (1951), European Convention for Peaceful Settlement of Disputes (1957), Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs (1961), Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees (1967), Hague Convention on the Suppression of the Unlawful Seizure of Aircraft (1970).
3. Legal disputes between States which have recognized the jurisdiction of the Court as compulsory for specified classes of dispute. Declarations by the following 45 States accepting the compulsory jurisdiction of the Court are in force: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Botswana, Cambodia, Canada, Colombia, Costa Rica, Denmark, the Dominican Republic, Egypt, El Salvador, Finland, the Gambia, Haiti, Honduras, India, Israel, Japan, Kenya, Liberia, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malawi, Malta, Mauritius, Mexico, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Pakistan, Panama, the Philippines, Portugal, Somalia, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Switzerland, Uganda, the United Kingdom, the U.S.A., and Uruguay.

Disputes as to whether the Court has jurisdiction are settled by the Court.

Judgments are without appeal, but are binding only for the particular case and between the parties.

Compliance with Judgments. States appearing before the Court undertake to comply with its Judgment. If a party to a case fails to do so, the other party may apply to the Security Council, which may make recommendations or decide upon measures to give effect to the Judgment.

Advisory opinions on legal questions may be requested by the General Assembly, the Security Council or, if so authorized by the Assembly, other United Nations organs or specialized agencies.

CONSIDERED CASES

(to December 1977)

JUDGMENTS

Forty-six cases have been referred to the Court by States. Some were removed from the list as a result of settlement or discontinuance, or on the grounds of a lack of basis for jurisdiction. Cases which have been the subject of a Judgment by the Court include:

Corfu Channel (United Kingdom v. Albania), Fisheries (United Kingdom v. Norway), Asylum (Colombia/Peru), Haya de la Torre (Colombia v. Peru), Rights of Nationals of the United States of America in Morocco (France v. United States), Ambatielos (Greece v. United Kingdom), Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. (United Kingdom v. Iran), Minquiers and Ecrehos (France/United Kingdom), Nottebohm (Liechtenstein v. Guatemala), Monetary Gold Removed from Rome in 1943 (Italy v. France, United Kingdom and United States), Certain Norwegian Loans (France v. Norway), Right of Passage over Indian Territory (Portugal v. India), Application of the Convention of 1902 Governing the Guardianship of Infants (Netherlands v. Sweden), Interhandel (Switzerland v. United States), Sovereignty over Certain Frontier Land (Belgium/Netherlands), Arbitral Award made by the King of Spain on 23 December 1906 (Honduras v. Nicaragua), Temple of Preah Vihear (Cambodia v. Thailand), South West Africa (Ethiopia and Liberia v. South Africa), Northern Cameroons (Cameroon

v. United Kingdom), Barcelona Traction, Light and Power Co., Ltd. (New Application: 1962) (Belgium v. Spain), North Sea Continental Shelf (Federal Republic of Germany/Denmark and Netherlands), Appeal relating to the Jurisdiction of the ICAC Council (India v. Pakistan); Fisheries Jurisdiction (United Kingdom v. Iceland; Federal Republic of Germany v. Iceland); Nuclear Tests (Australia v. France; New Zealand v. France). In 1976 Greece instituted proceedings against Turkey in a dispute over the Aegean Continental Shelf. In July 1977 Greece filed a Memorial on the question of jurisdiction, which is to be decided before the merits are considered.

ADVISORY OPINIONS

Advisory Opinions on the following matters have been given by the Court at the request of the United Nations General Assembly:

Condition of Admission of a State to Membership in the United Nations; Competence of the General Assembly for the Admission of a State to the United Nations; Reparation for Injuries Suffered in the Service of the United Nations; Interpretation of the Peace Treaties with Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania; International Status of South West Africa; Voting Procedure on Questions relating to Reports and Petitions concerning the Territory of South West Africa;

REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS

ECONOMIC COMMISSION FOR EUROPE—ECE

Palais des Nations, 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

ECE was established in 1947. Representatives of all European countries and of the United States and Canada study the economic and technological problems of the region and recommend courses of action.

MEMBERS

Albania	Federal Republic of	Portugal
Austria	Germany	Romania
Belgium	Greece	Spain
Bulgaria	Hungary	Sweden
Byelorussian S.S.R.	Iceland	Switzerland
Canada	Ireland	Turkey
Cyprus	Italy	Ukrainian S.S.R.
Czechoslovakia	Luxembourg	U.S.S.R.
Denmark	Malta	United Kingdom
Finland	Netherlands	U.S.A.
France	Norway	Yugoslavia
German Democratic Republic	Poland

ORGANIZATION

(as of September 1977)

COMMISSION

ECE is one of the five regional economic commissions set up by the UN Economic and Social Council. The Commission holds an annual plenary session and brief meetings of subsidiary bodies are convened throughout the year. Specialists seek agreements for later government approval, collect statistics and exchange technical information, both at meetings and through distribution of reports and special papers.

SECRETARIAT

Executive Secretary: JANEZ STANOVNIK (Yugoslavia).

The Secretariat services the meetings of the Commission and its subsidiary bodies and publishes periodic surveys and reviews, including a number of specialized statistical bulletins on coal, timber, steel, chemicals, housing and building, electric power, gas, general energy and transport.

COMMITTEES

Committee on Agricultural Problems. Keeps under review the market conditions, follows developments under the protocol on the Standardization of Fruit and Vegetables, examines problems arising from mechanization and rationalization of agriculture, and drafts standard clauses for the international sale of certain agricultural products (cereals and citrus fruits). Chair. J. HAMMER (Hungary).

Timber Committee. Regularly reviews the market in sawn softwood, small-sized roundwood and hardwood, studies forest working techniques, compiles statistics, watches trends in the use of wood and its products and of wood waste, and drafts standard clauses for the international sale of certain categories of timber. Chair. F. PALMER (U.K.).

Coal Committee. Concentrates on problems of production and trade, makes recommendations on the use of solid fuel. With agreements reached on the international classification of brown coals and lignites, ECE has completed the classification by type of all existing coals. Drafts general conditions of sale for solid fuels. Chair. R. SCHEID (Federal Republic of Germany).

Committee on Electric Power. Analyses electric power situation and its prospects, studies planning and operation of large power systems, as well as particular aspects of hydro-electric, thermal and nuclear generation, international interconnections, rural electrification, financing of projects, legal questions, and the relation between electricity and the environment. Chair. G. COLAMARINO (Italy).

Committee on Gas. Deals with the economic and technical aspects of the production, transport and utilization of gas, natural and manufactured as well as liquefied petroleum gases, and forecasts demand. Chair. G. ROBERT (France).

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Committee on Housing, Building and Planning. Reviews trends and progress, with special reference to industrialization of construction, building costs and standardization. Studies land use and prices, urban renewal and physical planning. Housing problems of less industrialized countries receive special consideration. Chair. B. P. SAPUNOV (U.S.S.R.).

Inland Transport Committee. Covers road, rail and inland water transport, customs, contracts, transport of dangerous and perishable goods, equipment, statistics, tariffs, river law, road transport régime and road traffic accidents, construction of vehicles and passenger transport services by road. A number of international agreements are in force following their adoption through ECE. Chair. B. KOZIN (U.S.S.R.).

Steel Committee. Annually reviews trends in the European and world markets, changes in price policy, growth of capacity supply factors and future prospects. Also studies long-term economic and technological problems. Chair. S. SOBczyk (Poland).

Committee on the Development of Trade. Examines intra-European trade, especially east/west trade. Organizes facilities in arbitration, trade fairs and technical shows, standardization of general conditions of sale of goods, insurance, simplification and standardization of export documents, payments arrangements, including multilateral compensation procedures, and consultations. Chair. Z. KRZYSZTOFOWICZ (Poland).

Conference of European Statisticians. Promotes improvement of national statistics and their international comparability in economic, social and demographic fields; facilitates exchange of information between European countries. Chair D. LATIFIC (Yugoslavia).

Senior Economic Advisers to ECE Governments. Brings together high-calibre governmental experts for an exchange of views and experience on selected problems of governmental economic policy. Also, organizes—under its auspices—groups of experts, joint research projects and seminars on methodological problems relating to medium- and long-term planning and projections. Chair. O. THUR (Canada).

Committee on Water Problems. Reviews major trends and policies with regard to water resources use and developments. Studies problems relating to the methodology of surveying water resources and needs including the establishment of relevant balances and statistics. Also studies selected problems of water pollution control and of governmental policy related to the formulation and administration of water management plans. Chair. I. KREMPFELS (Hungary).

Chemical Industry Committee. Regularly reviews the market of chemical products and their raw materials in Europe, U.S.A. and Japan. Compiles annual statistics on production of and trade in chemical products. Carries out studies on special problems arising in connection with the development of the chemical industry. Chair. A. CRYSTAL (U.K.).

Senior Advisers to ECE Governments on Science and Technology. Keeps under review developments in the sphere of science and technology in the ECE region and makes proposals to promote international co-operation. Priority activities are: review and analysis of problems of scientific and technological policy; technological forecasting; transfer of technology; dissemination of scientific and technological information; co-operative research; co-operation with other subsidiary bodies of the Commission and other international organizations. Chair. K. V. ANANICHEV (U.S.S.R.).

Senior Advisers to ECE Governments on Environmental Problems. Exchanges experience and information on environmental problems of common concern; surveys and assesses the state of the environment in the ECE countries; considers national policies, institutions, and legislation and the international implications of environmental policies, with emphasis on socio-economic questions. Chair. E. LYKKE (Norway).

BUDGET

ECE's budget for the biennium 1976-77 was U.S. $13,477,000.

PUBLICATIONS

Economic Survey of Europe (annual); Economic Bulletin for Europe; frequent statistical and technical studies and bulletins.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COMMISSION FOR ASIA AND THE PACIFIC—ESCAP

Sala Santitham, Bangkok, Thailand

Telephone: 813544.

Founded in 1947 to encourage the economic and social development of Asia and the Far East. The title ESCAP, which replaced ECAFE, was adopted after a re-organization in 1974.

Solomon Islands	Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands	Tuvalu

ORGANIZATION

(as of June 1977)

The work of the Commission is conducted through its annual sessions and, under the direction which it gives in its new conference structure, through the meetings of its main committees, ad hoc conferences and ad hoc working groups of government officials or experts. Other activity includes field missions, training courses and seminars. Technical assistance is provided for governments, while the secretariat continually provides its services at headquarters in Bangkok.

The nine main legislative committees are:

- Agricultural development;
- Development planning;
- Industry, housing and technology;

- Natural resources;
- Population;
- Social development;
- Statistics;
- Trade;
- Transport and communications.

A Staff Service on Shipping and Ports was maintained at the Secretariat; during 1976 its work was taken over by a new wing of the Committee on Transport and Communications.

Executive Secretary: J. B. P. MARAMIS (Indonesia).

Deputy Executive Secretary: PRINCY H. SIRIWARDENE (Sri Lanka).

FUNCTIONS

ESCAP's three fields of activity are as follows: promoting regional co-operation on social and economic problems, with increasing attention to sub-regional approaches as well as assistance to individual governments in planning and carrying out balanced development programmes. The emphasis is on activities which aim to increase food production, reduce mass poverty, and reduce population pressures and unemployment in Asia; and together with a new emphasis on agricultural problems, more attention is being paid to the application of science and technology to development.

Another new priority is the direct involvement of society at all levels, and of women especially, in the process of development.

Although ESCAP does not itself distribute capital aid, it has helped to set up and attract funds for regional and sub-regional projects that, in turn, provide development assistance. It is also increasingly becoming the executing agency for regional projects.

ANNUAL SESSIONS

At its yearly sessions the Commission examines the region's problems, reviews progress, sets new goals and priorities and may launch new projects.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

33rd Session, Bangkok, April 1977: priorities for the continued work of the organization were as follows:

1. integrated rural development;
2. intensified efforts in economic and technical co-operation among developing countries;
3. preparation for establishment of a regional centre for developing production of coarse grains, pulses, root and tuber crops;
4. increased co-operation in trade between member countries;
5. the expressed desire of island countries in the Pacific to play a more active role in the work of ESCAP;
6. greater integration of the work programmes of the four research and training institutions under the supervision of ESCAP (see below);
7. a governing council of 10 representatives of member countries was elected to provide policy guidance for these four institutions;
8. free access to and from the sea for land-locked countries;
9. the shipping wing of the former shipping and ports service of ESCAP is to be made the sole competent forum for shipping within ESCAP.

BUDGET

For 1976/77, ESCAP's regular budget, an appropriation from the UN Budget, was U.S. $14,855,800. The regular budget is supplemented each year by funds from various technical assistance sources which can amount to several million dollars in a year.

Regional advisers and supporting personnel are paid from technical assistance funds. In addition, a UN Development Advisory Team (UNDAT) whose work is co-ordinated by UN Headquarters, in close consultation with ESCAP, is stationed in Fiji to serve the South Pacific area.

REGIONAL PROJECTS

Set up by ESCAP or with its aid.

ECONOMICS AND FINANCE

Asian Clearing Union (ACU): c/o Bank Markazi, Teheran, Iran; f. 1974 to provide clearing arrangements to save foreign exchange and promote the use of domestic currencies in trade transactions among developing countries; part of ESCAP's Asian trade expansion programme; the Bank Markazi, Teheran, is the Union's agent; mems.: Bangladesh, Burma, India, Iran, Nepal, Pakistan, Sri Lanka; Chair: H. E. TENNEKON, Governor, Central Bank of Sri Lanka.

Asian Development Bank: see page 120.

Asian Reinsurance Corporation: intended to provide backing for local insurance companies who, during 1976, paid an estimated U.S. $200 million in reinsurance premiums to foreign countries; the corporation would thus be of great value in conserving foreign exchange; the agreement for its establishment was drawn up in December 1976 and was open for signature until September 1977; by May 1977 India and Iran had signed. It is to become effective when ratified by eight countries.

United Nations (Regional Economic Commissions)

NATURAL RESOURCES

Committee for Co-ordination of Joint Prospecting for Mineral Resources in Asian Offshore Areas (CCOP/East Asia): The White Inn, No. 41, Sukhumvit Soi 4, Bangkok, Thailand; f. 1966 to reduce the cost of advanced mineral surveying and prospecting to member nations by a co-ordinated regional approach involving the pooling of expertise and resources such as ships, aircraft and expensive scientific equipment; works in partnership with developed nations which have provided geologists and geophysicists as technical advisers; has received aid from UNDP and other sources since 1972; mems.: Cambodia, Indonesia, Japan, the Republic of Korea, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand; Project Manager/Co-ordinator Dr. C. Y. Li.

Committee for Co-ordination of Joint Prospecting for Mineral Resources in the South Pacific Area (CCOP/SOPAC): c/o Mineral Resources Division, Private Mailbag, G.P.O., Suva, Fiji; has received support from UNDP since 1974; mems.: Cook Islands, Fiji, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, Solomon Islands, Tonga and Western Samoa; Head of Office Dr. L. W. KROENKE, UNDP Marine Geologist.

Regional Mineral Resources Development Centre: temporary address: c/o ESCAP, Sala Santitham, Bangkok, Thailand; f. 1974 to achieve rapid discovery and use of the region's deposits of minerals, and to make use of research capacity; the centre was expected to move to the Mining and Metallurgical Research Centre, Directorate of Mines, Bandung, Indonesia.

South-East Asia Tin Research and Development Centre: Ipoh, Malaysia; established in April 1977 by Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand, who currently produce about two-thirds of the world's output of tin. Part of the work of the centre will be research into hard-rock mining techniques, which are likely to be of interest increasingly as the alluvial deposits become exhausted. Staff for the centre were being recruited during 1977. The UNDP provided U.S. $150,000 for the first year; the participating countries agreed to provide about U.S. $9 million in cash and kind for the first three years.

RESEARCH AND TRAINING

Asian and Pacific Development Administration Centre: 3, Jalan Spooner, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia; f. 1973 to assist countries of the region to speed their advancement from the planning stage to implementation of projects by means of development management training, problem-solving, research and consultancy services; Dir. S. MAHADEVA.

Asian and Pacific Development Institute: P.O.B. 2-136, Sri Ayudhya Rd., Bangkok, Thailand; f. 1964 as a regional staff college to raise the technical competence of development planners and administrators through training, research and advisory services; Dir. Dr. VINYU VICHIT-VADAKAN.

Social Welfare and Development Centre for Asia and the Pacific: c/o UNDP, P.O.B. 1864, Manila, Philippines; operations started in July 1976; to assist member governments in formulating and carrying out new welfare and development strategies designed for the particular needs of Asia and the Pacific so as to encourage self-reliance and help eliminate social injustice and poverty; Dir. AHMAD FATAHIPOUR (Iran).

Statistical Institute for Asia and the Pacific: Economic Co-operation Centre Bldg. Annexe, 42 Honmuracho, Ichigaya, Shinjuku, Tokyo, Japan; f. 1970; trains professional statisticians; prepares teaching materials, provides facilities for special studies and research of a statistical nature, assists in the development of statistical education and training at all levels in national and sub-regional centres; Dir. A. G. MILLER (Australia).

TECHNOLOGY

Regional Centre for Agricultural Machinery: Los Baños, Philippines; it was expected that the centre would be operating in late 1977; will be used to supplement and co-ordinate the efforts of national institutes to design, develop and manufacture simple farm machinery to meet the needs of small farmers.

Regional Centre for the Transfer of Technology: Bangalore, India; to function as a clearing house of information on technology and machinery suitable for the countries of the ESCAP region; the largest of several donations, from the UNDP, was U.S. $100,000 for 1977; it was hoped that the centre would begin activities as soon as possible.

TRADE

Asian Coconut Community: P.O.B. 343, Jakarta, Indonesia; f. 1969 to promote, co-ordinate, and harmonize all activities of the coconut industry towards better production, processing, marketing and research; mems.: India, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Sri Lanka and Thailand; Dir. GODFREDO P. REYES, Jr.

Asian Free Trade Zone: f. 1975; provides for the reduction and eventual elimination of tariff and non-tariff barriers in trade; co-operation in commodities, industrial and other goods; and preferences for the least developed countries; offers tariff cuts of an average of 36 per cent, on 146 products; mems.: Bangladesh, India, Republic of Korea, Laos and Sri Lanka; the agreement on which it is based is known as the Bangkok Agreement.

Pepper Community: c/o ESCAP, Sala Santitham, Bangkok, Thailand; f. 1972 for joint action among world producing countries on the standards, supplies, marketing and promotion of pepper; the three members supply 80 per cent of world exports in pepper; latest session: India, early 1977; mems.: India, Indonesia and Malaysia; Dir. LAKSHMI NARAIN SAKLANI (India).

TRANSPORT AND COMMUNICATIONS

Asia-Pacific Telecommunity: intended to create telecommunications networks linking the countries of the region, and to serve as a forum for technical questions. The constitution was opened for signature in April 1976 and by April 1977 13 countries had signed; it will come into force after a minimum of 7 countries, including Thailand, have ratified or accepted it.

Asian Highway Network Project: Asian Highway Transport Technical Bureau, ESCAP Secretariat, Sala Santitham, Bangkok, Thailand; f. 1959 to form a network of over 60,000 kilometres in 15 Asian countries; more than four-fifths of the network is open to motor vehicles in all weather; Officer-in-Charge S. MASOOD HUSAIN.

MISCELLANEOUS

Asia and Pacific Centre for Women and Development: Teheran, Iran; established in February 1977 to help governments in promoting greater involvement of women in the process of development. The largest donation, from Iran, was about U.S. $2 million. Mems.: India, Indonesia, Republic of Korea, Nepal, Netherlands, Pakistan, the Philippines and the U.S.A.

Committee for Co-ordination of Investigations of the Lower Mekong Basin (Mekong Committee): see page 247.

Typhoon Committee: Secretariat, Water Bureau, Quezon City Development Bank, Quezon City, Philippines; f. 1968, an intergovernmental committee to mitigate typhoon damage through improved hydrological and meteorological observation, and telecommunication facilities. It also aims at establishing pilot flood forecasting and warning systems in river basins prone to flooding; and to initiate and promote complementary preventive and protective measures. Mems.: Cambodia, Hong Kong, Japan, Republic of Korea, Laos, the Philippines and Thailand; Chief of Typhoon Committee Secretariat Dr. S. N. SEN.

ORGANIZATION

(as of October 1976)

The Commission normally meets every two years in one of the Latin American capitals. The Commission has established permanent bodies with various sub-committees:

Central American Economic Co-operation Committee:

Central American Trade Sub-Committee.

Central American Sub-Committee on Statistical Co-ordination.

Central American Sub-Committee on Transport.

Central American Sub-Committee on Housing, Building and Planning.

Central American Sub-Committee on Electric Power.

Central American Commission for Industrial Initiatives.

Central American Sub-Committee on Agricultural Development.

Trade Committee.Caribbean Development and Co-operation Committee.

Secretariat: Santiago de Chile; branch offices at Mexico City, Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo, Washington, D.C., Port-of-Spain, Buenos Aires and Bogotá. The Secretariat is organized into divisions of economic development and research, trade policy, industrial development, social development, agriculture (jointly with FAO), statistics, natural resources and environment, transport and economic projections.

Executive Secretary: ENRIQUE V. IGLESIAS (Uruguay).LATIN AMERICAN INSTITUTE FOR ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL PLANNING

Santiago, Chile

The Institute was founded by ECLA in June 1962, with financial assistance from the United Nations Special Fund, the Inter-American Development Bank and sixteen Latin American governments, and with the co-operation of OAS, ILO, UNICEF and other international bodies. It operates under the aegis of ECLA to provide training and advisory services on request to member countries and to undertake research in planning techniques.

Acting Director-General: ENRIQUE V. IGLESIAS (Uruguay)LATIN AMERICAN DEMOGRAPHIC CENTRE

In accordance with a resolution adopted by ECLA in 1975, the Centre became an integral part of the Commission. It works in co-operation with a number of international organizations and is financed by the UNDP and the UNFPA. Its tasks are to undertake research and to provide training facilities in the region.

Acting Director: JUAN CARLOS ELIZAGA.ACTIVITIES

ECLA's present role is set within the framework of the programme for the Second United Nations Development Decade and its activities are directed to providing support to the regional and sub-regional integration movement which is an established feature of Latin American economic development. ECLA's programme, set by the member governments at the 16th session of the Commission (Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, 1974) focuses on: development policy with the Secretariat undertaking a theoretical analysis of economic problems and formulating policy proposals for economic development; foreign trade and external financing, particularly in view of the region's inadequate share in the growth of world trade and the low level and unfavourable terms of capital inflows; integration, including continental and sub-regional groupings; employment; population in relation to economic and social factors; the export of manufactures, particularly in relation to regional development policies; policies for reducing regional imbalances within ECLA countries in order to achieve integrated and speedier development; and science and technology, mainly with regard to the transfer of expertise, the assimilation of techniques and the development of Latin America. Finally, there is the Economic Survey of Latin America, an annual stocktaking of the progress and problems in all sectors of the Latin American economy and of the economic evolution of selected countries.

COMMISSION

The fourth session of the Commission was held in April 1977 in Amman, Jordan. Fifth session: Beirut, Lebanon, 1978.

The Commission approved its programme of work and priorities for 1978/79 and decided to provide further assistance for the reconstruction and development of Lebanon.

Chairman (Fourth Session): NAJMADDIN DAJANI (Jordan).

SECRETARIAT

In September 1974 it was decided at a special session of ECWA that the headquarters should be at Beirut until 1979. During the hostilities in Lebanon in 1976 the Commission took up temporary offices in Amman, Jordan, moving back to Beirut in 1977. It is expected to move to permanent headquarters in Baghdad, Iraq, in September 1979.

Executive Secretary: MOHAMMED SAID AL-ATTAR (Yemen Arab Republic).

WORK PROGRAMMES 1976-77

ECWA's work programme for 1975 concentrated on priority areas such as water resources, the food deficit, the petrochemical and fertilizer industry, manpower, tourism, public finance and administration, natural resources, population, transport, telecommunications and electricity.

The medium-term plan for 1976-79, and in particular the biennial programme of work for 1976-77, which were approved at the second session of the Commission, essentially follow the same areas of priority. However, growing concern for an integrated development approach and the need to achieve greater regional co-operation have prompted ECWA to give due emphasis in the work programme to other important areas such as development planning policies, trade within the region as well as other regions, human settlements, science and technology and various social aspects of development efforts.

BUDGET

Budget approved by the General Assembly for the two-year period 1976-77: U.S. $18,243,000.

SPECIALIZED AGENCIES

FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION—FAO

Viale delle Terme di Caracalla, 00100 Rome, Italy

Telephone: 5797.

FAO, the first specialized agency of the UN to be founded after World War II, was established in Quebec in October 1945. The Organization fights malnutrition and hunger and serves as a co-ordinating agency for development programmes in the whole range of food and agriculture, including forestry and fisheries. It helps developing countries to promote educational and training facilities and institution-building.

MEMBERS

136 members: see Table on pages 25–27.

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE

The governing body is the FAO Conference of member nations. It meets every two years, formulates policy, determines the Organization's programme and budget on a biennial basis, and elects new members. It also elects the Director-General of the Secretariat and the Independent Chairman of the Council.

COUNCIL

The FAO Council is composed of representatives of 42 member nations, elected by the Conference for staggered three-year terms. It is the interim governing body of FAO between sessions of the Conference. The most important standing Committees of the Council are: the Finance and Programme Committees, the Committee on Commodity Problems, the Committee on Fisheries, the Committee on Agriculture and the Committee on Forestry.

SECRETARIAT

Director-General (1976–81): ÉDOUARD SAOUMA (Lebanon).
Deputy Director-General: ROY I. JACKSON (U.S.A.).

The Director-General appoints and directs a staff which at the end of 1975 numbered about 3,600 professionally qualified men and women with supporting general service staff. More than 2,500 of the professional staff work in regional offices and in field projects.

ACTIVITIES

The FAO Conference. The 18th session was held in November 1975. It was generally agreed that the key to long-term solution of the world food problem lies in greatly increased production in the developing countries. The International Fund for Agricultural Development had the potential to alleviate some financial problems; however, lasting improvement in the world food situation also depended on political and social change.

The need for fertilizers, and the poorer countries' lack of foreign exchange with which to buy them, constituted another major problem.

The session reviewed the status of the International Undertaking on World Food Security, an FAO initiative aimed at achieving a co-ordinated system of national food stock policies which would guarantee at least a safe minimum supply of basic foods. The Undertaking could open the way for an effective world food security policy under the World Food Council. In April of the following year the FAO set up a committee on world food security whose chief function is to evaluate the adequacy of current and prospective stocks.

Proposals were made to remedy the predicted shortage of pulp and paper in the 1980s and a current shortage of fuel wood in the developing countries. Although 55 per cent of the world's forests are in developing countries, these account for only 6.2 per cent of pulp and paper production capacity and these countries import virtually all their supplies of such products.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Industrialized countries were urged to assist the developing countries in setting up their own industries for the local manufacture of wood products. FAO urged the adoption of rational use of land to prevent stable forest land from turning into poor or degraded crop land.

The 19th session was scheduled for November 1977.

Field programmes. Nearly four-fifths of the funds received by FAO are spent on field activities. The largest single source of funds is the UNDP.

During 1976 the FAO increased its activities in the Sahel region of Africa. The FAO Sahel Unit, which organizes seminars, information support and technical consultation, took on some co-ordinating responsibilities for the Sahel Inter-State Committee for Drought Control (CILSS, see page 308). There was also an increase in activity under the FAO/Near East Co-operative Programme.

The FAO Government Co-operative Programme, whereby donor countries channel part of their development aid through FAO, continued to expand.

The Associate Experts Scheme finances the assignment to FAO of qualified young specialists from developed and developing countries, mainly for project work.

FAO's external group training activities include seminars, training courses and workshops.

FAO services to agro-industrial development. The development of industries based on agriculture, especially in heavily-populated areas, is necessary to provide new jobs, reduce imports and stem the exodus of population from the countryside. FAO has sponsored integrated projects for production of raw materials and the establishment of small-scale, labour-intensive processing industries. A World Agricultural Credit Conference was held at FAO headquarters to encourage lending to small farmers by all types of financial institutions.

During 1976 FAO operated 137 fishery projects employing over 200 experts. The FAO Committee on Fisheries warned that pressure on stocks is increasing and urged more rational harvesting.

FAO operates an international scheme for the co-ordination of dairy development and an international meat development scheme, designed to improve both livestock and pastures.

It also runs 27 field projects for soil fertility, management, conservation and reclamation in developing countries. FAO is the executing agency for a six-year applied research project on land and water development in 20 countries in the Near East region. There is also a fertilizer programme.

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

Natural resources and the environment. FAO and the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) are jointly assisting governments to prevent desert encroachment and to develop production of food and other commodities on a large area of range lands across Africa, the Arabian peninsula and the highlands of Iran and Afghanistan. The International Board for Plant Genetic Resources, which started operations in 1975, aims to preserve primitive crop varieties needed in plant breeding.

Investment. FAO's Investment Centre helps member governments to draw up projects for multilateral, regional and national financing institutions. The FAO Bankers Programme provides advice and investment studies to national development banks.

Industry Co-operative Programme (ICP). The Programme aims to apply the experience and skills of the industries of the developed countries to the development of economic potentials in the Third World. It has a membership of over 100 industrial enterprises.

In 1976 the FAO/ICP Pesticides Working Group sponsored its first national training course, on the use of pesticides in agriculture. This took place in Pakistan, and concentrated on extension services for small farmers.

Freedom from Hunger/Action for Development. The FFH/AD programme aims to improve public awareness of development issues through local groups which encourage personal involvement. It provides facilities for study, research, discussion and action. Some one hundred FFH/AD National Committees concern themselves with the quality of aid and its effect on rural population, the need for institutional changes, innovations in education. Millions of dollars have been raised in both the Third World and in the industrialized countries to support self-help projects.

GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TARIFFS AND TRADE—GATT

Centre William Rappard, 154 rue de Lausanne, 1211 Geneva 21, Switzerland

Telephone: 31 02 31.

Established in 1948 to achieve a substantial reduction of tariffs and other barriers to trade.

CONTRACTING PARTIES TO THE GATT

83 states: see Table on pages 25–27.

ORGANIZATION

(as of September 1977)

SESSIONSChairman (1976–77): GEORGE ALVARES MACIEL (Brazil).

The sessions of Contracting Parties are usually held annually, in Geneva.

The Session is the highest body of GATT. Decisions are generally arrived at by consensus, not by vote. On the rare occasions that voting takes place, each contracting party (member country) has one vote. Most decisions by vote are taken by simple majority; but a two-thirds majority, with the majority comprising more than half the member countries, is needed for "waivers", authorizations, in particular cases, to depart from specific obligations under the General Agreement. (When the members thus act collectively, they are referred to in GATT documents as Contracting Parties). Outside the Sessions, votes may be taken by postal ballot.

COUNCIL OF REPRESENTATIVES

Meets as necessary (generally about eight times a year) to deal with urgent and routine matters arising between sessions and to supervise the work of committees and working groups.

SECRETARIATDirector-General: OLIVIER LONG (Switzerland).

The secretariat, numbering about 200 persons, consists of experts in trade policy and intelligence and an administrative staff. It prepares and runs the Sessions and services the work of the Council and the committees and working groups. It is also responsible for organizing the trade negotiations.

COMMITTEES AND WORKING PARTIES

A Trade Negotiations Committee was set up in September 1973 to direct the current "Tokyo Round" trade negotiations; it has established a number of subsidiary bodies.

Standing committees exist to direct GATT work on industrial products; on agriculture; on trade and development issues; to carry on trade negotiations among developing countries; to examine the situation of countries using trade restrictions to protect their balance of payments; and to study import restrictions. There are further standing committees on textiles and on anti-dumping practices as well as a committee to deal with budget, financial and administrative questions.

A consultative group of eighteen, consisting of high-level representatives with responsibility for trade policy in their countries, was established in 1975.

Working parties (ad hoc committees) are set up to deal with current questions, such as requests for accession to GATT; verification that agreements concluded by member countries are in conformity with GATT; or studies of issues on which the member countries will later wish to take a joint decision. Panels of Conciliation are sometimes set up to investigate disputes.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE CENTRE UNCTAD/GATT

63 rue de Lausanne, 1202 Geneva, Switzerland

Director: V. E. SANTIAPILLAI.

Established by GATT in May 1964, the Centre has been jointly operated since January 1968 by GATT and UNCTAD.

It assists developing countries to formulate and implement trade promotion programmes; provides information and advice on export markets and marketing techniques, helps to develop export promotion and marketing institutions and services, and trains national personnel.

AIMS

GATT is a multilateral treaty which lays down agreed rules for the conduct and furtherance of world trade and is accepted by countries responsible for over four-fifths of that trade. GATT provides a forum in which governments can negotiate for the further liberalization of world trade and in which differences on trade matters among the members can be settled. It is designed to achieve the objectives set out in the preamble to the Agreement where the Contracting Parties recognize that "their relations in the field of trade and economic endeavour should be conducted with a view to raising standards of living, ensuring full employment and a large and steadily growing volume of real income and effective demand, developing the full use of the resources of the world and expanding the production and exchange of goods, and promoting the progressive development of the economies of all the Contracting Parties."

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

THE AGREEMENT

GATT is based on a comparatively few fundamental principles. First, as directed in the famous "most-favoured-nation" clause, trade must be conducted on the basis of non-discrimination: all Contracting Parties are bound to grant to each other treatment as favourable as they give to any country in the application and administration of import and export duties and charges. Exceptions—principally for customs unions and free trade areas and for measures in favour of developing countries—are granted only subject to strict rules.

Second, protection should be given to domestic industry only through the customs tariff. The aim of this rule is to make the extent of protection clear and to make competition possible.

Third, a stable and predictable basis for trade is provided by the binding of the tariff levels negotiated among the Contracting Parties. These bound items are listed for each country in tariff schedules which form an integral part of the General Agreement. A return to higher tariffs is discouraged by the requirement that any increases are compensated for; consequently this provision is invoked rarely.

Consultation, to avoid damage to the trading interests of Contracting Parties, is another fundamental principle of GATT. Members are able to call on GATT for a fair settlement of cases in which they think their rights under the General Agreement are being withheld or compromised by other members.

There are "waiver" procedures whereby a country may, when its economic or trade circumstances so warrant, seek a derogation from a particular GATT obligation or obligations. There are also escape provisions for emergency action in certain defined circumstances.

Finally, GATT offers a framework within which negotiations are held for the reduction of tariffs and other barriers to trade and a structure for putting the results of such negotiations into a legal instrument.

ACTIVITIES

(to September 1977)

Much of GATT's regular work consists of consultations and negotiations on specific trade problems affecting individual commodities or member countries.

From time to time, major multilateral trade negotiations also take place under GATT auspices. Six such negotiations, directed mainly to tariff reduction, in 1947 (in Geneva), in 1949 (Annecy, France), 1951 (Torquay, England), 1956 (Geneva), 1960-61 (Geneva, the "Dillon Round") and 1964-67 (Geneva, the "Kennedy Round"), resulted in tariff rates on a high proportion of items entering into world commerce being reduced, or bound against increase. The Kennedy Round alone reduced the average level of world industrial tariffs by about one-third.

New multilateral trade negotiations of unprecedentedly wide scope were launched by ministers of 102 countries at a meeting in Tokyo in September 1973. It was agreed that these "Tokyo Round" negotiations should cover tariffs, non-tariff barriers and other measures which impede or distort international trade in both industrial and agricultural products, and should include, in particular, products of export interest to developing countries and measures affecting their exports. It was agreed that developing countries should participate on special terms, and that the negotiations should aim to secure additional benefits for their international trade.

Nearly 100 countries, including 27 developing countries not members of GATT, were participating in the negotiations during 1977.

The trade problems of developing countries receive special attention in GATT. In 1965 a new chapter on Trade and Development was added to the General Agreement; a key provision is that developing countries should not be expected to offer reciprocity in negotiations with developed countries. GATT members have also relaxed the most-favoured-nation rule to accommodate the Generalized Scheme of Preferences by developed for developing countries and to allow an exchange of preferential tariff reductions among developing countries.

Much of world trade in textiles and clothing is regulated by an Arrangement Regarding International Trade in Textiles that entered into force in January 1974 under GATT auspices. Negotiations were in progress during 1977 to decide whether the arrangement, which was due to expire at the end of 1977, should be extended, modified or discontinued.

BUDGET

Payments are based on each member's share of the total trade between members. The budget for 1977 totalled 36,633,000 Swiss francs.

INTER-GOVERNMENTAL MARITIME CONSULTATIVE ORGANIZATION—IMCO

101-104 Piccadilly, London, W1V 0AE, England.

Telephone: 01-499-9040.

IMCO began operations after an agreement of 1958, as a specialized agency of the UN to facilitate co-operation among governments on technical matters affecting international shipping. Its main functions are the achievement of safe and efficient navigation, and the control of pollution caused by ships and craft operating in the marine environment.

MEMBERS

103 members and one associate member: see Table on pages 25-27.

ORGANIZATION

THE ASSEMBLY

President (1976/77): Dr. PATRICK V. J. SOLOMON (Trinidad and Tobago).

The Assembly consists of delegates from all member countries, who each have one vote. Associate members and observers from other governments and the international agencies are also present. Regular sessions are held every two years. The Assembly is responsible for the election of members to the Council and to the Maritime Safety Committee. It considers reports from all subsidiary bodies and decides the action to be taken on them; it votes the agency's budget and determines the work programme and financial policy.

The Assembly also recommends to members measures to promote maritime safety and to prevent and control maritime pollution from ships.

The Council is the governing body of the Organization between the biennial sessions of the Assembly. Its eighteen members are elected by the Assembly for a term of two years. As from April 1978 it will be enlarged to twenty-four members. The Council appoints the Secretary-General; transmits reports by the subsidiary bodies, including the Maritime Safety Committee, to the Assembly and reports on the work of the Organization generally; submits budget estimates and financial statements with comments and recommendations to the Assembly. The Council normally meets twice a year.

LEGAL COMMITTEE

Established by the Council in June 1967 to deal initially with problems connected with the loss of the tanker Torrey Canyon, and subsequently with any legal problems laid before IMCO. Membership open to all IMCO Member States.

FACILITATION COMMITTEE

Constituted by the Council in May 1972 as a subsidiary body, this Committee was formerly an ad hoc Working Group. It deals with measures to facilitate maritime travel and transport and matters arising from the 1965 Facilitation Convention. Membership open to all IMCO member states.

COMMITTEE ON TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

Constituted by the Council in May 1972 as a subsidiary body, this Committee was formerly a Working Group. It evaluates the implementation of UN Development Programme projects for which IMCO is executing agency and generally reviews IMCO's technical assistance programmes. Its membership is open to all IMCO member states.

INTERNATIONAL BANK FOR RECONSTRUCTION AND DEVELOPMENT—IBRD (WORLD BANK)

1818 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20433, U.S.A.

Telephone: (202) 393-6360.

The World Bank was established on December 27th, 1945. Initially it was concerned with post-war reconstruction in Europe; since then its aim has been to assist the economic development of member nations by making loans where private capital is not available on reasonable terms to finance productive investments. Loans are made either direct to governments, or to private enterprise with the guarantee of their governments.

MEMBERS

129 members: see Table on pages 25-27.

Only members of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) (see page 51) may be considered for membership in the Bank; membership in the Bank is a prerequisite for membership in the IDA (see page 44).

Subscriptions to the capital stock of the Bank are based on each member's quota in the IMF, which is designed to reflect the country's relative economic strength. Voting rights are related to shareholdings.

ORGANIZATION

Officers and staff of the World Bank serve concurrently as officers and staff in the International Development Association (IDA) (see page 44). The World Bank and the IDA have six regional offices at their headquarters in Washington, each headed by a vice-president. In addition there is a vice-president, Projects Staff, who is responsible for general guidance and assistance to the regional offices. His staff consists of selected experts to provide the support necessary to assure uniform sectoral policies throughout the regional offices, and specialists who cannot be practically allocated to single region and project units like population, tourism, urbanization and industry.

The vice-presidents report to the Senior Vice-President, Operations.

BOARDS OF GOVERNORS

All powers in each institution are vested in a Board of Governors, consisting of one Governor appointed by each member nation. Typically, a Governor is his country's finance minister, central bank governor, or a minister or an official of comparable rank. The Boards normally meet once a year.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTORS

Each Board of Governors has delegated most of its powers to twenty Executive Directors, who meet as often as required and approve all loans. The Executive Directors are responsible for matters of policy. Each of the five largest shareholders (France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Japan, the United Kingdom and the U.S.A.) appoints a single Executive Director. The remaining 15 are elected for two-year terms by the Governors for other members, each Governor casting the number of votes to which he is entitled. Each Director appoints his own alternate. In the case of the Directors elected by more than one member, the alternate is normally the Governor from another of the countries in the electing group.

There are also three regional missions, in Eastern and Western Africa and in Thailand, and offices in 21 developing member countries.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The Bank's capital is derived from members' subscriptions to capital shares, the calculation of which is based on their quotas in the International Monetary Fund (see page 51). On June 30th, 1977, the total subscribed capital of the Bank was $30,869 million. Of this amount, however, only the sum of about $3,087 million had been paid in, partly in gold or dollars and partly in local currencies. The remainder is subject to call if required to meet the Bank's obligations. Most of the Bank's lendable funds come from its borrowing in world capital markets. As of June 30th, 1977, the Bank's outstanding debt was $14,478 million. The Bank also replenishes its funds through the sale of portions of its loans. These sales, the most part without the Bank guarantee, totalled $2,742 million by June 30th, 1977.

ACTIVITIES

Financial operations: the World Bank approved development loans totalling $5,759 million during the year ended June 30th, 1977. The figure was higher than any previous year. As in the previous year, special attention was given to the need to distribute the benefits of development more widely, with particular emphasis on the poorest countries. During the year, the World Bank made 161 loans to 54 countries.

The Bank's operations were supported by a record level of gross borrowings, which totalled $4,721 million during the year. The estimated distribution of holdings of the Bank's debt by countries at the end of the fiscal year was about 24 per cent in the Federal Republic of Germany, 28 per cent in the United States, 9 per cent in Japan, 8 per cent in Saudi Arabia and 8 per cent in Switzerland. The remaining 24 per cent was held principally by central banks in over 80 countries.

Technical Assistance: The provision of technical assistance to member countries has become a major component of Bank activities. The economic, sector and project analysis undertaken by the Bank in the normal course of its operations is the vehicle for considerable technical assistance. In addition, project loans and credits may include funds earmarked specifically for feasibility studies, resource surveys, management or planning advice, and training. During the year ended June 30th, 1977, 162 lending operations made specific provision for technical assistance, for a total of approximately $189 million; six loans and credits were also made exclusively for technical assistance.

Although the Bank finances technical assistance activities as part of a loan or credit or in the form of a grant, in most cases it urges the government requesting the assistance to approach the UNDP for funds. In 1976/77 the Bank served as executing agency for 10 new projects for which the UNDP committed $11.4 million including a $5.2 million grant to strengthen Malaysia's capacity for project identification, preparation and implementation.

The Bank also embarked on new projects in Egypt, Nepal and Paraguay. Other projects were in progress in Malaysia, the Philippines, Liberia, Sudan, Swaziland, Uganda and Zaire.

Reimbursable technical assistance was extended during the year to some oil-exporting developing countries which do not now borrow from the Bank. Most of this assistance—provision of advice especially and, in a few cases, secondment of staff to regional and national institutions—was related to investment decisions contemplated by the countries in the fields of industry, education, agriculture, transport and manpower planning. The assistance was comparable to the services the Bank provides its borrowers in the course of its lending operations.

Work carried out with UNDP financing led to an estimated $1,600 million of Bank lending during the year. This brought to $7,000 million the cumulative total of such follow-up investment.

Economic Development Institute: founded 1955. Training is provided for government officials at the middle and upper levels of responsibility who are concerned with development programmes and projects. Courses are in national economic management and project analysis.

The EDI has become one of the most important of the Bank's activities in technical assistance. In its overseas courses, the aim is to build up local capability to conduct projects courses in future. By the end of the 1970s as many as half of those taking part in the EDI's courses in Washington should be teaching staff from institutions overseas.

Each year about 300 Fellows participate in the Washington courses, of which eleven were offered in fiscal 1977; in addition, 24 courses were sponsored overseas for 621 officials from Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America. The Institute is holding courses in Argentina, Brazil, Japan and the Philippines, and also contributes sessions to courses held by national or regional bodies.

Director: RAYMOND M. FROST.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Consultative Group for International Agricultural Research (CGIAR): founded 1971 under the sponsorship of the World Bank, FAO and UNDP. The Bank is chairman of the group and provides its secretariat.

The group was formed to raise financial support for international agricultural research work for improving crops and animal production in the developing countries. It has a Technical Advisory Committee of 13 experts.

Seven institutions doing fundamental research on crops are assisted by the group: the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI) based in the Philippines; the International Wheat and Maize Improvement Centre (CIMMYT), based in Mexico; the International Potato Centre (CIP), based in Peru; the two International Institutes for Tropical Agriculture, based in Colombia (CIAT) and Nigeria (IITA); the International Crops Research Institute for the Semi-Arid Tropics (ICRISAT), based in India; and the International Centre for Agricultural Research in Dry Areas (ICARDA), based in Iran, Lebanon and Syria.

Additionally, two programmes to improve livestock production are being supported, at the International Laboratory for Research in Animal Diseases (ILRAD) in Nairobi, Kenya, and at the International Livestock Centre for Africa (ILCA) in Ethiopia. Support is also being given to the West African Rice Development Association, based in Liberia, the International Board for Plant Genetic Resources, based in Rome, and the Current Agricultural Research Information Service, also in Rome.

Annual contributions from members of the Consultative Group amounted to approximately $79 million in 1977. Members: 36, including the sponsors, five governments representing the developing regions, 18 donor governments, and principal foundations and development banks.

Executive Secretary: MICHAEL LEJEUNE.

Consultative Group on Food Production and Investment in Developing Countries (CGFPI): sponsored by the World Bank, FAO and UNDP as a result of the World Food Conference of November 1974 to increase, co-ordinate and improve the efficiency of investment for food production in developing countries, from both bilateral and multi-lateral sources. Participants are governments and international bodies which have significant programmes of assistance to the food systems of developing countries.

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

CGFPI held one meeting in 1975, two in 1976 and one in 1977 to review the various issues connected with the current flow and future investment requirements for increasing food production in developing countries and their potential for rapid increase in food production. Headquarters at the World Bank.

Chairman: EDWIN M. MARTIN.

Vice-Chairman and Executive Secretary: MOISE C. MENSAH.

Aid Co-ordinating Groups: the Bank has taken the lead in forming groups to co-ordinate financial and technical assistance to developing countries. By 1977, it was chairman of 18 active aid co-ordination groups organized to assist Bangladesh, Bolivia, Burma, Colombia, East Africa, Egypt, India, the Republic of Korea, Morocco, Nepal, Pakistan, Peru, the Philippines, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Thailand, Tunisia and Zaire.

More than two dozen donor countries have been associated with one or more of these groups. Where appropriate, various international agencies and regional development banks also participate.

During the fiscal year 1977 formal meetings of 12 of these groups were held; and the Bank participated in the Inter-Governmental Group for Indonesia.

International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID): f. 1966 under the Convention of the Settlement of Investment Disputes between States and Nationals of Other States. The Convention was designed to encourage the growth of private foreign investment for economic development, by creating the possibility, always subject to the consent of both parties, for a Contracting State and a foreign investor who is a national of another Contracting State to settle any legal dispute that might arise out of such an investment by conciliation and/or arbitration before an impartial, international forum. The governing body of the Centre is its Administrative Council, composed of one representative of each Contracting State, all of whom have equal voting power. The President of the World Bank is ex officio the non-voting Chairman of the Administrative Council.

By the end of June 1977, ICSID had 67 States as members; five additional governments had signed but not yet ratified the Convention.

Secretary-General: ARON BROCHES.

INTERNATIONAL CIVIL AVIATION ORGANIZATION—ICAO

International Aviation Square, 1000 Sherbrooke St. West, Montreal, P.Q. H3A 2R2, Canada

Founded in 1947 to develop the techniques of international air navigation and to help in the planning and improvement of international air transport. Based on the Convention of International Civil Aviation, signed in Chicago, 1944.

MEMBERS

141 members: see Table on pages 25-27.

AIMS

To ensure safe and orderly growth of civil aviation;
to encourage skills in aircraft design and operation;
to improve airways, airports and air navigation facilities;
to prevent the waste of resources in unreasonable competition;

to safeguard the rights of each contracting party to operate international air transport; to prevent discriminatory practices.

ORGANIZATION

(as of October 1977)

ASSEMBLY

Composed of representatives of the member states, and is the organization's legislative body; approves the budget and determines members' contributions; meets every three years.

COUNCIL

Comprises representatives of thirty states elected by the Assembly. It is the executive body, and establishes and supervises subsidiary technical committees and makes recommendations to member governments; meets in virtually continuous session; elects the President, appoints the Secretary-General, and administers the finances of the organization.

The functions of the Council are:

to adopt international standards and recommended practices and incorporate them as annexes to the Convention on International Civil Aviation;

to arbitrate between member states on matters concerning aviation and implementation of the Convention; to investigate any situation which presents avoidable obstacles to development of international air navigation; to take whatever steps are necessary to maintain safety and regularity of operation of international air transport;

to provide technical assistance to the developing countries under the UN Development Programme and other assistance programmes.

President of the Council: Dr. ASSAD KOTAITE (Lebanon).

Secretary-General: YVES LAMBERT (France).

AIR NAVIGATION COMMISSION

Comprises 15 members and three observers.

President: E. E. GRAD.

STANDING COMMITTEES

These include the Air Transport Committee, the Committee on Joint Support of Air Navigation Services, the Finance Committee, the Legal Committee, the Committee on Unlawful Interference, and the Edward Warner Award Committee.

REGIONAL OFFICES

Europe: 3 bis, Villa Emile Bergerat, Neuilly-sur-Seine, France.

Far East and Pacific: P.O. Box 614, Bangkok, Thailand.

Middle East and Eastern African: 16 Hassan Sabri, Zamalek, Cairo, Egypt.

North American and Caribbean: Apartado Postal 5-377, México 5, D.F., Mexico.

South America: Apartado 4127, Lima, Peru.

Africa: P.O. Box 2356, Dakar, Senegal.

ACTIVITIES 1977

ICAO Specifications: these are contained in annexes to the Chicago Convention (see below), and in 3 sets of Procedures for Air Navigation Services (PANS Documents). The specifications are periodically revised in keeping with developments in technology and changing requirements. Amendments affected operation of aircraft, personnel licensing, aerodromes, aeronautical communications, rules of the air, air traffic services, information services, aircraft noise and aviation security. Technical Manuals and Circulars are issued to facilitate implementation.

ICAO Regional Plans: set out the technical requirements for air navigation facilities in the nine ICAO regions; Regional Offices offer assistance (see addresses above). Because of recent growth in air traffic and changes in the pattern of air routes, the Plans have been amended.

European Air Navigation Planning Group: reviews current problems and the need for changes in the air navigation facilities in the European Region.

ICAO Projects: studies of current problems aiming to apply new technology, including: airworthiness of aircraft, all-weather navigation, aircraft separation, obstacle clearances, operation of aircraft and carriage by air of dangerous goods, automated data interchange systems, visual aids.

Environment: studies were made on extending the requirements for noise certification of aircraft; another study is in progress on engine exhaust emissions.

Air Transport: continuing functions include preparation of regional air transport development studies; studies on international air transport fares and rates; review of the economic situation of airports and route facilities; development of guidance material on civil aviation forecasting and planning; collection and publication of statistics; facilitation of passenger and freight clearance formalities; and multilateral financing of certain air navigation facilities.

Technical Assistance Bureau: organizes assistance in the developing countries. In 1977 assistance was provided to 119 countries at a total cost of U.S. $25.4 million.

Chicago Convention: the statutes of ICAO are contained in the Convention on International Civil Aviation, signed in Chicago, 1944; 17 annexes contain the ICAO Specifications.

Legal Committee: is currently studying the problems of lease, charter and interchange of aircraft in international operations; also under study is the preparation of a new instrument on liability for damage caused by noise and sonic boom generated by aircraft.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION—IDA

1818 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20433, U.S.A.

Telephone: (202) 393-6360.

The International Development Association began operations in November 1960. Affiliated to the World Bank (see page 36), IDA advances capital to the poorer developing member countries on more flexible terms than those offered by the Bank.

MEMBERS

117 members: see Table on pages 25-27.

ORGANIZATION

President and Chairman of Executive Directors: Chairman of the World Bank (ex-officio).

Officers and staff of the World Bank serve concurrently as officers and staff of IDA.

FINANCE

IDA's total resources consisting of members' subscriptions and supplementary resources (additional subscriptions and contributions) as of June 30th, 1977, amounted to $10,731 million in current U.S. dollars.

IDA is authorized to accept supplementary contributions from the more developed group among its members, known as the Part I countries: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Kuwait, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, South Africa, Sweden, the United Kingdom and the U.S.A. Switzerland has made loans to IDA, although it is not a member.

Voting rights of all members are in proportion to their subscriptions, while the supplementary contributions carry no voting rights.

These resources are replenished periodically by contributions from the more affluent member countries. The fifth replenishment of $7,638 million was approved in March 1977 for the fiscal years 1978-81 by 26 donor member countries, subject to the approval of their legislatures.

ACTIVITIES

Principles similar to those of the World Bank are followed by IDA in appraising projects, negotiating its credits and in requirements for procurement, disbursement of funds and reports on the progress of constructions. However, the terms upon which IDA lends are far more favourable; almost all credits so far have been for a period of 50 years, with a 10-year initial grace period and no interest charge; only a service charge of 0.75 per cent per annum is made; credits can thus be extended to countries which, for balance of payments reasons, could not assume the burden of repayment required for World Bank loans.

By June 30th, 1977, IDA had extended 666 credits totalling $11,397 million to 66 member countries. This does not include joint loans and credits by the World Bank and IDA. These are counted instead as World Bank operations.

Lending operations, fiscal year 1977: IDA credits are listed in comparison with World Bank loans on page 40.

Founded in 1956 as an affiliate of the World Bank to encourage the growth of productive private enterprise in its member countries, particularly in the less-developed areas.

MEMBERS

105 members: see Table on pages 25-27.

ORGANIZATION

IFC is a separate legal entity in the World Bank Group. IFC's share capital, subscribed by member countries, amounted to $108.3 million at June 30th, 1977.

Executive Directors of the World Bank also serve as Directors of IFC. The President of the World Bank is ex-officio Chairman of the IFC Board of Directors, which has appointed him President of IFC. Subject to his overall supervision, the day-to-day operations of IFC are conducted by its staff under the direction of the Executive Vice-President.

PRINCIPAL OFFICERS

President: ROBERT S. McNAMARA.

Executive Vice-President: MOEEN A. QURESHI.

Vice-Presidents: GORDON F. McCLURE, JUDHVIR PARMAR.

Regional Mission in Eastern Africa: MICHAEL DIXON.

Director of Investments, Latin America and Caribbean I:
KURT B. ECKRICH.

Director of Investments, Europe and Middle East: DOUGLAS GUSTAFSON.

JOSÉ M. RUISANCHEZ.

Director of Investments, Asia: TORSTEIN STEPHANSEN.

Special Representative in Europe: J. W. STROBL.

Regional Mission in East Asia: GIOVANNI VACCHELLI.

FUNCTIONS

1. In association with private investors, invests without government guarantee in productive private enterprises of economic priority in member countries where sufficient private capital is not available on reasonable terms.
2. Stimulates the international flow of private capital to developing countries.
3. Encourages the development of local capital markets.
4. Invests in and gives technical help to development finance companies, and assists other institutions which also support economic development and follow policies generally consistent with those of IFC.

5. Commits limited amounts of funds for promotional purposes, to help bring development enterprises into being.

6. Revolves its portfolio by sales of its investments to other investors.

ACTIVITIES

(Fiscal year ending June 30th, 1977)

The Board of Directors of the Corporation approved loan and equity investments totalling U.S. $258.9 million in 34 enterprises in 20 developing countries during fiscal year 1977. Commitments of $206.7 million were made to 33 enterprises during that period. The comparable figure of approved investments for fiscal 1976 was $235.8 million in 33 enterprises.

The total cost of the projects to which IFC made commitments this year came to $1,169 million. Concurrently with IFC others invested $894 million in those same enterprises with the remaining $68 million financed through cash generation. IFC's operations in fiscal 1977 brought the cumulative gross total of the Corporation's commitments since it was established in 1956 to $1,712 million. These investments were made in 292 enterprises in 62 developing countries. Financing from other sources provided $7,262 million and brought the total cost of the projects to which the Corporation made commitments in the past 21 years to $8,974 million.

During the year the Corporation made its first investment in Madagascar. Of the $206.7 million actually committed by IFC during the year, $82.5 million went to eight projects in Latin America; $62.5 million, including $35 million being financed by participants, went to six projects in four developing countries in Europe; $28.5 million to 11 projects in Asia and $33.2 million to eight projects in Africa.

Investments were distributed over a wide range of sectors, with 29 per cent of total dollar volume of commitments in development finance companies and capital market institutions; 23 per cent in agriculture and forestry industries; 21 per cent in heavy industry; 11 per cent in light industry and manufacturing; 9 per cent in mineral resource development, and 7 per cent in utilities and services. More specifically $40.7 million was committed for development finance companies in Greece, Korea and Liberia while capital and money market institutions in Ecuador, Kenya, Korea and Thailand were supported with $18.2 million. Commitments amounting to $27.6 million were made in food production and processing projects in Argentina, Cameroon, Greece, Malawi, Thailand and Yugoslavia. Pulp and paper projects in Kenya and Yugoslavia received $17.3 million and a Philippine plywood producer $3.5 million. Twenty million dollars was invested in a Brazilian foundry; $13.2 million in cement and construction material projects in Colombia, Cyprus, Guatemala and Morocco; $11.2 million in iron and steel projects in Brazil and Turkey, and $500,000 in a Philippine petrochemical company and a Korean manufacturer. A total of $21.0 million was invested in textile companies in Argentina, Indonesia, the Ivory Coast and Madagascar. Mining enterprises in the Philippines and Brazil received $18.5 million while $15 million was invested in a Colombian natural gas pipeline.

Of the cumulative total of IFC's commitments since 1956, $663 million (39 per cent) has been invested in Latin America and the Caribbean, $411 million (24 per cent) in Asia, $392 million (23 per cent) in Europe, $180 million (10 per cent) in Africa, and $65 million (4 per cent) in the Middle East.

FINANCIAL RECORD

(up to June 30th, 1977)

SALES OF INVESTMENTS

At June 30th, 1977, IFC had sold $515.6 million, or almost one third of its cumulative gross commitments. This figure includes the acquisition by others of $34 million of securities covered by standby and underwriting commitments. Sales in the year ending June 30th, 1977, amounted to $67.7 million.

ORGANIZATION

PREPARATORY COMMISSION

Consists of 18 members elected by all participating countries to establish the Fund. The Agreement was opened for signature and ratifications in December 1976 when the target of $1,000 million in contributions was reached. Fourth session, July 1977.

Chairman: ABDELMUHSIN AL-SUDEARY (Saudi Arabia).

GOVERNING COUNCIL

One Governor represents each member state. All powers of the Fund are vested in the Governing Council, although it may delegate certain powers to the Executive Board. Sessions are held annually and special sessions may be called. It was expected that the first session would be held in December 1977.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Consists of 18 members, elected by the Governing Council, one third by each category of membership. Members serve for three years, after an initial period during which some are elected for terms of one and two years.

PRESIDENT

The Governing Council elects the President by a two-thirds majority for a term of three years. The President is eligible for re-election. Under the control and direction of the Governing Council and Executive Board, the President is responsible for conducting the business of the Fund. He is the Chairman of the Executive Board. He appoints and organizes the staff.

AIMS

To mobilize additional resources for concessional loans or grants for agricultural development. Projects shall be supported which introduce or improve methods of food production and strengthen related national policies and institutions. Priority is given to the poorest countries that are in food deficit and to the potential for increasing food production in other developing countries, and to the importance of improving the nutritional level of the poorest countries.

VOTING RIGHTS

The total number of votes in the Governing Council and the Executive Board is 1,800, distributed equally between the three categories of membership.

Thus two-thirds of the votes lie with the developing countries who will therefore have a major influence on the investment decisions of the Fund, and at the same time two-thirds of the votes are held by donor countries. The Fund is also unusual in that it will be one of the first major multilateral funds to be jointly financed by OPEC and OECD nations.

In the Governing Council votes are distributed among members of categories I and II on a scale partly reflecting relative contributions, and are shared evenly among members of Category III. In the Executive Board members are entitled to the number of votes of those countries who elect them, and may divide their vote.

ACTIVITIES

Disbursements will be made through existing organizations such as the World Bank, FAO, UNDP and regional development banks, but the Fund will set priorities for selecting projects and retain ultimate control over its projects. It will also be able to undertake joint financing with other regional or national funds or with private organizations. Resources will be disbursed partly in grants and largely in concessional loans.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION—ILO

1211 Geneva 22, Switzerland

The ILO was founded in 1919 to work for social justice as a basis for lasting peace. It carries out this mandate by promoting decent living standards, satisfactory conditions of work and pay and adequate employment opportunities. Methods of action include the creation of international labour standards; the provision of technical co-operation services; and research and publications on social and labour matters. In 1946, the Organisation became a specialized agency associated with the UN. The ILO was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1969.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE

President (June 1977): J. K. AMEDUME (Ghana)Vice-Presidents (June 1977):Governmental: MARIAN NASZKOWSKI (Poland)Employer: JOHN COATES (U.K.)Worker: IRVING BROWN (U.S.A.)

The supreme deliberative body of ILO. Normally meets annually in Geneva, with a session devoted to maritime questions when necessary. Attended by about 1,500 delegates, advisers and observers. National delegations are composed of two government delegates, one employers' delegate and one workers' delegate. Non-governmental delegates can speak and vote independently of the views of their government. Conference elects the Governing Body and adopts the Budget and International Labour Conventions and Recommendations.

The President and Vice-Presidents hold office for the term of the Conference only.

GOVERNING BODY

Chairman (1977-78): JOSEPH MORRIS (Canada)Government Vice-Chairman: ROBERTO AGO (Italy)Employers' Vice-Chairman: GULLMAR BERGENSTRÖM (Sweden)Workers' Spokesman: CYRIL PLANT (U.K.)

ILO's executive council. Normally meets three or four times a year in Geneva to decide policy and programmes. Composed of 28 Government members, 14 employers' members and 14 workers' members. Ten of the government members represent "states of chief industrial importance"—Canada, China, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, India, Italy, Japan, the U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, the U.S.A. The remaining 18 are elected from other countries every three years. Employers' and workers' members are elected as individuals, not as national candidates.

The International Labour Office is the Organisation's secretariat, operational headquarters and publishing house. It is staffed in Geneva and in the field by more than 3,000 people of some 100 nationalities. Operations are decentralized to regional, area and branch offices in nearly 40 countries.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR LABOUR STUDIES

Established by ILO in March 1960. The Institute is an advanced educational and research institution dealing with social and labour policy, and brings together international experts representing employers, management, workers and government interests. Activities include international and regional study courses, and are financed by grants and an Endowment Fund to which governments and other bodies contribute.

Director: ALBERT TÉVOÉDJRÉ (Benin)INTERNATIONAL CENTRE FOR ADVANCED TECHNICAL AND VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Established by ILO in Turin, Italy, the Centre became operational in October 1965. It provides programmes for directors in charge of technical and vocational institutions, training officers, senior and middle-level managers in private and public enterprises, trade union leaders, and technicians, primarily from the developing regions of the world. The ILO Director-General is Chairman of the Board of the Centre.

Director: RAYMOND S. MILNE (New Zealand)

ACTIVITIES

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR STANDARDS

One of the ILO's primary functions is the adoption by the International Labour Conference of Conventions and Recommendations setting minimum labour standards. Through ratification by member states, Conventions create binding obligations to put their provisions into effect. Recommendations provide guidance as to policy and practice. A total of 149 Conventions and 157 Recommendations have been adopted, ranging over a wide field of social and labour matters, including basic human rights such as freedom of association, abolition of forced labour and elimination of discrimination in employment. Together they form the International Labour Code. By September 1977 more than 4,000 ratifications of the Conventions had been registered by member states.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

Technical co-operation continued to be a major ILO activity. Nearly $52 million from all sources, including the United Nations Development Programme, was spent in 1976 for the promotion of employment, the development of human resources and social institutions, and the improvement of living and working conditions. Of the total figure, $9.2 million was provided by bilateral aid agencies, and $3 million by the United Nations Fund for Population Activities. Regional distribution of expenditure in 1976 was as follows: Africa, $21 million; Latin America and the Caribbean, $9.1 million; Asia, $10.0 million; Europe, $0.9 million; Middle East, $5.8 million; inter-regional projects, $5 million.

WORLD EMPLOYMENT PROGRAMME

The employment objective has been incorporated by the United Nations as a key policy factor into the Second United Nations Development Decade. The ILO has the role of catalyst in bringing employment considerations to the fore in the activities of all agencies within the UN system, and for this purpose launched the World Employment Programme.

The aim of the programme is to assist decision makers in identifying and putting into effect specific employment-promoting development policies. This is accomplished through comprehensive employment strategy missions and exploratory country employment missions; through regional employment teams for Africa, Asia and Latin America and the Caribbean; and through country employment teams.

The programme also includes action oriented research activities which at this stage cover eight major project areas: technology and employment, income distribution and employment, population and employment, education and training and employment, rural employment promotion, urbanization and employment, trade expansion and employment, and emergency employment schemes.

MEETINGS

Among meetings held during 1977, in addition to the International Labour Conference and Governing Body sessions, were the Building, Civil Engineering and Public Works Committee; the Metal Trades Committee; the Tripartite Advisory Meeting on the Relationship of Multinational Enterprises and Social Policy (all in Geneva); and the Fifth African Regional Conference (in Abidjan).

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE

61st Session: Geneva, June 1976. Adopted international standards on the establishment of tripartite machinery to improve the implementation of ILO standards; discussed the working environment; the employment and conditions of work and life of nursing personnel. The ILO also convened a Tripartite World Conference on Employment, Income Distribution and Social Progress and the International Division of Labour, in Geneva, in June 1976.

62nd Session: Maritime session.

63rd Session: Geneva, June 1977. Adopted international standards on the working environment, and on the employment and working conditions of nurses.

64th Session: Geneva, June 1978. Will hold final discussions on international standards concerning labour administration, and on freedom of association and procedures for determining conditions of employment in the public service.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

The highest authority of the Fund is exercised by the United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

Board of Governors, on which each member country is represented by a Governor and an Alternate Governor. Normally the Board of Governors meets once a year, but the Governors may take votes by mail or other means between annual meetings. The Board of Governors has delegated many of its powers to the Executive Directors. However, the conditions governing the admission of new members, adjustment of quotas, election of Executive Directors, as well as certain other important powers remain the sole responsibility of the Board of Governors. The voting power of each member in the Board of Governors is related to its quota in the Fund (see below).

BOARD OF EXECUTIVE DIRECTORS

The twenty-member Board of Executive Directors, responsible for the day-to-day operations of the Fund, is in continuous session in Washington, under the chairmanship of the Fund's Managing Director. At present, five members (the U.S.A., the United Kingdom, the Federal Republic of Germany, France and Japan) each appoint one Executive Director, and the fifteen remaining Executive Directors are elected by groups of member countries with similar interests. As in the Board of Governors, the voting power of each member is related to its quota in the Fund, but in practice the Executive Directors operate by consensus.

The Managing Director of the Fund serves as head of its staff, which is organized into departments by function and area. As at April 30th, 1977, the Fund staff numbered 1,373 persons of 89 nationalities.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE AND DRAWING ARRANGEMENTS

Quotas. Each member is assigned a quota related to its national income, monetary reserves, trade balance and other economic indicators. A member's subscription is equal to its quota and is payable partly in gold (as a rule 25 per cent) and partly in its own currency. The quota approximately determines a member's voting power, the amount of foreign exchange it may purchase from the Fund, and its allocation of special drawing rights (SDRs) if the member is a participant in the Fund's Special Drawing Account.

The original quotas totalled some $9,000 million, and on September 30th, 1977, total quotas stood at SDR29,219 million. Following a recommendation by the Interim Committee of the Board of Governors in January 1975, the Executive Directors proposed in February 1976 that the total of quotas should be increased by 32.5 per cent to SDR39,000 million. The new quotas, approved by the Board of Governors in March 1976, will become effective when the proposed second amendment to the Articles of Agreement (see below) is adopted.

Drawing Arrangements. Exchange transactions within the Fund take the form of members' purchases (i.e. drawings) from the Fund of the currencies of other members for the equivalent amounts of their own currencies. Fund resources are available to eligible members on an essentially short-term and revolving basis to provide members with temporary assistance to contribute to the solution of their payments problems. A member's entitlement to draw is determined after consideration of its circumstances and its likely ability, with the help of Fund resources, to overcome its problems within a short time.

Drawings are limited by provisions governing both the rate of increase and the total amount of the Fund's holdings of a member's currency expressed as a percentage of its quota. Gold-tranche purchases (i.e. purchases that do not bring the Fund's holdings of the member's currency to a level above its quota) are permitted more or less automatically.

A member's purchases of currency from the Fund must be repaid by repurchases or by the purchase of that member's currency by another member. As a general rule members undertake to repay within a period not exceeding 3 to 5 years. The exceptions are in the case of extended arrangements or oil facility purchases. Repurchases are made in gold, in SDRs or in those convertible currencies that are held by the Fund in amounts below 75 per cent of the respective members' quotas.

The main devices for assisting members in temporary difficulties are examined below.

General Arrangements to Borrow. An agreement was approved by the Fund in 1962, and subsequently extended until 1980, whereby ten industrial members, the Group of Ten, undertook to lend the Fund up to $5.5 thousand million in their own currencies, should this be necessary to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary situation. These General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB) may be used by any member, subject to the approval of the Group of Ten.

Stand-by Arrangements. Members may enter into Stand-by Arrangements (introduced in 1954) with the Fund to ensure that drawings up to specified limits may be made within an agreed period provided the conditions of the arrangement are observed. By enabling members to negotiate credit in advance of actual needs, stand-by arrangements have become a valuable instrument in forestalling speculative attacks which would exacerbate or increase impending difficulties.

Extended Arrangements. An extended facility was established in September 1974, to provide medium-term assistance for members in special circumstances of balance of payments difficulty. Whereas the usual duration of a stand-by arrangement does not exceed 12 months, with repayment within a period of 3 to 5 years, an extended arrangement provides assurance of support by the Fund for a period of up to 3 years, with repayment within a 4- to 8-year period. The extended facility is likely to be beneficial for developing countries in particular.

Special Drawing Rights. Facilities for the expansion of international reserves were created in January 1970 with the introduction of SDRs which have become established as usable and acceptable reserve assets and as a substitute for gold in international payments. The value of SDRs to a participant in the Special Drawing Account rests basically on the obligation of other participants to accept them from him up to a prescribed ceiling in exchange for convertible currency. Participants are allocated SDRs in proportion to their IMF quotas and may use them bilaterally, in agreement with other participants, to buy back from them equivalent amounts of their own currencies; or to obtain convertible currency from participants designated by the Fund. A participant may use SDRs in these ways when it has a balance of payments need or in the light of adverse developments in its total reserves; but it may make repurchases of its currency from, or pay charges to, the Fund without being subject to the requirement of need.

Reconstitution provisions—a participant's average holdings of SDRs must not fall below a given proportion of the average of its net cumulative allocation in a given period—are designed to preclude the possibility of excessive reliance on SDRs to finance large or persistent balance of payments deficits.

Compensatory Financing of Export Fluctuations. Under this scheme, a primary-producing member which experiences a fall in export revenue—generally as a result of adverse movements in the world price of a commodity upon which it is heavily dependent—may make drawings which are excluded from the calculation of its gold-tranche position.

Buffer Stock Financing Facility. Established in 1969, this facility permits members to make drawings in connection with the financing of international buffer stocks of primary products.

Oil Facility. An oil facility under which resources are made available to assist members in meeting the impact of increased costs of petroleum and petroleum products was established on a temporary basis in June 1974. Borrowing arrangements to finance the oil facility during 1974 were completed with nine lenders who agreed to lend the Fund up to the equivalent of SDR 3,046.9 million. For 1975 arrangements were made with 14 lenders to make available SDR 3,855.5 million. The facility was terminated in March 1976 and final purchases were made in May 1976. Altogether, between September 1974 and May 1976, 55 members purchased the equivalent of SDR 6,902.4 million in 156 transactions.

ACTIVITIES

PROPOSED SECOND AMENDMENT TO THE ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT

Following the agreement reached in January 1976 by the Interim Committee of the Board of Governors (see below), the IMF's Executive Directors agreed in March on a set of comprehensive modifications to the Articles of Agreement. The changes envisaged, known as the "proposed second amendment", cover six main areas:

1. The establishment of exchange arrangements of each member's choice; the possible adoption of particular general arrangements; and the possible adoption of a system of par values in which members would have the option to participate; subject at all times to general obligations and firm surveillance by the Fund.
2. A reduction in the role of gold in the international monetary system, including the sale or restitution of the Fund's own holdings in gold and the abolition of the official price of gold.
3. Changes in the characteristics, and expansion of the possible uses, of the SDR so as to assist in establishing it as the principal reserve asset of the international monetary system.
4. Simplification and expansion of the types of the Fund's financial operations and transactions, particularly those conducted through the General Department.

5. The possible establishment, as a new organ of the Fund, of a Council with decision-making powers to manage the operation of the international monetary system, i.e. as a successor to the Interim Committee (see below) but with not only advisory powers.
6. Certain improvements in organizational and administrative aspects of the Fund.

It was announced in May 1976 that the Board of Governors had approved the proposed amendment by the necessary two-thirds majority of voting strength. The amendment would consequently be submitted to the member countries for ratification and would become effective for all members from that date when three-fifths of the members, having four-fifths of the total voting power, had accepted it. By July 31st, 1977, the amendment had been accepted by 45 members having 51.46 per cent of the total voting power.

TRUST FUND

In January 1976 the Interim Committee of the Board of Governors agreed to the establishment of a Trust Fund to provide balance of payments assistance, in the form of low-interest loans, to low-income members. The Trust Fund's resources would be derived from the profits to be made on the sale, at market prices, of one-sixth of the IMF's gold (amounting to 25 million troy ounces), to be held by public auction over a period of four years. Eligible countries are initially those with a 1973 per capita income of no more than SDR 300. The Trust Fund was established in May 1976 and the gold auctions began in June. It was decided that in the first two years of operation 12.5 million ounces of gold would be sold by the IMF, as Trustee for the Trust Fund, in 16 auctions of about 780,000 ounces each, held at regular intervals. Beginning in March 1977, however, the schedule was changed to monthly sales of 525,000 ounces each. There were initially 61 countries eligible for assistance, the list to be reviewed before the end of 1977.

The Trust Fund's first loans to developing countries were approved in February 1977. By October 1977 the total amount accrued from gold auctions was about $839 million.

ADVISORY COMMITTEES

Interim Committee

In January 1976 the Interim Committee of the Board of Governors on the International Monetary System reached agreement on a range of issues embodying far-reaching changes. The new arrangements would enable the IMF to use its holdings of each member's currency in its operations and transactions and for promoting the previously agreed objectives of reducing the role of gold and making the SDR the principal reserve asset; currency "floating" would be legalized; and the IMF would exercise surveillance of exchange rate policies. These and other agreements on reform are the subject of the proposed second amendment of the Fund's Articles of Agreement (see above).

At its eighth meeting in Washington, D.C., in April 1977, the Committee continued work on the proposed supplementary financing facility, which the Managing Director had advocated. This facility was established in September 1977.

Chairman: DENIS HEALEY, M.B.E. (United Kingdom).

Development Committee

The Joint Fund-World Bank Committee on the Transfer of Real Resources to Developing Countries (Development Committee) meets generally at the same time as the Interim Committee. It has examined the current economic situation and prospects of developing countries. The Committee has been particularly concerned about the situation of developing countries which were not oil producers. Many such countries had incurred large balance of payments deficits on current account for three years in succession.

GENERAL ACCOUNT

Drawings on the Fund's General Account during the year ending April 30th, 1977, totalled SDR 4,910.3 million, while repurchases totalled SDR 868.2 million. Total drawings since the beginning of Fund operations reached SDR 42,463 million at the end of April 1977, with repurchases totalling SDR 19,216 million. Stand-by arrangements for 19 countries, totalling SDR 4,679.6 million, became effective during 1976/77.

SPECIAL DRAWING ACCOUNT Valuation

For an interim period, a revised method of determining the exchange rate in SDRs for a currency was adopted: one SDR being equal to a unit related to relative values of a "basket" of currencies. The currencies included in the "basket" are those of the 16 countries that had a share in world exports of goods and services in excess of one per cent on average over the 5-year period 1968-1972. The new valuation became effective on July 1st, 1974, and the Fund has since released daily the exchange rate for the SDR in terms of those currencies for whom a representative rate has been established with the Fund.

Transactions

In transactions between participants during the year ending April 30th, 1977, a total of SDR 317.1 million was transferred in transactions by agreement between the participants concerned. In other transactions between participants, members used a total of SDR 118.8 million to acquire currency through the designation process.

The General Account's holdings of SDRs as of April 30th, 1977, were SDR 771.1 million.

TRAINING FACILITIES

The IMF Institute offers training facilities to officials of member governments and their financial organizations. The major course is on financial analysis and policy. Two shorter courses are also given on balance of payments methodology and public finance. Training and technical assistance to member countries is also extended by the Central Banking service, the Fiscal Affairs Department and the Bureau of statistics. A number of other departments in the Fund also provide member governments with technical services in their areas of special competency, including the Exchange and Trade Relations Department, the Legal Department and the Treasurer's Department.

Balance of Payments Yearbook.

Staff Papers (three times a year).

Finance and Development (published jointly with the World Bank, quarterly).

INTERNATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATION UNION—ITU

Place des Nations, 1211 Geneva 20, Switzerland

Founded in 1865, ITU became a Specialized Agency of the UN in 1947. It acts to encourage world co-operation in the use of telecommunication, to promote technical development and to harmonize national policies in the field.

MEMBERS

153 members: see Table on pages 25-27.

ORGANIZATION

(as of October 1977)

PLENIPOTENTIARY CONFERENCE

The supreme organ of ITU; meets about every five years. Each member has one vote at the Conference, whose main tasks are to approve budget policy and accounts, to negotiate with other international organizations, and generally direct policy. The latest conference was held at Torremolinos, Spain, in 1973.

WORLD ADMINISTRATIVE CONFERENCES

The Administrative Telegraph and Telephone Conference: revises telegraph and telephone regulations.

World Administrative Radio Conference: revises radio regulations and reviews the activities of the International Frequency Registration Board.

World Administrative Conferences meet at irregular intervals according to technical needs, and there may also be regional Administrative Conferences held ad hoc.

A Regional Administrative Conference for long and medium frequency broadcasting was held in Geneva in October 1974 and October–November 1975.

A World Administrative Radio Conference for the planning of the broadcasting-satellite service in the 12 GHz band was held during January–February 1977.

ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

The Administrative Council meets annually in Geneva; the 32nd session was held in June 1977. The Council is composed of 36 members elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference.

The Council helps the implementation of the Convention's provisions, and executes the decisions of the Plenipotentiary Conference and, where appropriate, the decisions of the conferences and meetings of the Union. It conducts relations with other international organizations, and approves the annual budget.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: MOHAMED MILI (Tunisia).

Deputy Secretary-General: RICHARD E. BUTLER (Australia).

Chief, Department of External Relations and Legal Adviser: M. IBNOU ZEKRI.

Chief, Department of Conferences and Common Services: R. PROVENCHER (U.S.A.).

The Secretary-General is elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference, and is responsible to it for the General Secretariat's work, and for the Union's administrative and financial services. The General Secretariat's staff totals 415; the working languages are English, French and Spanish.

INTERNATIONAL FREQUENCY REGISTRATION BOARD (IFRB)

Chairman: FRANCIS G. PERRIN (Canada); 5 mems.; number of staff 100.

IFRB records assignments of radio frequencies and provides technical advice to enable members of the Union to operate as many radio channels as possible in overcrowded parts of the radio spectrum. It also investigates cases of harmful interference and makes recommendations for their solution.

INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CCITT)

Director: LÉON BURTZ (France); number of staff 42.

CCITT is currently organizing sixteen study groups and two special study groups covering transmission problems, operation and tariffs, maintenance, electromagnetic dangers, protection of equipment, definitions, vocabulary and symbols, apparatus, local connecting lines, facsimile- and photo-telegraphy, quality of transmission, specifications, telegraph and telex switching, telephone signalling and switching and planning the development of an international network. It has its own telephony laboratory.

INTERNATIONAL RADIO CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CCIR)

Director: RICHARD C. KIRBY (U.S.A.); number of staff 29.

The work of CCIR is done by 11 study groups covering spectrum utilization and monitoring; space research and radioastronomy services; fixed services below about 30 MHz; fixed services using satellites; propagation in non-ionized media; ionospheric propagation; standard frequency and time-signal services; mobile services; fixed services using radio-relay systems; sound broadcasting service; television broadcasting service. The television study group is working on the following matters: television recording, television standards for both black and white and colour transmission, ratio of the wanted to unwanted signal in television, reduction of band width, conversion of a television signal from one standard to another, estimates of the quality of television pictures, etc.

PLAN COMMITTEES

The Plan Committees are joint CCIR/CCITT committees responsible for preparing plans setting out circuit and routing requirements for international telecommunications and for giving estimates of the growth of international traffic. They comprise a World Plan Committee and four regional committees, for Africa, for Latin America, for Asia and Oceania and for Europe and the Mediterranean Basin.

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

A meeting of the World Plan Committee was held in Geneva in September 1975, and the Regional Plan Committee for Africa met in Kinshasa, Zaire, in February 1975.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

ITU's programme of technical co-operation in developing countries is carried out within the framework of UNDP.

In 1976, 424 experts were on mission, 497 fellows were undergoing training abroad and $4,812,154 worth of equipment was delivered. The total cost of this assistance amounted to $20,241,527.

The three main objectives of ITU's activity in the field of technical co-operation continued to be: (a) promoting the development of regional telecommunication networks in Africa, Asia and Latin America; (b) strengthening telecommunications technical and administrative services in developing countries; and (c) developing the human resources required for telecommunications.

Sixty-five per cent of the Union's field experts were directly engaged in the training of telecommunication personnel in developing countries as organizers, advisers, lecturers or instructors.

The expenses incurred in connection with the training of telecommunication staff in 1976 represented approximately two-thirds of the total cost of the ITU field programme.

Considerable assistance was also provided by ITU in the specialized fields of telephony, telegraphy, radio-communications, frequency management, satellite communications, planning, organization, administration and management.

CONVENTION

The International Telecommunication Convention is the definitive convention of the Union, member countries being those who signed it in 1932 or acceded to it later. Since 1932 it has been superseded by new versions at successive plenipotentiary conferences.

The Convention deals with the structure of the Union, the application of its own provisions and regulations, relations with the United Nations and other organizations, and special rules for radio.

REGULATIONS ANNEXED TO THE CONVENTION

TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE

The Telegraph and Telephone Regulations were adopted during the 1973 Geneva Telegraph and Telephone Conference. They deal with problems of telegraph and telephone rates and tariffs among ITU Member countries. These two Regulations lay down the general principles to be observed in the international telegraph and telephone service. Their provisions are applied to both wire and wireless telegraph and telephone communications so far as the Radio Regulations and the Additional Radio Regulations do not provide otherwise.

RADIO

The Radio Regulations include general rules for the assignment and use of frequencies and—the most important part of the Regulations—a Table of Frequency Allocations between 10 kHz and 275 GHz to the various radio services; broadcasting, television, radio astronomy, navigation aid, point-to-point service, maritime mobile, amateur, etc. Chapter III deals with the duties of the International Frequency Registration Board. The Regulations governing measures against interference follow. Subsequently, there are the administrative provisions for stations (secrecy, licences, identification, service documents, inspection of mobile stations).

Chapters VI and VII are concerned with personnel and working conditions in the mobile services, and Chapter VIII with radio assistance in life saving. The last two chapters deal with radiotelegrams and radiotelephone calls and miscellaneous stations and services. Partial revisions of the Radio Regulations are in force for Space Services (1965, 1973), the Aeronautical Mobile Services (1967), and the Maritime Mobile Service (1969, 1974).

UNITED NATIONS EDUCATIONAL, SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL ORGANIZATION—UNESCO

7 place de Fontenoy, 75700 Paris

Telephone: 577-16-10

UNESCO was established in 1945 "for the purpose of advancing, through the educational, scientific and cultural relations of the peoples of the world, the objectives of international peace and the common welfare of mankind"

FUNCTIONS

UNESCO's activities, which take three main forms as outlined below, are funded through a regular budget provided by member states and also through other sources, particularly the UNDP.

International Intellectual Co-operation

UNESCO assists the interchange of experience, knowledge and ideas through a world network of specialists. Apart from the work of its professional staff, UNESCO co-operates regularly with the national associations and international federations of scientists, artists, writers and educators, some of which it helped to establish.

UNESCO convenes conferences and meetings, and coordinates international scientific efforts; it helps to standardize procedures of documentation and provides clearing house services; it offers fellowships; and it publishes a wide range of specialized works, including source books and works of reference.

UNESCO promotes various international agreements, including the International Copyright Convention, which member states are invited to accept.

Operational Assistance

UNESCO has established missions which advise governments, particularly in the developing member countries, in the planning of projects; and it appoints experts to assist in carrying them out. The projects are concerned with the teaching of functional literacy to workers in development undertakings; teacher training; establishing of libraries and documentation centres; provision of training for journalists, radio, television and film workers; improvement of scientific and technical education; training of planners in cultural development; and the international exchange of persons and information.

Promotion of Peace

UNESCO organizes various research efforts on racial problems, and is particularly concerned with prevention of discrimination in education, and improving access for women to education. It has commissioned studies on various aspects of human rights and, through the associated schools which take part in its youth programme, has promoted activities to increase knowledge of international problems and improve mutual understanding.

MEMBERS

142 members and two associate members: see Tables on pages 25-27.

ORGANIZATION

GENERAL CONFERENCE

The supreme governing body of the Organization. Meets in ordinary session once in two years and is composed of representatives of the member states. Twentieth Session: Oct.-Nov. 1978, Paris.

President: TAAITTA TOWEETT (Kenya).

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Consists of 44 members. Prepares the programme to be submitted to the Conference and supervises its execution. Meets twice or sometimes three times a year.

Chairman: LEONARD C. J. MARTIN (U.K.).

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: AMADOU MAHTAR M'BOW (Senegal).

Deputy Director-General: JOHN E. FOBES (U.S.A.).

The Director-General has an international staff of 3,500 civil servants. Of the professional staff (specialists in various disciplines and administrators), about two-thirds are away from headquarters on technical assistance missions to member states.

Assistant Directors-General:

Programme Support and Administration: JACQUES RIGAUD (France).

Education: SIOMA TANGUIANE (U.S.S.R.).

Natural Sciences and their Application to Development: ABDUL-RAZZAK KADDOURA (Syria).

Social Sciences and their Applications: MARTHA HILDEBRANDT (Peru).

Culture and Communication: MAKAMINAN MAKAGIANSAR (Indonesia).

Co-operation for Development and External Relations: DRAGOLJUB NAJMAN (Yugoslavia).

CO-OPERATING BODIES

National Commissions and Co-operating Bodies have been set up in most member states. These help to integrate work within the member states and the work of UNESCO.

ACTIVITIES

About 200 issues of periodicals and 100 new publications are produced annually, and about 80 meetings and conferences and 30 seminars are held; close relations are maintained with 402 non-governmental organizations, some carrying out projects for UNESCO programmes.

Education. This sector receives roughly a third of the combined budgetary allocation for UNESCO's programmes (see budget, below); during 1976 this sector also administered an estimated $120,925,000 worth of educational projects, roughly equivalent to one third of the allocation for all UNESCO's programmes, on behalf of other sources, largely the UNDP.

UNESCO has an overall policy of regarding education as a lifelong process. As an example, one implication is the increasing priority given to pre-primary training. This approach has been the guideline for many of the projects recently planned.

Each year expert missions are sent to member states, to advise on national education policies. They also help with programmes for training abroad, and UNESCO provides study fellowships; in these forms of assistance priority is given to the rural regions of developing member countries.

Natural Sciences. A network of regional offices was set up to spread the application of science and technology in the developing member states. Developing nations were the first to receive abstracts and information from a World Science Information System (UNISIST) which was started in 1973. It monitors scientific and technical publications throughout the world, estimated to number about two million each year.

A research programme, "Science in the 1970s: the human implications of scientific advance", gives guidelines for policy concerning the social changes assisted by scientific development.

The Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission (see page 366), established by UNESCO, carries out a global investigation of marine pollution and of the properties of the ocean.

An International Geological Correlation Programme is run jointly with the International Union of Geological Sciences (see page 364).

UNESCO also assists member states in planning, offering post-graduate training programmes in the basic sciences, and in research projects of particular relevance to the developing countries, such as the use of solar energy.

Culture and Communication.

Culture. A programme begun in 1973 seeks to speed the change in the role of culture, from the activity of an élite in society to a necessity claimed by all. This involves the training of specialists in cultural development, arts administration and the organization of cultural events.

The Secretariat also runs studies on the situation of the artist in society, various problems of artistic creation and various new possibilities in creative work which have been made by new technology. To widen the appreciation of painting, UNESCO publishes catalogues of colour reproductions and organizes travelling exhibitions of reproductions of famous paintings.

In another programme, translations of important literary works of the world are produced.

An established programme investigates cultures of Asia, Latin-America, Europe, Africa and the Arab world. A group of experts is working on an eight volume General History of Africa. There is also a ten-year programme to promote the study of African languages and oral traditions and to encourage the teaching of these subjects throughout the world.

There are also studies on problems involved in international exchanges of works of art, and on preservation of historic quarters or cities; and two expert committees are investigating insurance, and protection from theft, of works of art.

UNESCO is also concerned with efforts to preserve architectural monuments. It is taking part in a project to transfer to safety a group of temples that are threatened by rising water levels at Philae in Egypt; and in the international campaigns to save the ancient buildings of Borobudur, Indonesia, the Parthenon, Greece, and Moenjodaro, Pakistan.

As part of a programme aiming to stimulate the production and reading of books, an international committee of publishers, authors, librarians and booksellers has been set up.

Communication. UNESCO advises member states on the development of libraries, and services for documentation and archives. Expert missions help to introduce mechanized methods.

UNESCO has its own computerized documentation service, and holds seminars on how to make use of it. There is also an International Information System for Research in Documentation, ISORID; member states are encouraged to set up their own information transfer centres to link up with this system.

Member states are assisted with research, planning and policy in the field of communication. There is also an international programme for research in communication, and seven centres have been established for the exchange of information and techniques.

UNESCO convened an international conference in 1974 which adopted a convention on the distribution of broadcasts transmitted via satellites.

Prospects: quarterly review aimed at giving decision-makers, administrators and planners in education in UNESCO member states an opportunity to exchange experiences; and at encouraging a spirit of creativity and concrete co-operative efforts. Also intended to serve specialists in curricula and teaching methods, directors of innovatory institutions, and young people preparing for careers in education; French and English.

Cultures: quarterly, exploring the concept and definition of the word culture, its development and the influence of cross-cultural contacts. Also examines varieties of cultural creativity, the emergence and role of cultural institutions and the problems involved in studying culture; English and French.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR EDUCATIONAL PLANNING—IIEP

7-9 rue Eugène Delacroix, 75016 Paris, France

Established by UNESCO in 1963 to serve as a world centre for advanced training and research in educational planning. Its purpose is to help all member states of UNESCO in their social and economic development efforts, by enlarging the fund of knowledge about educational planning and the supply of competent experts in this field.

Legally and administratively a part of UNESCO, the Institute enjoys intellectual autonomy, and its policies and programme are controlled by its own Governing Board, under special statutes voted by the General Conference of UNESCO.

Chairman of Governing Board: Prof. TORSTEN HUSÉN (Sweden).

Director: HANS N. WEILER.

Publications include IIEP Bulletin (quarterly) and a Brochure setting out the role and activities of the institute. A catalogue of publications, listing over 400 titles, is available on request.

Budget 1976: $12,500,000.

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU OF EDUCATION—IBE

Palais Wilson, 1211 Geneva 14, Switzerland

Founded in 1925, the IBE became an intergovernmental organization in July 1929 and was incorporated into UNESCO in January 1969.

COUNCIL

The Council of the IBE is composed of representatives of 24 member states designated by the General Conference of UNESCO. These are: Algeria, Bulgaria, Central African Empire, Colombia, Cuba, France, India, Indonesia, Japan, Jordan, Kenya, Malaysia, Morocco, Nigeria, Peru, Senegal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Tanzania, Togo, U.S.S.R., U.S.A., Venezuela.

Director: J. B. CHANDLER (U.S.A.).

FUNCTIONS

International Conference on Education. 36th session, 1977: on the problem of information posed at national and international level by the improvement in education systems.

International Education Library: 60,000 volumes; some 800 journals received regularly.

International Educational Reporting Service: provides information on educational innovations.

International Exhibition on Education.

UNIVERSAL POSTAL UNION—UPU

3000 Berne 15, Switzerland

Telephone: (031) 43 22 11.

By the Treaty of Berne, 1874, the General Postal Union was founded, beginning operations in July 1875. Three years later its name was changed to the Universal Postal Union. In 1948 UPU became a Specialized Agency of the UN.

MEMBERS

158 members: see Table on pages 25–27.

ORGANIZATION

(as of August 1977)

CONGRESS

The Supreme body of the Union is Congress which meets every five years. Its duties are legislative and consist mainly of revision of the Acts. Seventeen Congresses have been held, and the eighteenth is to be held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in 1979.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Between Congresses, an Executive Council, created by the Paris Congress 1947, meets annually at Berne. It is composed of 40 member countries of the Union elected by Congress on the basis of an equitable geographical distribution. It ensures continuity of the Union's work in the interval between Congresses, supervises the activities of the International Bureau, undertakes studies, draws up proposals, and makes recommendations to the Congress. It is responsible for encouraging, supervising and co-ordinating international co-operation in the form of postal technical assistance and vocational training.

CONSULTATIVE COUNCIL FOR POSTAL STUDIES

At the Ottawa Congress 1957 a Consultative Committee for Postal Studies was established, which, at the Tokyo Congress 1969, became the Consultative Council for Postal Studies (CCPS), whose 35 member countries meet annually, in principle, at Berne. It is responsible for organizing studies of major problems affecting postal administrations in all UPU member countries, in the technical operations and economic fields and in the sphere of technical co-operation. The CCPS also provides information and opinions on these matters, and examines teaching and training problems arising in the new and developing

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU

The day-to-day administrative work of UPU is executed through a permanent organ called the International Bureau stationed at Berne. It serves as an instrument of liaison, information and consultation for the postal administration of the member countries, provides secretarial services for UPU bodies and promotes technical assistance.

Director-General of the International Bureau: MOHAMED IBRAHIM SOBHI (Egypt).

AIMS AND FUNCTIONS

The essential principles of the Union are the following:

1. Formation of one single postal territory.
2. Unification of postal charges and weight steps.
3. Non-sharing of postage paid for ordinary letters between the sender country and the country of destination.
4. Guarantee of freedom of transit.
5. Settlement of disputes by arbitration.
6. Establishment of a central office under the name of the International Bureau paid for by all members.
7. Periodical meeting of Congresses.
8. Promotion of the development of international postal services and postal technical assistance to Union members.

The common rules applicable to the international postal service and to the letter-post provisions are contained in the Universal Postal Convention and its Detailed Regulations. Owing to their importance in the postal field and their historical value, these two Acts, together with the Constitution and the General Regulations, constitute the compulsory Acts of the Union. It is therefore not possible to be a member country of the Union without being a party to these Acts and applying their provisions.

The activities of the international postal service, other than letter mail, are governed by Special Agreements. These are binding only for the countries which have acceded to them. There are eight such Agreements:

1. Agreement concerning Insured Letters and Boxes.
2. Agreement concerning Postal Parcels.
3. Agreement concerning Postal Money Orders and postal Travellers' Cheques.
4. Agreement concerning Giro Transfers.
5. Agreement concerning Cash on Delivery items.
6. Agreement concerning the Collection of Bills.
7. Agreement concerning the International Savings Bank Service.

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

8. Agreement concerning Subscriptions to Newspapers and Periodicals.

BUDGET

The Executive Council fixed 16,160,000 Swiss francs (U.S. $6,542,500 at August 31st, 1977) as the maximum figure for annual gross expenditure in the year 1978. This sum, and any extraordinary expenses, are borne by members. Members are listed in eight classes setting out the proportion they should pay.

PUBLICATIONS

UPU publications are listed in Liste des publications du Bureau international; all are in French, some also in English, Arabic and Spanish.

Union Postale (bi-monthly review): published simultaneously in French, German, English, Arabic, Chinese, Spanish and Russian.

WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION—WHO

Avenue Appia, 1211 Geneva 27, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 60 61.

Established in 1948 as the central agency directing international health work. Of its many activities, the most important single aspect is technical co-operation with national health administrations, particularly in the developing countries.

MEMBERS

150 members: see Table on pages 25-27.

ORGANIZATION

(as of September 1977)

WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

President: Dr. SIONE TAPA (Tonga).

Vice-Presidents: Dr. I. HUSAIN (Iraq), Dr. E. SCHULTHEISZ (Hungary), H. K. M. KYEMBA (Uganda), Dr. C. L. ORTEGA (Argentina), S. OBEYSEKERA (Sri Lanka).

Generally meets in Geneva, once a year. Responsible for policy making, and the programme and budget for the year; appoints the Director-General, admits new members and reviews budget contributions.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

The Board is composed of thirty health experts designated by, but not representing, their governments. It meets at least twice a year to review the Director-General's programme, which it forwards to the Assembly with any recommendations that seem necessary. It also advises on questions referred to it by the Assembly.

Chairman: Dr. SIXTE BUTERA (Rwanda).

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: Dr. HALFDAN MAHLER (Denmark).

Deputy Director-General: Dr. ADEOYE T. LAMBO (Nigeria).

Assistant Directors-General: Dr. CH'EN WEN-CHIEH (People's Republic of China), Dr. STANISLAS FLACHE (France), WARREN W. FURTH (U.S.A.), Dr. IVAN D. LADNYI (U.S.S.R.), Dr. DAVID TEJADA-DE-RIVERO (Peru).

REGIONAL DIRECTORS

Africa: Dr. A. QUENUM, P.O.B. 6, Brazzaville, Congo.

Americas: Dr. HECTOR R. ACUÑA, Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, 525 23rd St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037, U.S.A.

Eastern Mediterranean: Dr. A. H. TABA, P.O.B. 1517, Alexandria, Egypt.

Europe: Dr. LEO KAPRIO, 8 Scherfigsvej, Copenhagen Ø, Denmark.

South-East Asia: Dr. V. T. HERAT GUNARATNE, Indraprastha Estate, Ring Rd., New Delhi 1, India.

Western Pacific: Dr. FRANCISCO J. DY, P.O.B. 2932, Manila, Philippines.

Each of WHO's six geographical regions has its own organization consisting of a regional committee composed of the member states and associate members in the region concerned, and a regional office staffed by experts in various fields of health.

FUNCTIONS

WHO's objective is stated in the constitution as "the attainment by all people's of the highest possible level of health".

It acts as the central authority directing international health work, and establishes relations with professional groups and government health authorities on that basis.

It supports, on request from member states, programmes to control or eradicate disease, train health workers best suited to local needs and strengthen national health systems. Aid is provided in emergencies and natural disasters.

A global programme of collaborative research and exchange of scientific information is carried out in co-operation with leading national institutions. Particular stress is laid on the widespread communicable diseases of the tropics, and the countries directly concerned are assisted in developing their research capabilities.

It keeps communicable diseases under constant surveillance, formulates health regulations for international travel, and sets standards for the quality control of drugs, vaccines and other substances affecting health.

It collects and disseminates health data and carries out statistical analyses and comparative studies in such diseases as cancer, heart disease and mental illness.

It receives reports on drugs observed to have shown adverse reactions in any country, and transmits the information to other Member States. All available information on effects on human health of the pollutants in the environment is critically reviewed and published.

Co-operation among scientists and professional groups is encouraged, and the organization may propose international conventions and agreements. It assists in developing an informed public opinion on matters of health.

The Assembly organizes its own meetings, membership and budget and may establish committees, research institutions and the like. It acts by issuing instructions to the Executive Board and to the Director-General.

In external relations, it may bring specific matters of health to the attention of the members and of international organizations.

The Board is responsible for putting into effect the decisions and policies of the Assembly.

It is also empowered to take emergency measures in case of epidemics or disasters.

ACTIVITIES IN 1977

The campaign to eradicate smallpox made further progress during the year. Three countries in Asia (Bhutan, India and Nepal) and nine in Central Africa (Burundi, Cameroon, the Central African Empire, Chad, the Congo, Equatorial Guinea, Gabon, Rwanda and Zaire) were certified by WHO inquiry commissions to have eradicated the disease. In eastern Africa, however, the disease still maintained its foothold in Somalia. Special case search activities were carried out in Somalia and the two countries bordering it, Kenya and Ethiopia. By mid-September, a total of 3,132 cases of smallpox had been reported to WHO—3,127 of them from Somalia and five from northern Kenya.

The World Health Assembly met in May and adopted a budget of U.S. $165 million for WHO's work in 1978. Other decisions taken by the Assembly included the following:

Social target: The Assembly decided that the main social target of WHO in the coming decades should be the attainment by all citizens of the world by the year 2000 of a level of health that will permit them to lead a socially and economically productive life.

Economies in budget: The Assembly approved proposals for the phased reduction of posts and of certain establishment and other costs, including the phasing out of projects that have outlived their utility, in order to make available $41 million for new and expanded programmes during 1978-81.

Nutrition problems: The Assembly recognized that malnutrition was "one of the major health problems in the world" and that "dietary deficits in the developing countries and excesses and imbalances in developed countries" were affecting the health of populations in both groups of countries. Governments were urged to give high priority to food and nutrition problems within their health programmes.

Primary health care teams: More effective use should be made of nursing and midwifery personnel by involving them, together with other members of the health team, in the planning and management of primary health care and vaccination programmes and as teachers and supervisors of primary health care workers.

Toxic effects of chemicals: WHO should accelerate and make more effective the evaluation of health risks from exposure to chemicals and promote the use of experimental and epidemiological methods that will produce internationally comparable results.

Tropical diseases: The Assembly noted with satisfaction the progress made towards the establishment of WHO's Special Programme for Research and Training in Tropical Diseases, and the development of its initial activities in co-operation with the UNDP, the World Bank and member states.

Cancer: The Assembly requested the continuation of efforts on cancer control and research, training of qualified cancer specialists, and the establishment of favourable conditions for exchanges of experience on all aspects of the problem.

Traditional medicine: The Assembly approved WHO's efforts to initiate studies on the use of traditional systems of medicine in conjunction with modern medicine, and urged interested governments to give adequate importance to the utilization of their traditional systems of medicine with appropriate regulations as suited to their national health systems.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Health legislation: The Assembly requested the Director-General to strengthen WHO's programme in the field of health legislation with a view to assisting member states, upon their request, in the development of appropriate health legislation adapted to their needs.

INTERNATIONAL AGENCY FOR RESEARCH ON CANCER

150 Cours Albert Thomas, 69008 Lyon, France

Members: Australia, Belgium, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, U.S.A.

Director: Prof. JOHN HIGGINSON (U.S.A.).

Established in 1965 as a self-governing body within the framework of WHO, the Agency organizes international research on cancer. It has its own laboratories and runs a programme of research on the environmental factors causing cancer.

WORLD HEALTH FOUNDATIONS

The WHO has a formal agreement with each of the members of the Federation of World Health Foundations (see page 349).

- Full catalogue of publications supplied free on request.
- World Health* (monthly): illustrated magazine for the general public.
 - WHO Chronicle* (monthly): gives accounts of conferences, meetings of committees and field activities.
 - Technical Report Series*: reports of committees, study groups.
 - Public Health Papers*: contributions to the study of branches of public health.
 - Monograph Series*: technical guides on specific subjects serving as textbooks for the postgraduate worker.
 - Bulletin of WHO*: the scientific periodical of the Organization, published in two volumes annually, each consisting usually of 6 numbers.

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

Aid to strife-torn areas: In separate resolutions, the Assembly requested the Director-General to continue and intensify WHO's assistance to Lebanon, Cyprus, Cambodia, Laos and Viet-Nam, as well as to refugees and displaced persons in the Middle East.

FINANCE

The regular budget is provided by assessment of member states and associate members. An additional fund for specific projects is provided by voluntary contributions from members and other sources. Funds are received from the UN Development Programme for particular projects and from UNFPA for appropriate programmes.

WORLD INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY ORGANIZATION—WIPO

32 Chemin des Colombettes, 1211 Geneva 20, Switzerland

WIPO was established by a Convention signed in Stockholm in 1967, which came into force in 1970. It became a specialized agency of the UN in December 1974.

MEMBERS

78 members: see Table on pages 25-27.

AIMS

1. To promote the protection of intellectual property throughout the world through co-operation among states and, where appropriate, with other international organizations.
2. To centralize the administration of the 11 Unions which deal with legal and technical aspects of intellectual property. Each Union is founded on a multilateral treaty.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

while four more treaties were yet to come into force as at October 1976.

Intellectual property comprises two main branches:

ACTIVITIES

ASSISTANCE TO DEVELOPING COUNTRIES

The industrial field has a high priority in development; industrial property helps to stimulate inventive activity and the use of more efficient methods of industrial production, and is therefore an important factor in promoting industrial development. It also assists the transfer of technology to the developing countries.

WIPO Permanent Legal-Technical Programme for the Acquisition by Developing Countries of Technology Related to Industrial Property: f. 1973; directed by a Permanent Committee composed of representatives of 47 states, both developing and industrialized. Its objective is to improve access to inventions, technology and trademarks for the developing countries.

The permanent committee plans and assists projects, which include seminars; publications; drafting of model laws; forming collections of foreign patent documents on recent inventions; training; assistance with development of government institutions administering industrial property and related laws.

WIPO Permanent Programme for Development Co-operation related to Copyright and Neighbouring Rights: f. 1976; directed by a Permanent Committee composed of 35 states, both developing and industrialized. Its objectives are to encourage in developing countries intellectual creation in the literary, scientific and artistic domains, to promote and facilitate the dissemination in developing countries, under fair and reasonable conditions, of intellectual creations, protected by the rights of authors (copyright) and by the rights of performing artists, producers of phonograms and broadcasting organizations (neighbouring rights) and to assist in the strengthening of national institutions in the fields of copyright and neighbouring rights.

WIPO grants fellowships to nationals of developing countries, and assigns experts to projects in their field. Regional seminars are held once or twice a year.

LEGAL AND TECHNICAL

Revision of treaties; revision of classifications of goods and services; preparation for entry into force of new treaties, and for other possible new international instruments.

Paris Union Committee for International Co-operation in Information Retrieval among Patent Offices (ICIREPAT): concerned mainly with countries whose patent offices carry out an examination of the novelty and other criteria for granting a patent to an invention.

International Patent Documentation Centre (INPADOC): Vienna, Austria; f. 1972; computer storage of bibliographic data on patent documents; access to the data is given to patent offices, industry and research and development institutions.

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU

The secretariat of WIPO and all the Unions. It is controlled by the member states assembled in the General industrial property, chiefly in inventions, trademarks and designs, and copyright, chiefly in literary, musical, artistic, photographic and cinematographic works

Assembly and Conference of WIPO, and in the separate Assemblies and Conferences of Representatives held by its constituent Unions. The Paris and Berne Unions elect Executive Committees from among their members and the joint membership of these two Committees constitutes the Co-ordination Committee of WIPO.

The International Bureau prepares the meetings of the various bodies of WIPO and the Unions, mainly through the provision of reports and working documents. It organizes the meetings themselves, and sees that the decisions of the meetings are communicated to all concerned, and as far as they affect the Bureau, that they are carried out.

The International Bureau carries out projects and initiates new ones to promote international co-operation in the field of intellectual property. It acts as an information service and publishes reviews. It is also the depositary of most of the treaties administered by WIPO.

Director-General: Dr. ARPAD BOGSCH (U.S.A.).

Deputy Directors-General: KLAUS PFANNER, KETTY-LINA LIGUER-LAUBHOUET, FELIX SVIRIDOV.

SERVICES

International registration of trademarks: operating since 1893; by January 1977 over 450,000 registrations and renewals of trademarks had been made, of which 10,400 were made during 1976; publ. Les Marques internationales (monthly).

International deposit of industrial designs: operating since 1928; by January 1977 over 64,200 deposits had been made, of which 2,400 were made during 1976; publ. Les Dessins et Modèles internationaux (monthly).

International registration of appellations of origin: operating since 1966; by January 1977 over 600 appellations had been registered; publ. Les Appellations d'origine (irreg.).

THE UNIONS

International Union for the Protection of Industrial Property (Paris Union): the treaty was signed in Paris in 1883 and last revised in 1967; member states must accord the same protection to the inventions, trademarks and other subject matters of industrial property of the nationals of other member states as to their own.

It contains provisions concerning the conditions under which a state may license the use of a patent in its territory; for example, that the owner of the patent does not exploit it to unfair advantage in that country. Mems. 88 states.

International Union for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works (Berne Union): the treaty was signed in Berne in 1886 and last revised in 1971; member states must accord the same protection to the copyright of the nationals of other member states as to its own. The treaty also prescribes minimum standards of protection, for example, that copyright protection generally continues throughout the author's life and for 50 years after. It includes special provision for the developing countries. Mem. 71 states.

OTHER AGREEMENTS

Signatories of the agreements form unions similar to those described above.

International Protection of Industrial Property:

Madrid agreement, of April 14th, 1891, for the repression of false or deceptive indications of source of goods.

Madrid Agreement, of April 14th, 1891, concerning the international registration of marks.

WORLD METEOROLOGICAL ORGANIZATION—WMO

41 ave. Giuseppe Motta, 1211 Geneva 20, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 64 00.

The WMO started activities and was recognized as a Specialized Agency of the UN in 1951, aiming to improve the exchange of weather information and its application.

MEMBERS

146 members, of which one is suspended; see Table on pages 25-27.

ORGANIZATION

(as at September 1977)

WORLD METEOROLOGICAL CONGRESS

Supreme organ of WMO; convened every four years; all members represented; adopts regulations, approves policy, programme and budget. Eighth meeting: April 1979.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Composed of twenty-four members; meets at least yearly to prepare studies and recommendations for the Congress; supervises the implementation of Congress resolutions and regulations; informs members on technical matters and offers advice.

President: M. F. TAHA (Egypt).

REGIONAL ASSOCIATIONS

Members are grouped in six Regional Associations, whose task is to co-ordinate meteorological activity within their regions and to examine questions referred to them by the Executive Committee. Sessions are held at least once every four years.

Africa . . . President: C. A. ABAYOMI (Nigeria).

Asia . . . Acting President: ABDUL GHANI J. AL-SULTAN (Iraq).

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: Dr. D. A. DAVIES (United Kingdom).
Deputy Secretary-General: R. SCHNEIDER (Switzerland).

The administrative, documentary and information centre; undertakes special technical studies; produces publications; organizes meetings of WMO constituent bodies; acts as a link between the meteorological services of the world, and provides information for the general public.

South America President: R. VENERANDO PEREIRA (Brazil).

North and Central America President: D. O. VICKERS (Jamaica).

South-West Pacific President: R. L. KINANTAR (Philippines).

Europe . . . Acting President: Dr. R. CZELNAI (Hungary).

TECHNICAL COMMISSIONS

The Technical Commissions, composed of experts, nominate their own members. Sessions are held at least once every four years.

Commission for Basic Systems (CBS) President: O. LÖNNQVIST (Sweden).

Commission for Special Applications of Meteorology and Climatology (CoSAMC) President: H. E. LANDSBERG (U.S.A.).

Hydrology (CHy) President: E. G. POPOV (U.S.S.R.).

Marine Meteorology (CMM) President: K. P. VASILIEV (U.S.S.R.).

ACTIVITIES

WORLD WEATHER WATCH PROGRAMME

Combining facilities and services provided by member states, its primary purpose is that all members may obtain meteorological information enabling them to maintain efficient meteorological services.

Global Observing System: simultaneous observations are made by 9,300 land stations, 3,000 aircraft and 7,500 ships, and information is received from meteorological satellites. About 100 members have equipment to receive picture transmissions from the satellites.

Global Data Processing System: consists of world meteorological centres at Melbourne (Australia), Moscow (U.S.S.R.) and Washington, D.C. (U.S.A.), 23 regional meteorological centres and the national centres. The analyses are designed to assist the members in making local and specialized forecasts.

Global Telecommunications System: consists of (a) the Main Trunk Circuit and its branches, (b) the regional telecommunications networks, and (c) the national telecommunications networks. The system operates through 149 national meteorological centres, 28 Regional Telecommunications Hubs and three World Meteorological Centres.

Services in the regions outside any national territory (outer space, ocean areas and Antarctica) are maintained on a voluntary basis by member countries.

Executive Committee Panel of Experts on Satellites: co-ordinates work on satellites; examines and records plans for new satellites and satellite operations in the member countries; compares plans in relation to WMO programmes, making recommendations to the WMO institutions; considers ways in which the processing and distribution of information from satellites may best meet the needs of member countries.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

Research: The Commission for Atmospheric Sciences facilitates the exchange of research results and information, and organizes joint research projects between member countries.

WMO-sponsors two international research and monitoring projects, one on the stratospheric ozone layer and one on atmospheric carbon dioxide. An organized programme of research in tropical meteorology (including cyclones, monsoons and droughts) has been initiated, and intensive research efforts are being co-ordinated with a view to improving weather prediction. A World Climate Programme is being planned to improve knowledge of the natural variability of climate and the effects of human activities on climate to assist decision-makers in planning and co-ordinating climate-sensitive activities.

Global Atmospheric Research Programme (GARP): organized jointly with the International Council for Scientific Unions (ICSU, page 223) to study the physical and mathematical basis of weather prediction and climate variation. Following several successful regional experiments, preparations are being made for a world-wide experiment known as the First GARP Global Experiment, in 1978-79.

Weather Modification Programme: approved in 1975 by the Seventh World Meteorological Congress; an advisory service for member governments; a register of activities and experiments on weather modification is to be kept; a Precipitation Enhancement Project (PEP) is planned over several years, to examine the feasibility of artificially increasing rainfall.

METEOROLOGICAL APPLICATIONS AND ENVIRONMENT PROGRAMME

Principal aims are to increase the contribution made by meteorology to economic and social progress, to the protection of life and property and to environmental conservation. WMO engages in international projects or in joint action with other international organizations, and special bodies are set up for the purpose of this programme.

The applied meteorology projects often require consultation with a wider variety of fields of study, including agriculture, environmental studies, hydrology and oceanography.

Applications to agriculture: the study of weather and climate as they affect agriculture, the selection of crops and their protection from disease and deterioration in storage, soil conservation, phenology and physiology of crops and farm animals; the Commission for Agricultural Meteorology supervises the applications projects and also advises the Secretary-General in his efforts to co-ordinate activities in support of food production. Work is also in progress on a special activity in agrometeorology in support of food production.

Applications and services to ocean activities: to contribute to safety and efficiency of ocean activities; supervised by the Commission for Marine Meteorology; the Executive Committee is advised on meteorological aspects of ocean activities by a Panel of Experts for this purpose. WMO bodies collaborate with the Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission (page 366), particularly in ocean services, marine pollution and oceanic research.

United Nations (Specialized Agencies)

Applications to environmental conservation: (a) concern the effects of weather and climate on human ecology, human health and environmental pollution; (b) relate meteorology and climatology to town planning, land transport and the construction industry; supervised by the Commission for Special Applications of Meteorology and Climatology; also, the Executive Committee is advised by a Panel of Experts on Environmental Pollution.

The meteorological aspects of certain energy questions are also considered within this category: solar energy, wind energy, heat release into the atmosphere and the meteorological aspects of the siting of nuclear power plant and its operation.

HYDROLOGY AND WATER RESOURCES DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

Promotes international co-operation in evaluating water resources and assists in their development through systematic formation of hydrological services; supervised by the Commission for Hydrology.

WMO collaborates with other international efforts such as the International Hydrological Programme of UNESCO.

Operational Hydrology Programme: concerns standardization of all aspects of hydrological data, including instruments, methods of observation and transmission, systems of forecasting and their application to water resources projects.

National hydrological services of the world are co-ordinated by the WMO Regional Associations and by the Advisory Committee for Operational Hydrology.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING PROGRAMME

Activities include surveys of personnel requirements, the development of appropriate training programmes, the establishment of regional training centres, the organization of training courses, seminars and conferences and the preparation of training materials in the form of compendia of lecture, notes and problems workbooks. Other supporting activities are the provision of fellowships, of which some 400 are awarded each year, the provision of advice on the availability of suitable training facilities and access to a Library of Training Materials for meteorological and related instruction.

The focal point of WMO's education and training activities is the Panel of Experts on Education and Training set up by the Executive Committee.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION PROGRAMME

United Nations Development Programme: WMO provides assistance in the development of national meteorological and hydrological services, in the application of meteorological data to national economic development and in the training of personnel. Assistance in the form of expert missions, fellowships and equipment was provided to 75 countries in 1976 at a cost of $6.8 million under the UNDP.

Voluntary Assistance Programme: WMO assists members in implementing the World Weather Watch Programme to develop an integrated observing and forecasting system. Member governments contribute equipment, services and fellowships for training. In 1976, 62 projects were completed and a further 210 were in progress in this programme.

WHO also carries out assistance projects under Fund-in-Trust arrangements, financed by national governments, either for activities in their own country or in a beneficiary country. Four such projects, at a cost of half a million dollars, were in progress in 1976.

BUDGET

(1976-79)

WHO is financed by contributions from members on a proportional scale of assessment. Outside this budget, WHO is implementing a number of projects as executing agency for the UNDP or else under trust fund arrangements.

OTHER BODIES

UNITED NATIONS CHILDREN'S FUND—UNICEF

6th Floor, 866 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Established in 1946 by the General Assembly primarily to carry out post-war relief in Europe, UNICEF is mainly concerned today with the welfare of children in the developing countries.

ORGANIZATION

EXECUTIVE BOARD

The governing body of UNICEF meets once a year to determine policy, review the work of the organization, consider requests and make commitments for aid.

Members: thirty governments, ten of which are elected each year for a three-year term by ECOSOC.

SECRETARIAT

The Executive Director of UNICEF is appointed by the UN Secretary-General in consultation with the Executive Board. The administration of UNICEF is the responsibility of the Executive Director, under policy directives laid down by the Executive Board, and under a broad authority delegated to the Executive Director by the Secretary-General. UNICEF has over 40 field offices in which about three quarters of its staff are located.

NATIONAL COMMITTEES

UNICEF's direct link with the public is through some 30 National Committees, almost all in industrialized countries.

ACTIVITIES

UNICEF co-operates with developing countries by assisting in the planning and design of services benefiting children; delivery of supplementary supplies, equipment and other aid for extending those services; and providing of funds to strengthen national training of personnel. UNICEF shares experience and information with other funding organizations on the need for greater support for services benefiting children as part of national development plans. UNICEF provides assistance on the basis of mutually agreed priorities for children; the governments concerned determine their own priority areas within the possibilities offered by UNICEF. Priority is given by UNICEF to aiding children in the lower income countries and the lower socio-economic groups.

The basic services approach adopted by UNICEF in 1976 emphasizes the importance of bringing to the underserved areas of developing countries primary health care, formal and non-formal education, improved nutrition and family food supply, clean water and sanitation, responsible parenthood, and improvement in the lives of women and girls. Local leadership, community participation and good communications with government officials are key factors in accomplishing these objectives. UNICEF also provides emergency relief, whenever possible using its aid as a means of starting long-term improvements in services for mothers and children.

UNICEF has been designated by the United Nations General Assembly as the leading agency of the UN system responsible for co-ordinating the activities of the International Year of the Child to be observed in 1979. The main purpose of the Year is to generate far-reaching and sustained activities in all countries on behalf of children.

FINANCE

UNICEF is financed by voluntary contributions from governments, and from organizations and individuals. UNICEF aims to achieve an annual revenue of $200 million by 1979, the International Year of the Child.

Revenue totalled approximately $135 million in 1976.

Of that, $106 million was for general resources and $29 million for specific purposes. The revenue came from the following sources: 72.6 per cent directly from 133 governments and territories; 14.3 per cent from private sources (fund-raising campaigns, greeting card profits, and individual donations); and 13.1 per cent from the UN system and from miscellaneous sources. UNICEF also administered contributions in kind in 1976, valued at $29 million, mainly in the form of children's foods. Expenditure in 1976 amounted to $112.9 million consisting of $100.3 million for assistance and $11.7 million for administrative services (gross).

ACTIVITIES

SERVICES FOR PALESTINE REFUGEES

Since 1950, UNRWA has provided relief (including food), health and education services for the needy among the Palestine refugees in Lebanon, Syria, east Jordan, the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. For UNRWA's purposes, a Palestine refugee is one whose normal residence was in Palestine for a minimum of two years before the 1948 conflict and who, as a result of the Arab-Israeli hostilities, lost his home and means of livelihood. To be eligible for assistance, a refugee must reside in one of the "host" countries in which UNRWA operates and be in need. A refugee's children and grandchildren who fulfil certain criteria are also eligible for UNRWA assistance. In June 1977, the registered refugee population numbered 1,706,484, including 597,491 registered in 61 refugee camps.

Whereas the vast majority (1.5 million) of the refugees are eligible for health services and, in the appropriate age-groups, for education, only 48.7 per cent receive rations. Over the years an effective community health service has been built up with technical guidance from WHO and there has never been a major epidemic among the refugees in UNRWA's care. An education system has been developed with technical guidance from UNESCO and in the 1976-77 school year there were 296,393 children in 595 elementary and preparatory schools operated by UNRWA. More than 26,000 refugees have already passed through UNRWA's eight vocational centres (capacity: 4,141 trainees) for training either as teachers or in a variety of industrial and semi-professional skills; UNRWA has become one of the most important channels for this type of technical assistance in the Middle East. Since 1950 UNRWA has also served 333 million meals to young children and distributed about 35,000 tons of clothing.

AID TO DISPLACED PERSONS

After the renewal of Arab-Israeli hostilities in the Middle East in June 1967, hundreds of thousands of people fled from the fighting and Israeli-occupied areas to east Jordan, Syria and Egypt. UNRWA provided emergency relief for displaced refugees and was additionally empowered by a UN General Assembly resolution to provide "humanitarian assistance, as far as practicable, on an emergency basis and as a temporary measure" for those persons other than Palestine refugees who were newly displaced and in urgent need. In practice, UNRWA has lacked the funds to aid the other displaced persons and the main burden of supporting them has fallen on the Arab governments concerned. The Agency, as requested by the Government of Jordan in 1967 and on that Government's behalf, distributes rations to displaced persons in east Jordan who are not registered refugees of 1948. In June 1977, for example, 193,943 displaced persons in east Jordan were issued with rations.

With the agreement of the Israeli Government, UNRWA has continued to provide assistance for registered refugees living in the Israeli-occupied territories of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

United Nations (Other Bodies)

DISTURBANCES IN THE LEBANON

After the ceasefire in October 1976, the Agency was able to restore most of its relief services in the Lebanon, although welfare assistance on an emergency basis continued to be provided for the 30,000 refugees. About 30 per cent of the repairs to Agency installations other than schools has been completed and plans were in hand in 1977 for the repair of damaged shelters. At the request of the Lebanese Government the Agency is planning to build a new camp in southern Lebanon to accommodate 1,700 families (about 8,500 refugees) at an estimated cost of $6 million, of which $3.3 million have been pledged. When more land is available, the camp will be expanded to accommodate an additional 1,300-2,300 families. The total need is for about $12 million to house up to 4,000 families (two-thirds of the refugees). Damaged schools were quickly repaired and the majority were re-opened in 1976-77. UNRWA's curative and preventive medical programmes were fully restored. Its headquarters continued to operate temporarily in Amman and Vienna but it is intended to reunite the two in Beirut.

FINANCE

BUDGET

As at August, UNRWA's budget for 1977 was $134 million.

For the most part, UNRWA's income is made up of voluntary contributions, almost entirely from governments, the remainder being provided by voluntary agencies, business corporations and private sources. However, the cost of the Agency's 120 international staff is funded by the UN, WHO and UNESCO.

In recent years financial crises have posed serious threats of cuts in services, and in 1977 the Agency faced a budget deficit of extraordinary magnitude. The rise in prices of all supplies, currency instability and local increases in the cost of living have all contributed to this effect. The agency was expected to have a deficit of $17.6 million in 1977 and was obliged to reduce the basic ration in the last quarter of 1977 and to eliminate some school and health facility construction.

DISPLACED PERSONS

Apart from the Palestine refugees of 1948 who are registered with UNRWA and who are UNRWA's main concern (see table at left), considerable numbers of people have, since 1967, been displaced within the UNRWA areas of operations, and others have had to leave these areas. According to government estimates there are 210,000 displaced persons in East Jordan and 125,000 in Syria.

UNITED NATIONS PEACE KEEPING MISSIONS IN THE MIDDLE EAST

Headquarters at Government House, Jerusalem

Chief Co-ordinator: Lieut.-Gen. ENSIO P. H. SILASVUO (Finland).

UNITED NATIONS TRUCE SUPERVISION ORGANIZATION—UNTSO

Set up in 1948 to supervise the truce called for by the Security Council in Palestine.

Chief of Staff: Maj.-Gen. E. A. ERSKINE (Ghana).

COMPOSITION

As at September 1977 there were 289 Military Observers from the following countries:

Argentina	Denmark	New Zealand
Australia	Finland	Norway
Austria	France	Sweden
Belgium	Ireland	U.S.S.R.
Canada	Italy	U.S.A.
Chile	Netherlands

ACTIVITIES

Military observation duties have been carried out since 1948, and UNTSO has assisted in the application of the 1949 Armistice Agreements.

The military observers are deployed along the Israeli and Syrian Forward Defended Localities in the Golan Heights, where they now operate as part of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF), and in the Sinai peninsula in the area of the buffer zone, in conjunction with the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF).

Since April 1972 observers have been placed in southern Lebanon to carry out observation duties with regard to the cease-fire in the Israel-Lebanon sector.

UNTSO maintains field stations and liaison offices in Amman, Beirut, Cairo, Damascus, Gaza, Naqoura and Tiberias.

FINANCE

UNTSO expenditures are covered by the regular budget of the United Nations. For the biennial period 1976-77, a sum of $20,218,700 was appropriated by the General Assembly.

UNITED NATIONS EMERGENCY FORCE—UNEF
Headquarters at Ismailia, Egypt

Set up in October 1973 by Security Council resolution to supervise the ceasefire and troop withdrawals called for by the Council in the Egypt-Israel sector. The original mandate of the Force had effect for six months and has since been extended by Security Council resolutions until October 24th, 1977.

Commander: Maj.-Gen. RAIS ABIN (Indonesia).

Deputy Commander, Chief of Staff: Brig.-Gen. STIG NIHLÉN (Sweden).

TOTAL	4,174

ACTIVITIES

Following the conclusion of the agreement of January 18th, 1974, and later of the agreement of September 4th, 1975, UNEF supervised the redeployment of Egyptian and Israeli forces and established buffer zones as provided in those agreements.

The Force continues to supervise the ceasefire and to man, patrol and control the zone of disengagement and, with the assistance of UNTSO Military Observers, it conducts regular and special inspections of the Israeli and Egyptian areas of limited armaments and forces, as well as inspections of other areas agreed by the parties.

FINANCE

In addition to previous expenditures totalling $269.6 million up to October 24th, 1976, for UNEF, including UNDOF, the General Assembly appropriated $76.3 million for UNEF for the period from October 25th, 1976, to October 24th, 1977, and $9.8 million for UNDOF for the period from October 25th, 1976, to May 31st, 1977. It authorized the Secretary-General to enter into commitments for UNDOF at a rate not to exceed $1.36 million per month for the period from June 1st to October 24th, 1977, inclusive.

UNITED NATIONS
DISENGAGEMENT OBSERVER FORCE—UNDOF
Headquarters at Damascus, Syria

Established for an initial period of six months by a Security Council resolution on May 31st, 1974, following the signature in Geneva of a disengagement agreement between Syrian and Israeli forces. The mandate has since been extended by the Security Council until November 30th, 1977.

Commander: Maj.-Gen. HANNES PHILIPP (Austria).

(May 1977)

Austria	522
Canada	164
Iran	388
Poland	88
UNDOF military observers (detailed from UNTSO)	86

ACTIVITIES

The initial task of the Force was to take over territory evacuated in stages by the Israeli troops, in accordance with the disengagement agreement, to hand over territory to Syrian troops, and to establish an area of separation.

UNDOF continues to man the area of separation, from which Syrian and Israeli forces are excluded; it carries out inspections of the areas of limited armaments and forces, and it uses its best efforts to maintain the cease-fire. The area of separation has been placed under Syrian civil administration.

FINANCE

UNDOF finances are treated in conjunction with those of UNEF (see above).

UNITED NATIONS PEACE-KEEPING FORCE IN CYPRUS—UNFICYP

Headquarters at Nicosia, Cyprus

Set up in March 1964 by Security Council resolution, for a three-month period, subsequently extended to December 15th, 1977, by successive resolutions.

Special Representative of the Secretary-General: JAVIER PÉREZ DE CUÉLLAR (Peru).

Commander: Maj.-Gen. J. J. QUINN (Ireland).

It was reported that the Finnish contingent was to be repatriated at the end of October 1977.

FUNCTIONS

The purpose of the Force has been to keep the peace between the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities pending a resolution of outstanding issues between them, to help maintain law and order, and to promote a return to normal conditions. UNFICYP now also performs functions in relation to the supervision of the ceasefire between the armed forces of Turkey and Cyprus, and in providing humanitarian assistance to refugees and to villages isolated behind military lines. The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees acts as Co-ordinator of UN humanitarian assistance for Cyprus.

FINANCE

The estimated cost to the United Nations for maintaining the Force during the period from June 15th, 1977, to December 15th, 1977, is $12.7 million. The total costs from the beginning of the operation in March 1964 to June 15th, 1977, were $262.3 million.

UNITED NATIONS HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR REFUGEES—UNHCR

Palais des Nations, 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 60 11, 33 10 00, 33 20 00, 33 40 00.

Set up in 1950, the Office of the High Commissioner aims chiefly to provide international protection for refugees and seek permanent solutions to their problems through voluntary repatriation, resettlement in other countries or integration into the country of present residence. The High Commissioner also undertakes special humanitarian tasks for which his Office has particular experience or expertise.

ORGANIZATION

HIGH COMMISSIONER

High Commissioner (1966–78): Prince SADRUDIN AGA KHAN (Iran).

Deputy High Commissioner: CHARLES H. MACE (U.S.A.).

The High Commissioner is elected by the United Nations General Assembly on the nomination of the Secretary-General, and is responsible to the General Assembly and to ECOSOC.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme, established by ECOSOC, gives the High Commissioner policy directives in respect of material assistance programmes, and advice at his request in the field of international protection. It meets once a year, usually at Geneva. Special sessions may be called to consider urgent problems. Members: representatives of thirty-one states.

ADMINISTRATION

Consists of the following divisions: External Affairs (including Fund Raising, Public Information and Secretariat), Protection, Assistance (with five regional sections), Administration and Management. As at August 1st, 1977, there were 34 representatives and 12 correspondents, honorary representatives or consultants in 48 countries.

FUNCTIONS

COMPETENCE

The competence of the High Commissioner extends to any person who, owing to well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality or political opinion, is outside the country of his nationality and is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, remains unwilling to avail himself of the protection of that country; or who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence, is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, is unwilling to return to it. Refugees meeting these conditions are entitled to the protection of the Office of the High Commissioner irrespective of their geographical location. Refugees who are assisted by other United Nations agencies, or who have the same rights or obligations as nationals of their country of residence, are outside the mandate of UNHCR.

INTERNATIONAL PROTECTION

The main objective of international protection, the primary function of UNHCR, is to help refugees acquire the nationality of the country of residence when voluntary repatriation is not applicable, and in the meantime to safeguard their rights and interests and improve their status. UNHCR pursues these objectives through seeking to facilitate naturalization of refugees, promoting the conclusion of inter-governmental legal instruments in favour of refugees and encouraging governments to adopt legal provisions for their benefit.

The main legal instruments concerning refugees are the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees, and the 1967 Protocol which extends provisions of the Convention to new groups of refugees. The application of these two instruments is supervised by UNHCR.

Other legal instruments directly or indirectly affecting the refugees include the 1954 Convention on the Status of Stateless Persons, the 1961 Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, the 1957 Agreement and 1973 protocol relating to Refugee Seamen, the 1959 European Agreement on the Suppression of Visas for Refugees, and the 1969 Convention concerning the Specific Aspects of the Problems of Refugees in Africa.

MATERIAL ASSISTANCE TO REFUGEES
EMERGENCY RELIEF AND SUPPLEMENTARY AID

Emergency relief is provided in the case of new refugee situations when food supplies and medical aid are required on a large scale at short notice. In recent years this has been the case many times in Africa where the World Food Programme has provided considerable food supplies for the refugees' subsistence pending their first harvest.

The UNHCR material assistance programmes are financed from voluntary contributions made by governments and also from non-governmental sources. The financial target of the UNHCR General Programme for 1978 amounts to $35,209,000. The General Programme comprises the former UNHCR Annual Programme and the $2,000,000 Emergency Fund.

Supplementary aid is provided for the neediest refugees and may take the form of supplementary feeding, medical aid, or clothing.

VOLUNTARY REPATRIATION

The Office assists refugees wherever possible to overcome difficulties in the way of their repatriation. In cases where no funds are available for their transportation to their homeland, arrangements for payment of the cost involved may be made by UNHCR under its material assistance programmes.

RESETTLEMENT

From its inception UNHCR has been actively engaged in the promotion of resettlement through emigration, in close co-operation with interested governments, the Inter-governmental Committee for European Migration (ICEM), the United States Refugee Program and voluntary agencies concerned with the resettlement of refugees. The task of UNHCR in this field is to negotiate with governments in an endeavour to obtain suitable resettlement opportunities for those refugees both able-bodied and handicapped who opt for this solution, to encourage governments to liberalize their criteria for the admission of refugees and to draw up special immigration schemes for them wherever possible.

INTEGRATION OF REFUGEES IN THEIR COUNTRY OF RESIDENCE

The object of local integration is to assist refugees to become self-supporting in their country of residence. In Europe, this is done either by granting refugees loans for establishment in agriculture, or by assisting them through vocational training or in other ways to learn a skill, or to establish themselves in gainful occupations. One major form of assistance to help refugees leave camps is to provide them with housing.

The new groups of refugees in Africa and some of the refugees in Asia are mainly assisted through local settlement in agriculture. In Africa consolidation of the settlement of refugees is effected through close co-operation between UNHCR and other members of the UN system which provide development assistance to the areas concerned.

The problem of needy individual refugees seeking employment or educational opportunities in urban areas of Africa, and who are mainly without agricultural background, claims special attention. Efforts to help them are made by the OAU Bureau for the Placement and Education of Refugees, while increased support is being given to special refugee counselling services. These are mainly provided by voluntary agencies in Botswana, Burundi, Ethiopia, Kenya, Lesotho, Senegal, the Sudan and Tanzania, with the assistance of the governments concerned, of UNHCR and of other UN agencies.

FINANCE

Essential complementary assistance outside the current programme, including the Education Account, is financed from Special Trust Funds donated to or channelled through UNHCR. The special tasks which may be undertaken by the High Commissioner are financed separately.

ACTIVITIES, 1975-77

International Protection

The extension of UNHCR's activities into new areas of the world which has characterized the period under review has inevitably led to more widespread responsibilities in the field of protection. Continued efforts have been made to promote accessions to various legal instruments affording protection to refugees, notably the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and the 1967 Protocol, to which the numbers of parties stood respectively at 68 and 63 as of July 31st, 1977. The 1961 Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, which provides for the acquisition by operation of law of the nationality of the Contracting State by children born of stateless parents in its territory, entered into force on December 13th, 1975. The High Commissioner was entrusted by the General Assembly with temporary responsibility for supervising the implementation of this instrument which is designed to help eliminate the perpetuation of refugee status. As of December 1976, it had been ratified by six States. A Protocol extending the scope of the 1957 Agreement relating to Refugee Seamen entered into force on March 30th, 1975, duly ratified by 12 States. The 1957 Agreement was designed to regularize the status of refugee seamen having no country in which they might lawfully stay. Other developments with respect to international refugee law included the progress made towards the establishment of a Convention on Territorial Asylum, for which a plenipotentiary conference was convened by the General Assembly in early 1977.

Urgent action has again been called for in cases of violation of the principles of asylum and non-refoulement, in an effort to avoid the potentially dramatic consequences of such acts. The period has also been marked by successive and energetic interventions by the High Commissioner regarding cases of assassination, abduction and violence to which refugees have been subjected in some countries.

Assistance

Activities under UNHCR's General Programme in 1976-77 benefited some 350,000 refugees, the forms of assistance being those described above. Of total commitments, amounting to $14 million, the largest share was for the local settlement of refugees in Africa, notably that of refugees from Burundj in the United Republic of Tanzania. Needs in Latin America were also very great in view of the onerous care and maintenance expenses incurred in assisting refugees from Chile, admitted temporarily to Argentina and Peru following the events of late 1973. Repeated appeals for resettlement opportunities for these refugees were made by the High Commissioner to governments throughout the world resulting in the departure between October 1973 and December 1975 of over 11,000 persons. Relief aid through the Emergency Fund for which allocations of $1.4 million were made available helped meet urgent needs in Mozambique, Sudan and Zaire. Assistance from Trust Funds mainly included grants for post-primary courses totalling over $1 million from the Refugee Education Account.

Besides the regular programme activities, the High Commissioner was also called upon to pursue or undertake a number of special humanitarian operations in fields in which his Office has acquired particular expertise and experience.

These operations included the co-ordination of United Nations humanitarian assistance for Cyprus, a task assigned to the High Commissioner by the Secretary-General of the United Nations in August 1974, following the events which had resulted in the displacement of one-third of the island's population. By August 31st, 1976, contributions in cash and kind from the international community to help meet the humanitarian needs of both Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot populations, notably in respect of food, medicaments, shelter and equipment, totalled over $57 million. Other United Nations agencies, especially the World Food Programme, World Health Organization and UNICEF also played an important role in the operation.

In Africa, UNHCR has been engaged in a special programme of large-scale assistance, at the request of the General Assembly, to refugees from the former Portuguese territories. The assistance provided has involved measures to facilitate the return home and initial resettlement of large numbers of persons having lived as refugees in neighbouring countries, or displaced within their country through the long years of conflict. Contributions to UNHCR for the programmes in Guinea-Bissau and Mozambique totalled respectively some $4 million and $6 million as of August 31st, 1976. As regards Angola, where assistance on a much larger scale is required, the High Commissioner was designated by the Secretary-General as Co-ordinator of United Nations Humanitarian Assistance. To meet the most immediate needs, the High Commissioner has issued an appeal for $32.5 million in cash and for 48,000 tons of food.

The special operations which UNHCR was called upon to undertake in the Indo-Chinese peninsula included a large-scale resettlement and rehabilitation programme for displaced and uprooted persons in Laos and Viet-Nam, for which needs until the end of 1976 were estimated at $20 million. In addition, UNHCR was called upon in the spring of 1975 to co-operate with UNICEF in a joint emergency relief operation in the southern part of Viet-Nam. Contributions of some $14 million in cash and kind were made available to UNHCR by the international community for the provision of relief commodities.

In Thailand a large-scale programme of relief aid was begun in August 1975 to assist the authorities in meeting the needs of thousands of persons arriving from Cambodia, Laos and Viet-Nam, whose number rose to over 115,000 by the end of the year. Estimated needs for this programme until December 1977 amounted to $6.5 million. A major programme of assistance has also been established for relief assistance to persons displaced from Indo-China arriving in other countries of South-East Asia pending permanent solutions to their situation through voluntary repatriation, resettlement or local settlement where feasible. Needs until the end of 1976 were estimated at $10.2 million. By the end of June 1976, over 35,000 persons had been resettled, including 14,000 from Thailand.

INTERNATIONAL ATOMIC ENERGY AGENCY—IAEA

Kaerntnerring 11, 1010 Vienna, Austria

Telephone: 52 45 11.

Founded in 1957 as an autonomous intergovernmental agency, the IAEA has an agreement giving it responsibility in the United Nations system for international activities concerned with the peaceful uses of atomic energy. It seeks to develop the use of atomic energy, ensuring that it is not used for military purposes. See also the Nuclear Energy Agency of the OECD, EURATOM, and the Inter-American Nuclear Energy Agency.

MEMBERSHIP

110 members: see Table on pages 25-27.

ORGANIZATION

GENERAL CONFERENCE

Consists of representatives of all member states. It convenes each year to participate in the general debate on the Agency's policy and programme. It elects members to the Board of Governors, and approves the appointment of the Director-General; it admits new member states.

President (1977): AKBAR ETEMAD (Iran).

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Consists of 34 member states, 12 designated by the Board of Governors and 22 elected by the General Conference. It is the executive body of the Agency and is responsible to the General Conference. It meets four or five times a year to consider matters proposed to it by member states or the Director-General. It submits the draft budget and programme to the General Conference. Every fourth year it appoints a Director-General subject to approval by the General Conference.

Chairman (1977-78): KHOR ENG HEE (Malaysia).

SECRETARIAT

Consists of approximately 460 professional staff and about 725 general service staff. It is headed by the Director-General who is assisted by four Deputy Directors-General and an Inspector-General. The Secretariat is divided into five departments: Technical Assistance and Publications; Technical Operations; Research and Isotopes; Safeguards and Inspection; Administration.

Director-General (reappointed 1977 for a term of four years): Dr. SIGVARD EKLUND (Sweden).

SCIENTIFIC ADVISORY COMMITTEE

The Committee was set up in 1958 to advise the Board of Governors and the Director-General upon scientific and technical matters. Appointments are generally for three years.

FUNCTIONS

The Agency is authorized:

1. To encourage and assist research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful uses throughout the world; and, if requested to do so, to act as an intermediary for the purposes of securing the performance of services or the supplying of materials, equipment, or facilities by one member of the Agency for another; and to perform any operation or service useful in research on, or development or practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

2. To make provision, in accordance with his Statute for materials services, equipment, and facilities to meet the needs of research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes, including the production of electric power, with due consideration for the needs of the under-developed areas of the world.

3. To foster the exchange of scientific and technical information on peaceful uses of atomic energy.

4. To encourage the exchange and training of scientists and experts in the field of peaceful uses of atomic energy.

5. To establish and administer safeguards designed to ensure that special fissionable and other materials, services, equipment, facilities, and information made available by the Agency or at its request or under its supervision or control are not used in such a way as to further any military purpose; and to apply safeguards, at the request of the parties, to any bilateral or multilateral arrangement or, at the request of a State, to any of that State's activities in the field of atomic energy.

6. To establish or adopt, in consultation and, where appropriate, in collaboration with the competent organs of the United Nations and with the specialized agencies concerned, standards of safety for protection of health and minimization of danger to life and property (including such standards for labour conditions), and to provide for the application of these standards to its own operations as well as to the operations making use of materials, services, equipment, facilities, and information made available by the Agency or at its request or under its control or supervision; and to provide for the application of these standards, at the request of the parties; to operations under any bilateral or multilateral arrangement, or, at the request of a State, to any of that State's activities in the field of atomic energy.

7. To acquire or establish any facilities, plant and equipment useful in carrying out its authorised functions, whenever the facilities, plant, and equipment otherwise available to it in the area concerned are inadequate or available only on terms it deems unsatisfactory.

Information and Materials. Each member should make available such information as would, in the judgment of the member, be helpful to the Agency.

Members may make available to the Agency such quantities of special fissionable materials as they deem advisable and on such terms as shall be agreed with the Agency. On request of the Agency a member shall deliver to another member or group of members such quantities of such materials as the Agency may specify. The Agency shall be responsible for storing and protecting materials in its possession. It shall ensure that these materials shall be safeguarded against hazards of the weather, unauthorised removal or diversion, damage or destruction, including sabotage, and forcible seizure. In storing special fissionable materials in its possession, the Agency shall ensure the geographical distribution of these materials in such a way as not to allow concentration of large amounts of such materials in any one country or region of the world.

Projects and Safeguards. Any member or group of members of the Agency desiring to set up any research project for peaceful purposes may request the assistance of the Agency in securing special fissionable and other materials. For the purpose of considering the request, the Agency may send into the territory of the member or group persons qualified to examine the project.

With respect to any Agency project the Agency shall have the following rights and responsibilities:

1. To examine the design of specialised equipment and facilities, including nuclear reactors, and to approve it only from the viewpoint of assuring that it will not further any military purpose, that it complies with applicable health and safety standards.

2. To require the maintenance and production of operating records and progress reports.

3. To approve the means to be used for the chemical processing of irradiated materials solely to ensure that this chemical processing will not lend itself to diversion of materials for military purposes and will comply with applicable health and safety standards.

4. To send into the territory inspectors who shall have access at all times to all places and data and relevant persons.

ACTIVITIES

Technical Assistance and Training: Each year the IAEA provides 300 to 400 experts, lecturers and visiting professors to more than 50 developing countries; up to 800 fellowships for individual study and participation in short-term training projects; and supplies equipment up to $3 million to over 50 countries and several regional projects. Regional and inter-regional training courses, demonstration projects and study tour-seminars are regularly held.

Food and Agriculture. In co-operation with FAO, the Agency programme covers research on the use of radiation and isotopes in six fields: plant improvement by induced mutation; control of destructive insects by the sterile-male technique; improvement of livestock nutrition; study of effects of chemical pollution in agriculture and food; preservation of food by irradiation; efficiency of the use of water and fertilizer. Over 200 research contracts and agreements are carried out in over 20 co-ordinated research programmes. In addition, one or two open symposia, 6-8 expert panels and several research co-ordination meetings are held each year; the proceedings are usually published.

Life Sciences. The Agency's programme, in co-operation with WHO, includes projects in the fields of medical applications of radioisotopes and instrumentation, dosimetry for intentional radiation applications and radiation biology. The Agency provides experts and equipment in these fields to member states, awards fellowships for individual study and organizes training courses and study tours, and awards research contracts. Increasing emphasis is given to research and to a joint project with WHO which is concerned with setting up an international network of secondary-standard dosimetry laboratories in the member states.

Physical Sciences. The Agency's programme in physical sciences is designed specifically for practical problems in the use of atomic energy; particularly the introduction of nuclear power into developing countries. Assistance is given in the use of research reactors. Regular international conferences on fission physics, neutron inelastic scattering, and controlled nuclear fusion are held for this purpose. Panel meetings of experts are also frequently convened, usually on topics of special interest to the technical assistance programmes. In co-operation with UNESCO, FAO and other UN organizations, the Agency provides experts to member states in the application of nuclear techniques to water resource investigations. An Isotope Hydrology Laboratory is maintained. Applications of nuclear methods for raw materials exploration and for trace element analysis are being encouraged. Meetings concerned with homodynamics and analytical chemistry of nuclear materials are being sponsored. Analytical quality control programmes involving developing member states are being carried out.

Nuclear Power and Reactors. The Agency provides advice and assistance to member states on the technical feasibility, design, technology and economics of power reactor systems of proven types. It provides also for an exchange of information on advanced nuclear power systems, including advanced concept (fusion, MHD). In the framework of world energy needs and the expected future role to be played by nuclear power, economic studies relating to nuclear power are made.

On the basis of improved methodologies, developed in 1973 to conduct a nuclear market survey in the 14 developing countries, the Agency assists its member states in making long-range generation planning studies to define their nuclear power programmes. Member states can also be advised about nuclear power plant feasibility studies, and are assisted in the exploration and evaluation of uranium reserves.

To assist member states in meeting their nuclear fuel cycle requirement, the Agency has taken up a detailed evaluation of the question at Regional Nuclear Fuel Cycle Centres.

Intensive and repeated training courses are offered on preparation and implementation of nuclear power programmes, as well as on specific relevant techniques.

Information is collected, evaluated and then disseminated on world uranium resources, as well as on power reactor technology and operating experience.

The Agency initiates and co-ordinates research, circulates information and organizes international working groups, panels, training courses and regional study groups.

Nuclear Safety and Environmental Protection. Safety standards, recommendations, guidance, assistance and services to member states are provided with the aim of ensuring the protection of man, property and the environment against any possible harmful effects of radiation arising in the expanding nuclear industry.

Basic safety standards which take account of the recommendations of the International Commission on Radiological Protection (see page 351) have been issued and revised periodically. Regulations for the safe transport of radioactive materials have been formulated which now form the basis for the regulations of all international transport organizations and of member states that are engaged in such international transport.

A system has been established for facilitating the provision of emergency assistance to member states in the event of a serious radiation accident.

Much attention is given to the management of wastes arising in the peaceful uses of nuclear energy with particular emphasis on the nuclear fuel cycle and the problem of safe, long-term storage and disposal of wastes. A code of practice has been prepared for the management of wastes from the mining and milling of uranium and thorium ores and one is under preparation for the management of radioactive wastes from nuclear power plants. In addition, technical reports are being prepared for the storage, handling and on-site transportation of irradiated fuel and components at reactor plants and the factors to be considered in the selection of sites for geological repositories for solid radioactive wastes.

Member states are provided with advice and assistance for the safe siting, design, construction and operation of research reactors, nuclear power plants, and plants storing and processing nuclear materials, as well as with advice on licensing procedures and compliance controls. This objective is pursued simultaneously through advisory missions, the progressive establishment of a coherent and comprehensive set of internationally acceptable safety criteria and guides for nuclear power plants and reprocessing plants, the exchange of information and training.

Dissemination of Information. The International Nuclear Information System (INIS) provides a computerized indexing and abstracting service. Information is collected by member states and international organizations and sent to the IAEA for processing. It is then disseminated in the form of magnetic tapes and a printed abstracting journal, INIS Atomindex. The INIS Clearinghouse provides microfiche copies of many of the documents listed. IAEA also co-operates with the FAO in an information system for agriculture (AGRIS). The IAEA Library has a film lending service. At the Nuclear Data Section, which collaborates with other world centres, neutron data are collected, reviewed and distributed. Up to 15 conferences, symposia and seminars are held a year, and many smaller meetings. Publs. Nuclear Fusion, Atomic Energy Review.

Safeguards. The Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT) requires each of the signatories that has no nuclear weapons to conclude an agreement with the Agency. This agreement prohibits the diversion of nuclear fuels from peaceful uses to nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices. Of the 100 States not possessing nuclear weapons, who have ratified or accepted NPT, 51 have now safeguards agreements in force. The Agency has also signed a similar agreement with EUR-ATOM and its non-nuclear weapon member states, which came into effect in 1977.

Two parties to NPT possessing nuclear weapons have offered to permit the IAEA to apply its safeguards to their nuclear activities, although with certain reservations on those with direct significance for national security. Of these a safeguards agreement with the United Kingdom was signed in 1976, and an agreement with the U.S.A. was expected to be approved by the Board of Governors of the IAEA shortly afterwards.

Twelve of the 21 states signatories to the Treaty for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America (Tlatelolco Treaty) have concluded a safeguards agreement; seven of these agreements are in force. IAEA safeguards are also presently applied in 18 other countries under agreements based on the Agency's Safeguards System.

Pursuant to the various NPT and non-NPT safeguards agreements in force the Agency is now applying safeguards to nuclear material in 87 nuclear power plants, 25 conversion and fabrication plants, 11 pilot fuel fabrication plants, 1 enrichment plant, 3 reprocessing plants, 3 pilot reprocessing plants, 169 research reactors and critical facilities, 12 sub-critical facilities, 43 research and development facilities and 196 separate storage facilities and other locations.

Laboratories. The IAEA operates three laboratories, one in Seibersdorf, Austria, one at the Agency's headquarters in Vienna and one in Monaco devoted to the study of marine radioactivity and other forms of marine pollution. The Seibersdorf and Headquarters Laboratories, working jointly, provide services for many of the Agency's programmes in physics, chemistry, hydrology, nuclear medicine, dosimetry and agriculture.

International Centre for Theoretical Physics, Trieste, Italy: brings together scientists from the developed and the developing countries. With support from the Italian government, the Centre has been operated jointly by the IAEA and UNESCO since 1970. Each year it offers one or more lengthy seminars followed by a research workshop, as well as short topical seminars, training courses, symposia and panels. Independent research is also carried out. The programme concentrates on high-energy and elementary particle physics, solid-state physics, low-energy physics and the theory of nuclear reactions, applicable mathematics, and to a lesser extent on low energy physics and plasma physics.

WORLD FOOD PROGRAMME—WFP

Via delle Terme di Caracalla, 00100 Rome, Italy

WFP is a joint UN-FAO effort to stimulate economic and social development through aid in the form of food and to provide emergency relief. It became operational in January 1963 after parallel resolutions of the UN General Assembly and the FAO Conference to establish it in late 1961.

ORGANIZATION

Committee on Food Aid Policies and Programmes: 30 members, 15 elected by ECOSOC and 15 by FAO.

Joint UN-FAO Administrative Unit: carries out the day-to-day activities of the WFP.

Executive Director: GARSON NATHANIEL VOGEL (Canada).

United Nations (Other Bodies)

Supplying Fissionable Materials: The Agency is empowered by its Statute to serve as an intermediary in arranging the delivery of special fissionable materials, enriched uranium and plutonium, to member states. By June 1976, about 200 transfers of such material, some of them gifts, had been made to 38 recipient countries. Almost all transfers were for research reactors or other research purposes. Contracts have been concluded for the supply of enriched uranium for two power reactors in Mexico and one in Yugoslavia. Supplier states have been Belgium, Canada, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Sweden, the U.S.S.R., the U.K. and the U.S.A. The fund of special fissionable material still available to the Agency for supply to its members is almost 5,000 kilograms of uranium-235 contained in enriched uranium.

BUDGET

The agency is financed by regular and voluntary contributions from member states.

The regular budget for 1976, original appropriation, amounted to U.S. $37,002,000; the regular budget for 1977 was $43,501,000. The target for voluntary contributions to finance the IAEA programme of technical assistance was $5.5 million for 1976 and was to be increased to $6 million in 1977, subject to approval by the General Conference.

The regular budget for 1978 will be $51,379,000.

ACTIVITIES

Member governments of the United Nations and FAO make voluntary contributions of commodities, cash, and services (particularly shipping) to WFP, which uses the food for emergency relief for victims of natural and man-made disasters and for support for economic and social development projects in the developing countries. The food is supplied, for example, as an incentive in development self-help schemes, as part wages in labour-intensive projects of many kinds, particularly in the rural economy, but also in the industrial field, and in support of institutional feeding schemes where the emphasis is mainly on enabling the beneficiaries to have an adequate and balanced diet. Recipient governments are encouraged to take steps to replace the WFP aid as soon as each project, which may be for anything up to five years, comes to an end.

The steep rise in world commodity prices forced the Programme to make severe cuts in its activities during 1973-74. Following the World Food Conference in Rome in November 1974, however, a number of countries, principally Canada, increased their contributions. The pledging target figure of $450 million has been exceeded by more than 50 per cent to $664 million, allowing the Programme considerable expansion. A target of $750 million was agreed for the 1977-78 biennium and a target of $950 million is being asked for 1979-80. Following a new set of priorities the Programme is giving highest priority to Least Developed and Most Seriously Affected Countries and to projects for vulnerable groups and for agricultural development.

United Nations (Other Bodies)

As at June 30th, 1977, 853 development projects in 105 countries had been approved since the beginning of the Programme's operations at a total cost to WFP of $2,917 million. Broken down by region: in Latin America and the Caribbean, 121 projects in 26 countries; in North Africa and the Near East, 161 projects in 11 countries; in West Africa, 177 projects in 26 countries; in Mediterranean Europe and East Africa, 144 projects in 19 countries; in Asia and the Far East, 250 projects in 23 countries. In addition, 309 emergency operations have been undertaken in 88 countries at a total cost to the Programme of $278 million.

BUDGET

As at June 30th, 1977, the resources made available to the Programme through voluntary contributions by governments, including pledges for the period 1977-78, stood at a total of $2,435 million; $1,780 million were in commodities and $655 million in cash and services. A further $194 million worth of food grains was made available to the Programme by signatories of the Food Aid Convention.

WORLD FOOD COUNCIL—WFC

Via delle Terme di Caracalla, 00100 Rome, Italy

Created in December 1974, after efforts over more than thirty years to form a world authority for production and distribution of food supplies.

MEMBERS

The Council has a membership of 36 countries elected in rotation with one-third retiring each year. Serving during 1977:

Argentina	Guatemala	Madagascar	Sri Lanka*
Australia	Hungary*	Mauritania	Sweden*
Bangladesh	Indonesia	Mexico	Thailand
Canada	Iran*	Nigeria	Trinidad and Tobago*
Chad*	Italy*	Pakistan	U.S.S.R.
Cuba	Ivory Coast	Philippines	United Kingdom*
Egypt*	Jamaica	Poland	U.S.A.
France	Japan*	Rwanda	Venezuela*
Germany, Federal Republic	Kenya*	Somalia	Yugoslavia

President: ARTURO R. TANCO (Philippines).

* Countries whose term expired at the end of 1977.

SECRETARIAT

With the help of associated institutions, the Secretariat is to assist the Council in developing the world food strategy, and in keeping a review of the world food situation.

Executive Director (until end of 1977): Dr. JOHN A. HANNAH (U.S.A.).

AIMS

According to the definitive resolution of the 1974 World Food Conference, the Council should provide overall, integrated and continuing attention to co-ordinate policies on food production, nutrition, food security, food trade and food aid, as well as other related matters, among the agencies of the UN.

The Council is to review problems and proposed actions, and recommend actions; it will co-ordinate the activities of the UN in relation to food problems, and co-operate with regional bodies to formulate and follow up the approved policies.

ACTIVITIES

A detailed strategy for food policies was agreed at the World Food Conference in Rome, November 1974. The first and second Ministerial sessions were held in Rome and the third session was held in Manila, Philippines, in June 1977.

Following five days of discussions in Manila, the Council adopted on June 24th, 1977, a communiqué titled A Programme of Action to Eradicate Hunger and Malnutri- tion. Drawing attention to the many failures in the campaign against hunger since the 1974 World Food Conference, the communiqué focused attention on urgent steps necessary to end hunger.

According to the World Food Council, the highest priority actions are: (1) increasing food production in developing countries, (2) creating an international grain reserve as part of a world food security system, (3) increasing and improving food aid, (4) improving nutrition in developing countries and (5) reducing barriers to trade in food between developing and developed countries.

Increasing Food Production. Food Priority Countries (FPCs) is a term by which the World Food Council has identified countries with extraordinarily severe food problems. Since the World Food Conference in 1974, per capita food production increased in developed countries and in a number of developing countries. However, per capita food production has remained the same or actually declined since 1974 in food priority countries.

In Manila, the WFC called for an increase in internal and external investment in food priority countries to increase food production by 4 per cent per year. To accomplish this, the WFC estimates that internal investment (from the FPCs themselves) will have to be increased substantially, and external concessional aid from other countries will have to triple from $2,400 million to $6,500 million per year, out of a global estimate of $8,300 million in external resources needed annually for assistance to developing countries for food production. The current level of total external resources for food production is $3,500 million—less than half the $8,300 million called for.

International Grain Reserve. Delegates to the WFC meeting, including both grain exporters and grain importers, agreed that the current year was the best time to build an international system of grain reserves, as dangerously low stocks of grain have been replenished by good harvests in many parts of the world and stocks are abundant. According to the WFC, it is important that present stocks of grain go into a reserve system.

The final communiqué placed great emphasis in recommending that a new International Grains Agreement be negotiated as soon as possible. The present agreement expires in June 1978. An important feature of the new grains agreement should be an international system of nationally held reserves. The size of the international reserve, and the cost-sharing between grain exporting and importing countries are to be determined through negotiations, but it was agreed that prices would be an important factor in stock management.

International Emergency Reserve. The Seventh Special Session of the UN General Assembly recommended an international emergency food reserve of 500,000 tons. In 1976, allocations for such a reserve totalled only 92,500 tons. At Manila, the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture confirmed a recent U.S. decision to contribute 125,000 tons of grain to such a reserve. Other countries which have also indicated allocations to the International Emergency Reserve are: Sweden (40,000 tons), the Federal Republic of Germany (35,000 tons), Norway (10,000 tons) and the EEC (15,000 tons). Allocations total at present 225,000 tons and some other countries such as Australia, Canada, Denmark and the Netherlands are expected to announce their contribution soon.

Improving Food Aid. The 1974 World Food Conference goal for international food aid was 10 million tons per year. Food aid shipments for the year 1975-76 totalled 6.9 million tons and allocations for the year 1976-77 totalled 8.3 million tons.

Continuity of food aid is as important as its volume to recipient countries. Nevertheless, most food aid is still allocated on a year by year basis, preventing the use of food for long-range development projects in recipient countries. The World Food Council recommended that food aid be increased to the 10 million ton target, that aid be forward-planned for more than one year at a time, that an increasing proportion of aid to countries in serious economic difficulties be in grants rather than loans, and that steps be taken to ensure that food aid should not retard efforts to increase food production in recipient countries.

Improving Nutrition. According to the WFC Secretariat, nutrition—or its opposite, malnutrition—is the one aspect of hunger on which the least progress has been made since the World Food Conference. Malnutrition is a threat in the more prosperous developing countries as well as in the food priority countries.

The World Food Council considers that the waste of human potential involved in continued hunger and malnutrition makes it imperative that attacking those problems cannot await the slow process of overall development. Instead direct intervention, by governments or international agencies, focusing on specific target groups, is necessary. Far from accomplishing this goal, the WFC notes that many nations have not yet even drawn up plans to achieve this.

Reducing Trade Barriers. Developed nations are potentially very large markets for goods produced in developing countries. Unfortunately developed nations have erected many barriers to imports of foodstuffs in order to protect their domestic agriculture. To the chagrin of developing countries who would like to increase trade with developed countries, the domestic agricultural policies of developed countries are usually not negotiable at international conferences on improving trade. The Council recommended, in the context of a progressive expansion and liberalization of trade, that developing countries be provided with increased opportunities for access to the food and agriculture markets of the developed countries. It recommended an improved framework for trade which should, when feasible and appropriate, provide developing countries with a more favourable treatment and minimize import and export restrictions, particularly those which affect developing countries' food supplies and food exports.

UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE ON TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT— UNCTAD

Palais des Nations, 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 60 11, 31 02 11.

UNCTAD was set up as an organ of the UN General Assembly by a resolution of December 1964.

MEMBERS

155 members: see Table on pages 25-27.

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE

Held every four years in different capitals of member states. Fourth session, Nairobi, May 1976.

Secretary-General: GAMANI COREA (Sri Lanka).

TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD

Between Conferences, the continuing work of the organization is carried out by the Trade and Development Board together with its various committees and subsidiary bodies. Eighth Special Session: April-May 1977; seventeenth regular session: August-September 1977.

MAIN COMMITTEES

The Board has six main committees: on commodities, manufactures, invisibles and financing related to trade, shipping, transfer of technology, and economic co-operation and integration among developing countries; there is also a special committee on preferences.

COMMODITY CONFERENCES

As required UNCTAD convenes commodity conferences.

AIMS

UNCTAD aims to evolve a co-ordinated set of policies, to be adopted by all its member states, designed to accelerate the economic development of the developing countries. UNCTAD's concern covers the entire spectrum of policies in both developed and developing countries which influence the external trade and payments and economic development of developing countries.

ACTIVITIES

Currently, UNCTAD's major preoccupation is an integrated programme for commodities, designed to stabilize prices at remunerative and just levels while also ensuring supplies. Negotiations for commodity agreements for a large number of products are under way, as part of a single exercise, from September 1976 to the end of 1978. An UNCTAD conference for negotiations on a common fund for the financing of buffer stocks was convened in March 1977. No conclusion was reached and the conference was scheduled to resume in November 1977.

UNCTAD has adopted an inter-related set of measures and recommendations to expand and diversify the export trade of the developing countries in manufactures and semi-manufactures.

A ministerial session of the Board in 1978 will review action taken to relieve developing countries suffering from debt-service difficulties. UNCTAD examines also the long-term evolution of development assistance, suggests new financing techniques, and studies requirements for a reformed international monetary system consistent with the needs of development.

Work on a draft international code of conduct on transfer of technology was expected to be completed during 1977 and a code adopted in 1978.

UNCTAD supports the programme of economic co-operation among developing countries, particularly through technical assistance in the promotion and implementation of economic co-operation programmes at the sub-regional, regional and inter-regional levels.

The expansion of trade and economic relations with socialist countries is also a specific concern of UNCTAD.

BUDGET

Budget approved by the UN General Assembly for the two-year period 1976-77: U.S. $45,212,000.

UNITED NATIONS RESEARCH INSTITUTE FOR SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT—UNRISD

Palais des Nations, 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

Established in 1964 as an autonomous UN activity to conduct research into problems and policies of social development and economic development during different phases of economic growth.

ORGANIZATION

(as at October 1977)

BOARD

Supervises the activities of the Institute. Members include representatives of the Secretary-General of UN, of two of the four Specialized Agencies directly concerned (ILO, UNESCO, FAO, WHO) in rotation, of the Economic Commission for Western Asia, and of the UN regional institutes for Asia, Latin America and Africa, as well as the Institute's Director and seven individuals nominated by the Commission for Social Development and elected by the Economic and Social Council.

Chairman: M. T. DIAWARA (Ivory Coast).

Members:

K. E. KNUTSSON (Sweden)
K. A. NAQVI (India)
H. M. A. ONITIRI (Nigeria)
J. RIPERT (France)
B. SEFER (Yugoslavia)
E. B. SHELDON (U.S.A.)
R. STAVENHAGEN (Mexico)

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Director: S. L. BARRACLOUGH (U.S.A.).

Twelve research officers and assistants plus various experts and consultants.

FUNCTIONS

The Institute was created to conduct research into problems and policies of social development and relationships between various types of social development and economic development during different phases of economic growth. It was intended that the studies of the Institute should contribute to the work of (a) the United Nations Secretariat; (b) regional planning institutes under the auspices of the United Nations; (c) national institutes.

ACTIVITIES

Current Projects:

- The improvement of development statistics and indicators;
- Social and economic implications of the large-scale introduction of new varieties of food-grain;
- Food systems and society;
- Attitudes and values concerning environment and development;
- The condition and role of women in social change and in development programmes.

UNITED NATIONS INSTITUTE FOR TRAINING AND RESEARCH— UNITAR

801 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Established 1965 as an autonomous body within the framework of the United Nations.

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Composed of up to 24 members appointed by the UN Secretary-General to serve for three years. The UN Secretary-General and the Presidents of the General Assembly and ECOSOC, and the Executive Director of the Institute are ex-officio members. Specialized agencies are represented appropriately at meetings. The Board meets usually once a year and is responsible for determining basic policies of the Institute and for reviewing and adopting the annual budget.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The Executive Director is appointed by the Secretary-General, after consultation with the Board, and is responsible for the overall organization, direction and administration of the Institute.

Executive Director: Dr. DAVIDSON S. H. W. NICOL (Sierra Leone).

AIMS

To improve, by means of training and research, the effectiveness of the United Nations, in particular the maintenance of peace and security and the promotion of economic and social development.

FUNCTIONS

TRAINING

The training programme is designed for members of permanent missions to the UN and other diplomats, staff members of the specialized agencies and for national officials of developing countries concerned with subjects related to the UN. Seminars, symposia and workshops are conducted at United Nations' headquarters in New York and in Geneva and in the field. The programme includes familiarization courses on current UN issues, seminars on the structure and organization of the UN, and training courses on some of the basic elements in multilateral diplomacy: negotiating procedures, the use of UN documentation, etc. Refresher courses in international law for developing country officials have been a long-standing part of UNITAR regional training programmes.

RESEARCH

UNITAR programme of research investigates such issues as the role of ad hoc global conferences in alleviating global problems, the changing nature of the international civil service, relations between the UN and regional organizations, the peaceful settlement of disputes and the effects on the environment of development projects; the research programme also holds regular symposia for UN officials and outside experts and provides background papers to facilitate the work of the UN.

FUTURE STUDIES

In co-operation with other institutes, UNITAR publishes periodic reports on the state of future oriented studies, especially as it relates to the United Nations' activities and international co-operation in the field of development. It also undertakes specific studies to discover the long-term trends in such fields as energy, raw materials, population, food, environment, and technology. The intention is to carry out, for the United Nations, a continuous examination of major world problems and trends that may have implications for the future of mankind and to throw light on areas in which action is considered necessary.

PUBLICATIONS

Over 50 titles in English and some in Arabic, French, Spanish and Russian; UNITAR News and Nouvelles de l'UNITAR (several times a year).

UNITED NATIONS DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME—UNDP

New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Established in 1965 by the General Assembly to help the developing countries increase the wealth-producing capabilities of their natural and human resources.

ORGANIZATION

AGENCIES PARTICIPATING

The following act as executing agencies or otherwise participate in the work of the UNDP: the UN Office of Technical Co-operation, 21 of the UN agencies and organizations, 3 regional development banks and the Arab Fund for Economic and Social Development.

The UNDP is responsible to the General Assembly, to which it reports through ECOSOC.

Governing Council: representatives of 48 countries, both industrial and developing; the policy-making body of the UNDP. One-third of the membership changes each year.

President (1977): Dr. JOHAN KAUFMAN (Netherlands).

Administrator: F. BRADFORD MORSE (U.S.A.).

Inter-Agency Consultative Board (IACB): composed of the UN Secretary-General and the Executive Heads of the UNDP's participating and executing Agencies; provides guidance and advice.

Secretariat: composed of an international staff from nearly 90 countries.

REGIONAL BUREAUX

Headed by assistant administrators, the regional bureaux share the responsibility for implementing the programme with the administrator's office. A bureau for programme and policy co-ordination provides guidance and technical expertise for the bureaux. Within certain limitations, large-scale projects may be approved and funding allocated by the administrator, and smaller-scale projects by the resident representatives, based in over 100 countries.

The four regional bureaux, all at the Secretariat in New York, cover: Africa; Asia and the Pacific; the Mediterranean and the Middle East; and Latin America.

FIELD OFFICES

In each country receiving UNDP assistance there is a Country Office, headed by the UNDP resident representative, who co-ordinates all UN technical assistance. He advises the government on formulating the country programme, sees that the field activities are carried out, and acts as the leader of the UN team of experts working in the country.

ACTIVITIES

As the world's largest agency for technical co-operation, the UNDP works with over 140 governments and two dozen international agencies for faster economic growth and better standards of living throughout Asia, Africa, Latin America, the Middle East and parts of Europe. To this end, UNDP supports some 8,000 projects (with a total cost on completion of over U.S. $5,000 million) in agriculture, industry, education, power production, transport, communications, health, public administration, housing, trade and related fields. Also included are activities designed to advance such important goals as the establishment of a new international economic order, technical co-operation among developing countries and increased involvement of women in development. During the next five years, around 55 per cent of UNDP's assistance will go to countries where per capita G.N.P.s are under $200—and fully 80 per cent to countries with per capita G.N.P.s of less than $600.

Backed by UNDP funding of some U.S. $420 million in 1976, projects made available to the developing countries the knowledge and experience of nearly 8,600 international experts, provided 4,500 fellowships for advanced study abroad and supplied some $44 million worth of equipment from computers to basic hand tools, and specialized technical services valued at approximately $37 million.

Project work covers five main fields:

Surveying and assessing natural resources; industrial, commercial and export potentials; and other development assets.

Stimulating capital investments to help realize these possibilities.

Training in a wide range of vocational and professional skills.

Transferring appropriate technologies and stimulating the growth of local technological capabilities.

Economic and social planning, with particular emphasis on meeting the needs of the poorest sections of the population.

Most projects are designed to be "self-continuing", with national personnel taking over all operations as UNDP support phases out.

Nearly U.S. $25,000 million of development investments have been directly or indirectly stimulated by UNDP-supported activities. Since 1972 alone, some $5,900 million has been committed to transport and communications; $3,700 million to natural resources, particularly hydro-power development; $3,500 million to agriculture; $2,700 million to industry; and $1,200 million to health.

UNITED NATIONS CAPITAL DEVELOPMENT FUND

c/o United Nations, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Established by the UN General Assembly in December 1966, the Capital Development Fund became fully operational in 1974 following a significant increase in its resources.

ORGANIZATION

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Composed of twenty-four members, elected by the General Assembly, with equitable representation of developed and developing countries. Decides on policy matters and approves loans and grants. The Board meets at least once a year; for the time being the Governing Council of UNDP acts in its place.

MANAGING DIRECTOR

Chief executive officer; approves requests for grants and loans.

Managing Director: The Administrator of UNDP (pro tem.).

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

United Nations (Other Bod

FUNCTIONS

Assists developing countries by supplementing existing sources of capital assistance by means of grants and loans on concessionary terms.

Assistance is directed towards the low-income groups in developing countries who have not benefited from earlier development efforts.

Assistance may be given to any of the member states of the UN system, and is not necessarily limited to specific projects. The Fund is mainly used for the benefit of the 25 least-developed countries.

FINANCE

Administrative Activities: financed by the regular budget of the UN.

Operational Activities: financed by voluntary contributions, in cash or kind, from governments or other sources.

UNITED NATIONS INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION- UNIDO

Lerchenfelderstrasse 1, A-1070 Vienna, Austria

Telephone: 43500.

Began operations in 1967, following a resolution of the General Assembly, to assist in the industrialization of developing countries through direct assistance and mobilization of national and international resources.

ORGANIZATION

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD

Composed of 45 members, 15 elected annually for three-year periods by the UN General Assembly from among the members of the UN or its related agencies. Meets annually; formulates principles and policies; co-ordinates all activities within the UN system in the field of industrial development. A subsidiary body, the Permanent Committee, holds two sessions a year.

President (1977): Dr. FERHANG JALAL (Iraq).

Secretary: A. MANECK (Federal Republic of Germany).

SECRETARIAT

Has overall responsibility for UNIDO's programme industrial development and co-operation. UNIDO is executing agency of the UNDP.

Executive Director: Dr. ABD-EL RAHMAN KHANE (Algeria)

FIELD ORGANIZATION

A network of Industrial Development Field Advisers attached to the office of the Resident Representatives UNDP maintains liaison with governments, regional organizations and other bodies.

FUNCTIONS

Activities cover macro-economic and micro-economic aspects of industrial development. At macro-economic level, questions are considered concerning the formulation of industrial development policies, planning, programming, surveys, infrastructure and structure, institutional services to industry, etc. At micro-economic level, assistance is provided in problems of pre-feasibility and feasibility of industry or plant, investment and financing, production and productivity, product development and design, technology and techniques, management, marketing, quality research, etc.

Operational Activities

Technical assistance is provided on request to developing countries or governments, industries or other bodies. Such assistance usually consists of expert services, but can also include supply of equipment or fellowships for training such as in management or production.

Promotional Activities

Consist mainly in action taken by the Secretariat in providing contacts between industrialized and developing countries and identifying possibilities for the solution of specific problems in developing countries. Examples of promotional activities are: investment promotion, international sub-contracting, information service and the partnership programme.

Supporting Activities

Activities carried out by the Secretariat include research and investigation, organization of seminars, working groups, and other specialist meetings on all subjects concerning industrial and technological development of developing countries. Special attention is given to such areas where research and analysis can lead to an improved performance such as transfer and adaptation of appropriate technology.

ACTIVITIES 1976

At the end of 1976 the value of technical assistance delivered by UNIDO to the developing countries was $40 million, representing an increase of 9.5 per cent over the 1975 amount. Approved projects in progress by the end of 1976 totalled 2,504. The total value of assistance from 1967 to 1976 was $188,345,000. In 1976 1,061 experts worked on UNIDO projects in Africa, Asia, Europe and Latin America. Actual delivery of equipment and consultant services for the year totalled $10 million.

Fellowship Awards. During 1976, UNIDO awarded 430 fellowships. A total of 40 group training programmes were carried out, and training was provided to about 8,000 nationals of developing countries through fellowships, in-plant group training programmes and workshops, study tours and as counterparts attached to field projects.

GENERAL CONFERENCE

The second General Conference was held in Lima, Peru, in March 1975 with 114 governments represented, more than half of them at Minister of Industry level. The Conference adopted the Lima Declaration and Plan of Action on Industrial Development and Co-operation, mainly on a document drafted by the Group of 77 developing countries, and called for the share of developing countries in total world industrial production to be increased to at least 25 per cent by the year 2000. Recognizing that the autonomy and functions of UNIDO should be increased and expanded substantially, the Conference recommended that the organization should be converted into a specialized agency and that an industrial development fund should be established. These recommendations were accepted by the General Assembly in September 1975 and five sessions were held in 1976-77 to draft a constitution for UNIDO as a specialized agency of the UN. Other resolutions adopted by the conference related to the selection of appropriate industrial technology, the human aspects of industrial development and the problems of the least-developed, land-locked and island countries.

The third General Conference is scheduled to take place in New Delhi, India, in 1979.

FINANCE

The six sources from which UNIDO derives its finance are: the UN Regular Budget, the UN Regular Programme of Technical Assistance, the UN Development Programme, the Special Industrial Services Programme, the UNIDO General Trust Fund, and the Special-purpose Trust Funds, formerly known as Funds-in-Trust. Approved appropriations for UNIDO's regular budget for the biennium 1976-77 amounted to U.S. $46,087,100.

Regular programme of technical co-operation: In 1976 $2.1 million was committed for financing 12 regional advisers attached to regional commissions, and 6 inter-regional advisers attached to the Industrial Operations Division at UNIDO Headquarters. The remainder of the funds was used to finance training programmes and special activities for the least developed countries.

UNIDO General Trust Fund: Derives its resources from voluntary contributions made to UNIDO by member states of the UN, members of the specialized agencies and of the International Atomic Energy Agency. Pledges at the 9th Pledging Conference held in October 1976 totalled $3.4 million.

UNITED NATIONS FUND FOR POPULATION ACTIVITIES—UNFPA485 Lexington Avenue, 20th Floor, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Created in 1967 as the Trust Fund for Population Activities. Became a Fund of the UN General Assembly in 1972, with the Governing Council of UNDP as its governing body, under policy supervision of the Economic and Social Council

ORGANIZATIONEXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The Executive Director, who has the rank of Under-Secretary-General of the UN, is responsible for the overall direction of the Fund, working closely with governments, United Nations bodies and agencies, regional groups, and non-governmental organizations to ensure the most effective programming and use of resources in population activities.

Executive Director: RAFAEL M. SALAS (Philippines).

EXECUTING AGENCIES

In most projects assistance is extended through member organizations of the UN system; ultimate responsibility for execution of projects lies with recipient governments, using the services of the UN organizations as required. The Fund may also call on the services of non-governmental organizations in this role and sometimes it acts as its own executing agency.

FIELD ORGANIZATION

UNFPA Co-ordinators, attached to the offices of the UNDP Resident Representatives, assist governments in formulating requests for aid and co-ordinate the work of the executing agencies in any given country or area. By mid-1976 there were 23 UNFPA Co-ordinators in the field.

FUNCTIONS

Projects supported by the Fund fall within six categories: (1) basic population data, (2) population dynamics, (3) population policy, (4) family planning, (5) communication and education, and (6) programme development. The Executive Director of the Fund was also assigned primary responsibility within the UN system for all information and education activities for the World Population Year, 1974. The World Population Conference was held in Bucharest, Romania, in August 1974, at which a World Population Plan of Action was adopted by consensus of 136 states. During 1975 the UNFPA and the United Nations, in co-operation with the UN Regional Economic Commissions, held a series of meetings throughout the world with the main aim of determining the types of programme which developing countries need to establish or strengthen, in order to meet the objectives of the Plan.

ACTIVITIES 1976

By the end of 1976 the Fund was financing 1,000 projects, including those in 103 countries and regional, interregional and global projects. A major priority in recent years has been the negotiation of comprehensive country agreements under which the basic requirements are provided for national population programmes and for which long-term financial commitments by the UNFPA are made for periods ranging from 3 to 5 years. Such country agreements have been concluded with Bangladesh, Chile, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Egypt, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jordan, Kenya, the Republic of Korea, Malaysia, Mauritius, Pakistan, Peru, the Philippines, Sri Lanka, Syria, Thailand, Tunisia and Turkey.

Assistance by the Fund is provided in a variety of areas:

1. collection and study of data on population trends and structure through censuses, vital statistics and civil registration and sample surveys and the analysis of their results;
2. improvement of knowledge of the implications of population trends and of the interrelationships between population and food demand and other aspects of economic and social development;

3. formulation of population policies in accordance with national development objectives;
4. direct support to national family planning activities by giving assistance with such matters as stipends for training, transport, supplies and equipment and operational studies;
5. development of information and education programmes;
6. training of personnel for research and operational activities;
7. improvement of the application of existing methods of fertility regulation and promotion of research in human reproduction, especially research which may lead to the introduction of new methods suitable for the developing countries;
8. exploration of social and economic policies and measures to accomplish population goals within the context of development;
9. study of motivation for the acceptance or otherwise of family planning, and the improvement of communication techniques and their application;

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

10. establishment of demonstration and pilot projects to develop the most effective organization of family planning programmes at various levels.

Africa. During 1976 the UNFPA allocated $11.7 million for 152 projects in 37 countries as well as 96 regional projects. A major project is the African Census Programme in 20 countries.

Asia and the Pacific. During 1976 the UNFPA allocated $26.8 million for 294 projects in 24 countries and areas as well as 137 regional projects. Most of the projects in this geographical area support national family planning programmes.

Latin America and the Caribbean. During 1976 the UNFPA allocated $18.2 million for 118 projects in 26 countries as well as 57 regional projects. Many of these projects are in the area of maternal and child health and demographic analysis as well as in the relationship between socio-economic development and population.

Europe, the Mediterranean and the Middle East. During 1976 the UNFPA allocated $10.7 million for 48 projects in 10 countries as well as 50 regional projects. Many of these are in the nature of demographic studies and analysis of population data for economic and social development.

Interregional and Global. During 1976 the UNFPA allocated $13.7 million for 176 projects, including assistance for the population activities of the UN Regional Economic Commissions for Africa, Asia and the Pacific, Latin America, and Western Asia, for workers' population education programmes of the ILO, rural education and training programmes of the FAO, the Habitat Conference on Human Settlements, population education programmes of UNESCO, health and research activities of the WHO, procurement and stock-piling of contraceptives and family planning equipment by UNICEF, and for a variety of projects carried out by such non-governmental organizations as the International Statistical Institute (World Fertility Survey), International Planned Parenthood Federation, etc. The Fund also initiated a Contraceptives Study Project in collaboration with countries, UN agencies, non-governmental organizations, private groups and manufacturers, on the production and distribution of various types of contraceptive and the feasibility of establishing a monitoring system to produce reliable, continuing data on supply and demand.

FINANCE

By the end of 1976 resources of the Fund had risen to $318 million, representing contributions from 89 governments. The Fund's annual programme budget had grown to $87.8 million in 1976.

UNITED NATIONS DISASTER RELIEF OFFICE—UNDRO

Palais des Nations, 1211 Geneva 10, Switzerland

Established in 1971 to co-ordinate and mobilize the relief to disaster areas provided by other bodies, and to co-operate in promoting disaster preparedness and prevention.

ORGANIZATION

DISASTER RELIEF CO-ORDINATOR

A Disaster Relief Co-ordinator was appointed at Under-Secretary-General level, in March 1972, to report directly to the UN Secretary-General. UNDRO is thus a separate entity, a distinct element within the UN Secretariat.

Co-ordinator: FARUK N. BERKOL (Turkey).

FIELD ORGANIZATION

UNDRO is represented in some 100 developing countries by the Resident Representatives of the UNDP, part of whose task consists in encouraging advance measures to prepare for disasters and to prevent or mitigate them, to provide information on disasters and relief needs and to help co-ordinate relief and reconstruction.

FUNCTIONS

UNDRO's essential function is that of co-ordination and the mobilization of aid provided by other bodies. The responsibilities laid upon the Office by the General Assembly call upon it to take action in disaster-prone and disaster-stricken countries, both before and after disasters. It is concerned at all times with promoting the study, prevention, control and prediction of disasters and with preparedness and contingency planning. When disasters strike it is, of course, concerned with disaster relief itself. To do its job effectively it must also work closely with donors so that by advance planning the most effective use can be made of their contributions. Its purpose is to act as a catalyst to stimulate others, and act as a link between the many governments and institutions active in disaster situations.

ACTIVITIES

As news of external aid requirements begins to flow into UNDR0's Geneva Office, it is recorded on a 24-hour basis in the co-ordination centre, which issues a series of disaster relief bulletins to governments and recognized institutions actively concerned with disaster relief. Thus UNDR0 is progressively becoming a world information and action centre on disaster situations and relief measures.

The Co-ordinator is also authorized to receive cash contributions for disaster relief assistance in particular emergency situations.

UNDR0 seeks to promote awareness of the need to adopt an international strategy for disaster prevention. Among the first steps in formulating the strategy, UNDR0 has undertaken studies which summarize current knowledge on techniques of preventing or reducing the harmful effects of different types of natural phenomena. UNESCO, WHO, WMO, UNEP and other institutions are collaborating with UNDR0 in these studies.

UNDR0 arranges fellowships for individual training and organizes and co-operates in seminars on pre-disaster planning and related subjects for officials and others involved in disaster activities from both donor and disaster-prone countries.

An International Advisory Committee on Earthquake Risk advises UNDR0 and UNESCO on the best application of relevant disciplines for the assessment and mitigation of earthquake risk and assists them in the promotion of a long-term programme of international research and co-operation in this field.

Special activities include the formulation of a programme for the application of satellite remote sensing to disaster damage assessment, preparedness and prevention, in co-operation with other units of the UN, and a study project on the provision of emergency shelter and related services in disaster situations.

Technical assistance. UNDR0 provides advice through technical missions to disaster-prone developing countries in the improvement of disaster preparedness and in disaster prevention, which may include the development of new methodologies. Thirty-one technical advisory missions have been completed as of September 1977. The broad objectives of the missions are to assist Governments in the improvement of disaster relief co-ordination and in disaster preparedness, and to make recommendations for long-term disaster prevention measures.

Budget. The amount allocated to UNDR0 in the regular budget of the UN for the biennium 1976-77 was U.S. $1,551,000. UNDR0's activities are also financed from a voluntary trust fund established by the General Assembly in 1974.

UNITED NATIONS ENVIRONMENT PROGRAMME—UNEP

P.O.B. 30552, Nairobi, Kenya

Telephone: 333930. Telex No. 22068

The United Nations Environment Programme was established in 1972 by the UN General Assembly following recommendations of the 1972 UN Conference on the Human Environment, in Stockholm, Sweden, to provide machinery for international co-operation in matters relating to the human environment.

ORGANIZATION

(as at August 1977)

GOVERNING COUNCIL

Fifty-eight states are members (16 African, 13 Asian, 10 Latin American, 6 Eastern European and 13 Western European and other states). The main function of the Governing Council is to provide general policy guidelines for the direction and co-ordination of environmental programmes within the UN system.

SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat serves as a focal point for environmental action and co-ordinates all environment activities within the UN system. Liaison and regional offices are in New York, Geneva, Bahrain (temporary) and Bangkok.

Executive Director: MOSTAFA K. TOLBA (Egypt).

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

THE ENVIRONMENT FUND

The Environment Fund, administered by the UNEP Secretariat, was established to provide voluntary additional financing for new environmental initiatives, including those envisaged in the Stockholm Conference Action Plan. As at April 30, 1976, voluntary contributions totalling between $106.7 million and $109.2 million for 1973-77 had been pledged by a total of 67 countries. The regular budget of the United Nations also finances part of the UNEP Secretariat.

United Nations (Other Bodies)

ENVIRONMENT CO-ORDINATION BOARD

Under the Chairmanship of the UNEP Executive Director, the Board, composed of heads of organizations within the UN system, strives to ensure co-operation and co-ordination among all bodies concerned in the implementation of environmental programmes.

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

UNEP aims to create new values and standards for exercising international responsibility in protecting and enhancing life-sustaining resources with priority given to human settlements and habitats, health of people and environment, terrestrial ecosystems, oceans, energy, natural disasters and environmental management.

Budget: The fourth session of the Governing Council in March 1976 allocated provisionally for Fund Programme activities:

$34 million for 1976;

$35 million for 1977.

CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS

We the peoples of the United Nations determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small, and to establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

And for these ends to practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbours, and to unite our strength to maintain international peace and security, and to ensure, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest; and to employ international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims.

Accordingly, our respective Governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organization to be known as the United Nations.

CHAPTER I

PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

Article 1

The Purposes of the United Nations are:

1. To maintain international peace and security, and to that end: to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace, and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace:

2. To develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace;

3. To achieve international co-operation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian character, and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion; and

4. To be a centre for harmonizing the accusations of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

Article 2

The Organization and its Members, in pursuit of the Purposes stated in Article 1, shall act in accordance with the following Principles.

1. The Organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its Members.

2. All Members, in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership, shall fulfil in good faith the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the present Charter.

3. All Members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered.

4. All Members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the Purposes of the United Nations.

5. All Members shall give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes in accordance with the present Charter, and shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action.

6. The Organization shall ensure that states which are not Members of the United Nations act in accordance with these Principles so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

7. Nothing contained in the present Charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the Members to submit such matters to settlement under the present Charter; but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures under Chapter VII.

CHAPTER II

MEMBERSHIP

Article 3

The original Members of the United Nations shall be the states which, having participated in the United Nations Conference on International Organization at San Francisco, or having previously signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1, 1942, sign the present Charter and ratify it in accordance with Article 110.

Article 4

1. Membership in the United Nations is open to all other peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present Charter and, in the judgement of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

2. The admission of any such state to membership in the United Nations will be effected by a decision of the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 5

A Member of the United Nations against which preventive or enforcement action has been taken by the Security Council may be suspended from the exercise of the rights and privileges of membership by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. The exercise of these rights and privileges may be restored by the Security Council.

Article 6

A Member of the United Nations which has persistently violated the Principles contained in the present Charter may be expelled from the Organization by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

CHAPTER III ORGANS

Article 7

1. There are established as the principal organs of the United Nations: a General Assembly, a Security Council, an Economic and Social Council, a Trusteeship Council, an International Court of Justice, and a Secretariat.

2. Such subsidiary organs as may be found necessary may be established in accordance with the present Charter.

Article 8

The United Nations shall place no restrictions on the eligibility of men and women to participate in any capacity and under conditions of equality in its principal and subsidiary organs.

CHAPTER IV THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Composition

Article 9

1. The General Assembly shall consist of all the Members of the United Nations.

2. Each Member shall have not more than five representatives in the General Assembly.

Functions and Powers

Article 10

The General Assembly may discuss any questions or any matters within the scope of the present Charter or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided for in the present Charter, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations to the Members of the United Nations or to the Security Council or to both on any such questions or matters.

Article 11

1. The General Assembly may consider the general principles of co-operation in the maintenance of international peace and security, including the principles governing disarmament and the regulation of armaments, and may make recommendations with regard to such principles to the Members or to the Security Council or to both.

2. The General Assembly may discuss any questions relating to the maintenance of international peace and security brought before it by any Member of the United Nations, or by the Security Council, or by a state which is not a Member of the United Nations in accordance with Article 35, paragraph 2, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations with regard to any such question to the state or states concerned or to the Security Council or both. Any such question on which action is necessary shall be referred to the Security Council by the General Assembly either before or after discussion.

3. The General Assembly may call the attention of the Security Council to situations which are likely to endanger international peace and security.

4. The powers of the General Assembly set forth in this Article shall not limit the general scope of Article 10.

Article 12

1. While the Security Council is exercising in respect of any dispute or situation the functions assigned to it in the present Charter, the General Assembly shall not make any recommendations with regard to that dispute or situation unless the Security Council so requests.

2. The Secretary-General, with the consent of the Security Council, shall notify the General Assembly at each session of any matters relative to the maintenance of international peace and security which are being dealt with by the Security Council and shall similarly notify the General Assembly, or the Members of the United Nations if the General Assembly is not in session, immediately the Security Council ceases to deal with such matters.

Article 13

1. The General Assembly shall initiate studies and make recommendations for the purpose of:

(a) promoting international co-operation in the political field and encouraging the progressive development of international law and its codification;

(b) promoting international co-operation in the economic, social, cultural, educational, and health fields, and assisting in the realization of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

2. The further responsibilities, functions and powers of the General Assembly with respect to matters mentioned in paragraph 1(b) above are set forth in Chapters IX and X.

Article 14

Subject to the provision of Article 12, the General Assembly may recommend measures for the peaceful adjustment of any situation, regardless of origin, which it deems likely to impair the general welfare or friendly relations among nations, including situations resulting from a violation of the provisions of the present Charter setting forth the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

Article 15

1. The General Assembly shall receive and consider annual and special reports from the Security Council; these reports shall include an account of the measures that the Security Council has decided upon or taken to maintain international peace and security.

2. The General Assembly shall receive and consider reports from the other organs of the United Nations.

Article 16

The General Assembly shall perform such functions with respect to the international trusteeship system as are assigned to it under Chapters XII and XIII, including the approval of the trusteeship agreements for areas not designated as strategic.

Article 17

1. The General Assembly shall consider and approve the budget of the Organization.

2. The expenses of the Organization shall be borne by the Members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

3. The General Assembly shall consider and approve any financial and budgetary arrangements with specialized agencies referred to in Article 57 and shall examine the administrative budgets of such specialized agencies with a view to making recommendations to the agencies concerned.

Voting

Article 18

1. Each Member of the General Assembly shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the General Assembly on important questions shall be made by a two-thirds majority of the members present and voting. These questions shall include: recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security, the election of the non-permanent Members of the Security Council, the election of the Members of the Economic and Social Council, the election of Members of the Trusteeship Council in accordance with paragraph 1(c) of Article 86 the admission of new Members to the United Nations, the suspension of the rights and privileges of membership, the expulsion of Members, questions relating to the operation of the trusteeship system, and budgetary questions.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

3. Decisions on other questions, including the determination of additional categories of questions to be decided by a two-thirds majority, shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Article 19

A Member of the United Nations which is in arrears in the payment of its financial contributions to the Organization shall have no vote in the General Assembly if the amount of its arrears equals or exceeds the amount of the contributions due from it for the preceding two full years. The General Assembly may, nevertheless, permit such a Member to vote if it is satisfied that the failure to pay is due to conditions beyond the control of the Member.

Procedure

Article 20

The General Assembly shall meet in regular annual sessions and in such special sessions as occasion may require. Special sessions shall be convoked by the Secretary-General at the request of the Security Council or of a majority of the Members of the United Nations.

Article 21

The General Assembly shall adopt its own rules of procedure. It shall elect its President for each session.

Article 22

The General Assembly may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions.

CHAPTER V

THE SECURITY COUNCIL

Composition

Article 23

1. The Security Council shall consist of eleven Members of the United Nations. The Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect six other Members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of Members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members, however, three shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

Functions and Powers

Article 24

1. In order to ensure prompt and effective action by the United Nations, its Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security, and agree that in carrying out its duties under this responsibility the Security Council acts on their behalf.

2. In discharging these duties the Security Council shall act in accordance with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations. The specific powers granted to the Security Council for the discharge of these duties are laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII, and XII.

United Nations (Charter)

3. The Security Council shall submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly for its consideration.

Article 25

The Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the present Charter.

Article 26

In order to promote the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security with the least diversion for armaments of the world's human and economic resources, the Security Council shall be responsible for formulating, with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee referred to in Article 47, plans to be submitted to the Members of the United Nations for the establishment of a system for the regulation of armaments.

Voting

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members.

3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

Procedure

Article 28

1. The Security Council shall be so organized as to be able to function continuously. Each member of the Security Council shall for this purpose be represented at all times at the seat of the Organization.

2. The Security Council shall hold periodic meetings at which each of its members may, if it so desires, be represented by a member of the government or by some other specially designated representative.

3. The Security Council may hold meetings at such places other than the seat of the Organization as in its judgment will best facilitate its work.

Article 29

The Security Council may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions.

Article 30

The Security Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

Article 31

Any Member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council may participate, without vote, in the discussion of any question brought before the Security Council whenever the latter considers that the interests of that Member are specially affected.

Article 32

Any Member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council or any state which is not a Member of the United Nations, if it is a party to a dispute under consideration by the Security Council, shall be invited to participate, without vote, in the discussion relating to the dispute. The Security Council shall lay down such conditions as it deems just for the participation of a state which is not a Member of the United Nations.

United Nations (Charter)

CHAPTER VI

PACIFIC SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES

Article 33

1. The parties to any dispute, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, enquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice.

2. The Security Council shall, when it deems necessary, call upon the parties to settle their disputes by such means.

Article 34

The Security Council may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether the continuance of the dispute or situation is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 35

1. Any Member of the United Nations may bring any dispute, or any situation of the nature referred to in Article 34, to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly.

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may bring to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly any dispute to which it is a party if it accepts in advance, for the purposes of the dispute, the obligations of pacific settlement provided in the present Charter.

3. The proceedings of the General Assembly in respect of matters brought to its attention under this Article will be subject to the provisions of Articles 11 and 12.

Article 36

1. The Security Council may, at any stage of a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 or of a situation of like nature, recommend appropriate procedures or methods of adjustment.

2. The Security Council should take into consideration any procedures for the settlement of the dispute which have already been adopted by the parties.

3. In making recommendations under this Article the Security Council should also take into consideration that legal disputes should as a general rule be referred by the parties to the International Court of Justice in accordance with the provisions of the Statute of the Court.

Article 37

1. Should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that Article, they shall refer it to the Security Council.

2. If the Security Council deems that the continuance of the dispute is in fact likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, it shall decide whether to take action under Article 36 or to recommend such terms of settlement as it may consider appropriate.

Article 38

Without prejudice to the provisions of Articles 33 to 37, the Security Council may, if all the parties to any dispute so request, make recommendations to the parties with a view to a pacific settlement of the dispute.

CHAPTER VII

ACTION WITH RESPECT TO THREATS TO THE PEACE, BREACHES OF THE PEACE, AND ACTS OF AGGRESSION

Article 39

The Security Council shall determine the existence of any threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression and shall make recommendations, or decide what measures shall be taken in accordance with Articles 41 and 42, to maintain or restore international peace and security.

Article 40

In order to prevent an aggravation of the situation, the Security Council may, before making the recommendations or deciding upon the measures provided for in Article 39, call upon the parties concerned to comply with such provisional measures as it deems necessary or desirable. Such provisional measures shall be without prejudice to the rights, claims, or position of the parties concerned. The Security Council shall duly take account of failure to comply with such provisional measures.

Article 41

The Security Council may decide what measures not involving the use of armed force are to be employed to give effect to its decisions, and it may call upon the Members of the United Nations to apply such measures. These may include complete or partial interruption of economic relations and of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio, and other means of communication, and the severance of diplomatic relations.

Article 42

Should the Security Council consider that measures provided for in Article 41 would be inadequate or have proved to be inadequate, it may take such action by air, sea, or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security. Such action may include demonstrations, blockade, and other operations by air, sea, or land forces of Members of the United Nations.

Article 43

1. All Members of the United Nations, in order to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, undertake to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with a special agreement or agreements, armed forces, assistance, and facilities, including rights of passage, necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

2. Such agreement or agreements shall govern the numbers and types of forces, their degree of readiness and general location, and the nature of the facilities and assistance to be provided.

3. The agreement or agreements shall be negotiated as soon as possible on the initiative of the Security Council. They shall be concluded between the Security Council and Members or between the Security Council and groups of Members and shall be subject to ratification by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

Article 44

When the Security Council has decided to use force it shall, before calling upon a Member not represented on it to provide armed forces in fulfilment of the obligations assumed under Article 43, invite that Member, if the Member so desires, to participate in the decisions of the Security Council concerning the employment of contingents of that Member's armed forces.

Article 45

In order to enable the United Nations to take urgent military measures, Members shall hold immediately available national air-force contingents for combined international enforcement action. The strength and degree of readiness of these contingents and plans for their combined action shall be determined, within the limits laid down in the special agreement and agreements referred to in Article 43, by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 46

Plans for the application of armed force shall be made by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 47

1. There shall be established a Military Staff Committee to advise and assist the Security Council on all questions relating to the Security Council's military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, the employment and command of forces placed at its disposal, the regulation of armaments, and possible disarmament.

2. The Military Staff Committee shall consist of the Chiefs of Staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives. Any Member of the United Nations not permanently represented on the Committee shall be invited by the Committee to be associated with it when the efficient discharge of the Committee's responsibilities requires the participation of that Member in its work.

3. The Military Staff Committee shall be responsible under the Security Council for the strategic direction of any armed forces placed at the disposal of the Security Council. Questions relating to the command of such forces shall be worked out subsequently.

4. The Military Staff Committee, with the authorization of the Security Council and after consultation with appropriate regional agencies, may establish regional sub-committees.

Article 48

1. The action required to carry out the decisions of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security shall be taken by all the Members of the United Nations or by some of them, as the Security Council may determine.

2. Such decisions shall be carried out by the Members of the United Nations directly and through their action in the appropriate international agencies of which they are members.

Article 49

The Members of the United Nations shall join in affording mutual assistance in carrying out the measures decided upon by the Security Council.

Article 50

If preventive or enforcement measures against any state are taken by the Security Council, any other state, whether a Member of the United Nations or not, which finds itself confronted with special economic problems arising from the carrying out of those measures shall have the right to consult the Security Council with regard to a solution of those problems.

Article 51

Nothing in the present Charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defence if an armed attack occurs against a Member of the United Nations, until the Security Council has taken measures necessary to maintain international peace and security. Measures taken by Members in the exercise of this right of self-defence shall be immediately reported to the Security Council and shall not in any way affect the authority and responsibility of the Security Council under the present Charter to take at any time such action as it deems necessary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security.

CHAPTER VIII

REGIONAL ARRANGEMENTS

Article 52

1. Nothing in the present Charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as are appropriate for regional action, provided that such arrangements or agencies and their activities are consistent with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

2. The Members of the United Nations entering into such arrangements or constituting such agencies shall make every effort to achieve pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional agencies before referring them to the Security Council.

3. The Security Council shall encourage the development of pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies either on the initiative of the states concerned or by reference from the Security Council.

4. This Article in no way impairs the application of Articles 34 and 35.

Article 53

1. The Security Council shall, where appropriate, utilize such regional arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority. But no enforcement action shall be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of the Security Council, with the exception of measures against any enemy state, as defined in paragraph 2 of this Article, provided for pursuant to Article 107 or in regional arrangements directed against renewal of aggressive policy on the part of any such state, until such time as the Organization may, on request of the Governments concerned, be charged with the responsibility for preventing further aggression by such a state.

2. The term enemy state as used in paragraph 1 of this Article applies to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory of the present Charter.

Article 54

The Security Council shall at all times be kept fully informed of activities undertaken or in contemplation under regional arrangements or by regional agencies for the maintenance of international peace and security.

CHAPTER IX

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL
CO-OPERATION*Article 55*

With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well-being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, the United Nations shall promote:

- (a) higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development;
- (b) solutions of international economic, social, health, and related problems; and international cultural and educational co-operation; and
- (c) universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

Article 56

All Members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in co-operation with the Organization for the achievement of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 57

1. The various specialized agencies, established by intergovernmental agreement and having wide international responsibilities, as defined in their basic instruments, in economic, social, cultural, educational, health,

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

United Nations (Charter)

and related fields, shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations in accordance with the provisions of Article 63.

2. Such agencies thus brought into relationship with the United Nations are hereinafter referred to as specialized agencies.

Article 58

The Organization shall make recommendations for the co-ordination of the policies and activities of the specialized agencies.

Article 59

The Organization shall, where appropriate, initiate negotiations among the states concerned for the creation of any new specialized agencies required for the accomplishment of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 60

Responsibility for the discharge of the functions of the Organization set forth in this Chapter shall be vested in the General Assembly and, under the authority of the General Assembly, in the Economic and Social Council, which shall have for this purpose the powers set forth in Chapter X.

CHAPTER X

THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

Composition

Article 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of eighteen Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly.

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, six members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. At the first election, eighteen members of the Economic and Social Council shall be chosen. The term of office of six members so chosen shall expire at the end of one year, and of six other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

Functions and Powers

Article 62

1. The Economic and Social Council may make or initiate studies and reports with respect to international economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related matters and may make recommendations with respect to any such matters to the General Assembly, to the Members of the United Nations, and to the specialized agencies concerned.

2. It may make recommendations for the purpose of promoting respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all.

3. It may prepare draft conventions for submission to the General Assembly, with respect to matters falling within its competence.

4. It may call, in accordance with the rules prescribed by the United Nations, international conferences on matters falling within its competence.

Article 63

1. The Economic and Social Council may enter into agreements with any of the agencies referred to in Article 57, defining the terms on which the agency concerned shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations. Such agreements shall be subject to approval by the General Assembly.

2. It may co-ordinate the activities of the specialized agencies through consultation with and recommendations to such agencies and through recommendations to the General Assembly and to the Members of the United Nations.

Article 64

1. The Economic and Social Council may take appropriate steps to obtain regular reports from the specialized agencies. It may make arrangements with the Members of the United Nations and with specialized agencies to obtain reports on the steps taken to give effect to its own recommendations and to recommendations on matters falling within its competence made by the General Assembly.

2. It may communicate its observations on these reports to the General Assembly.

Article 65

The Economic and Social Council may furnish information to the Security Council and shall assist the Security Council upon its request.

Article 66

1. The Economic and Social Council shall perform such functions as fall within its competence in connection with the carrying out of the recommendations of the General Assembly.

2. It may, with the approval of the General Assembly, perform services at the request of Members of the United Nations and at the request of specialized agencies.

3. It shall perform such other functions as are specified elsewhere in the present Charter or as may be assigned to it by the General Assembly.

Voting

Article 67

1. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Economic and Social Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Procedure

Article 68

The Economic and Social Council shall set up commissions in economic and social fields and for the promotion of human rights, and such other commissions as may be required for the performance of its functions.

Article 69

The Economic and Social Council shall invite any Member of the United Nations to participate, without vote, in its deliberations on any matter of particular concern to that Member.

Article 70

The Economic and Social Council may make arrangements for representatives of the specialized agencies to participate, without vote, in its deliberations and in those of the commissions established by it, and for its representatives to participate in the deliberations of the specialized agencies.

Article 71

The Economic and Social Council may make suitable arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations which are concerned with matters within its competence. Such arrangements may be made with international organizations and, where appropriate, with national organizations after consultation with the Member of the United Nations concerned.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

United Nations (Charter)

Article 72

1. The Economic and Social Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Economic and Social Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

CHAPTER XI

NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

Article 73

Members of the United Nations which have or assume responsibilities for the administration of territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government recognize the principle that the interests of the inhabitants of these territories are paramount, and accept as a sacred trust the obligation to promote to the utmost, within the system of international peace and security established by the present Charter, the well-being of the inhabitants of these territories, and, to this end:

- (a) to ensure, with due respect for the culture of the peoples concerned, their political, economic, social, and educational advancement, their just treatment, and their protection against abuses;
- (b) to develop self-government, to take due account of the political aspirations of the peoples, and to assist them in the progressive development of their free political institutions, according to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and their varying stages of advancement;
- (c) to further international peace and security;
- (d) to promote constructive measures of development, to encourage research, and to co-operate with one another and, when and where appropriate, with specialized international bodies with a view to the practical achievement of the social, economic, and scientific purposes set forth in this Article; and
- (e) to transmit regularly to the Secretary-General for information purposes, subject to such limitations as security and constitutional considerations may require, statistical and other information, of a technical nature relating to economic, social, and educational conditions in the territories for which they are respectively responsible other than those territories to which Chapters XII and XIII apply.

Article 74

Members of the United Nations also agree that their policy in respect of the territories to which this Chapter applies, no less than in respect of their metropolitan areas, must be based on the general principles of good-neighbourliness, due account being taken of the interests and well-being of the rest of the world, in social, economic, and commercial matters.

CHAPTER XII

INTERNATIONAL TRUSTEESHIP SYSTEM

Article 75

The United Nations shall establish under its authority an international trusteeship system for the administration and supervision of such territories as may be placed thereunder by subsequent individual agreements. These territories are hereinafter referred to as trust territories.

Article 76

The basic objectives of the trusteeship system, in accordance with the Purposes of the United Nations laid down in Article 1 of the present Charter, shall be:

- (a) to further international peace and security;

- (b) to promote the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of the trust territories, and their progressive development towards self-government or independence as may be appropriate to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned, and as may be provided by the terms of each trusteeship agreement;
- (c) to encourage respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion, and to encourage recognition of the interdependence of the peoples of the world; and
- (d) to ensure equal treatment in social, economic, and commercial matters for all Members of the United Nations and their nationals, and also equal treatment for the latter in the administration of justice, without prejudice to the attainment of the foregoing objectives and subject to the provisions of Article 80.

Article 77

1. The trusteeship system shall apply to such territories in the following categories as may be placed thereunder by means of trusteeship agreements:

- (a) territories now held under mandate;
- (b) territories which may be detached from enemy states as a result of the Second World War; and
- (c) territories voluntarily placed under the system by states responsible for their administration.

2. It will be a matter for subsequent agreement as to which territories in the foregoing categories will be brought under the trusteeship system and upon what terms.

Article 78

The trusteeship system shall not apply to territories which have become Members of the United Nations, relationship among which shall be based on respect for the principle of sovereign equality.

Article 79

The terms of trusteeship for each territory to be placed under the trusteeship system, including any alteration or amendment, shall be agreed upon by the states directly concerned, including the mandatory power in the case of territories held under mandate by a Member of the United Nations, and shall be approved as provided for in Articles 83 and 85.

Article 80

1. Except as may be agreed upon in individual trusteeship agreements, made under Articles 77, 79, and 81, placing each territory under the trusteeship system, and until such agreements have been concluded, nothing in this Chapter shall be construed in or of itself to alter in any manner the rights whatsoever of any states or any peoples or the terms of existing international instruments to which Members of the United Nations may respectively be parties.

2. Paragraph 1 of this Article shall not be interpreted as giving grounds for delay or postponement of the negotiation and conclusion of agreements for placing mandated and other territories under the trusteeship system as provided for in Article 77.

Article 81

The trusteeship agreement shall in each case include the terms under which the trust territory will be administered and designate the authority which will exercise the administration of the trust territory. Such authority, hereinafter called the administering authority, may be one or more states or the Organization itself.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

United Nations (Charter)

Article 82

There may be designated, in any trusteeship agreement, a strategic area or areas which may include part or all of the trust territory to which the agreement applies, without prejudice to any special agreement or agreements made under Article 43.

Article 83

1. All functions of the United Nations relating to strategic areas, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the Security Council.

2. The basic objectives set forth in Article 76 shall be applicable to the people of each strategic area.

3. The Security Council shall, subject to the provisions of the trusteeship agreements and without prejudice to security considerations, avail itself of the assistance of the Trusteeship Council to perform those functions of the United Nations under the trusteeship system relating to political, economic, social, and educational matters in the strategic areas.

Article 84

It shall be the duty of the administering authority to ensure that the trust territory shall play its part in the maintenance of international peace and security. To this end the administering authority may make use of volunteer forces, facilities, and assistance from the trust territory in carrying out the obligations towards the Security Council undertaken in this regard by the administering authority, as well as for local defence and the maintenance of law and order within the trust territory.

Article 85

1. The functions of the United Nations with regard to trusteeship agreements for all areas not designated as strategic, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the General Assembly.

2. The Trusteeship Council, operating under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assist the General Assembly in carrying out these functions.

CHAPTER XIII

THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

Composition

Article 86

1. The Trusteeship Council shall consist of the following Members of the United Nations:

- those Members administering trust territories;
- such of those Members mentioned by name in Article 23 as are not administering trust territories; and
- as many other Members elected for three-year terms by the General Assembly as may be necessary to ensure that the total number of members of the Trusteeship Council is equally divided between those Members of the United Nations which administer trust territories and those which do not.

2. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall designate one specially qualified person to represent it therein.

Functions and Powers

Article 87

The General Assembly and, under its authority, the Trusteeship Council, in carrying out their functions, may:

- consider reports submitted by the administering authority;
- accept petitions and examine them in consultation with the administering authority;

- provide for periodic visits to the respective trust territories at times agreed upon with the administering authority; and
- take these and other actions in conformity with the terms of the trusteeship agreements.

Article 88

The Trusteeship Council shall formulate a questionnaire on the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of each trust territory, and the administering authority for each trust territory within the competence of the General Assembly shall make an annual report to the General Assembly upon the basis of such questionnaire.

Voting

Article 89

1. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Trusteeship Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Procedure

Article 90

1. The Trusteeship Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Trusteeship Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

Article 91

The Trusteeship Council shall, when appropriate, avail itself of the assistance of the Economic and Social Council and of the specialized agencies in regard to matters with which they are respectively concerned.

CHAPTER XIV

THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

Article 92

The International Court of Justice shall be the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It shall function in accordance with the annexed Statute, which is based upon the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice and forms an integral part of the present Charter.

Article 93

1. All Members of the United Nations are ipso facto parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice.

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may become a party to the Statute of the International Court of Justice on condition to be determined in each case by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 94

1. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to comply with the decision of the International Court of Justice in any case to which it is a party.

2. If any party to a case fails to perform the obligations incumbent upon it under a judgment rendered by the Court, the other party may have recourse to the Security Council, which may, if it deems necessary, make recommendations or decide upon measures to be taken to give effect to the judgment.

Article 95

Nothing in the present Charter shall prevent Members of the United Nations from entrusting the solution of their differences to other tribunals by virtue of agreements already in existence or which may be concluded in the future.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

United Nations (Charter)

Article 96

1. The General Assembly or the Security Council may request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion on any legal question.

2. Other organs of the United Nations and specialized agencies, which may at any time be so authorized by the General Assembly, may also request advisory opinions of the Court on legal questions arising within the scope of their activities.

CHAPTER XV THE SECRETARIAT

Article 97

The Secretariat shall comprise a Secretary-General and such staff as the Organization may require. The Secretary-General shall be appointed by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. He shall be the chief administrative officer of the Organization.

Article 98

The Secretary-General shall act in that capacity in all meetings of the General Assembly, of the Security Council, of the Economic and Social Council, and of the Trusteeship Council, and shall perform such other functions as are entrusted to him by these organs. The Secretary-General shall make an annual report to the General Assembly on the work of the Organization.

Article 99

The Secretary-General may bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 100

1. In the performance of their duties the Secretary-General and the staff shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or from any other authority external to the Organization. They shall refrain from any action which might reflect on their position as international officials responsible only to the Organization.

2. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the Secretary-General and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities.

Article 101

1. The staff shall be appointed by the Secretary-General under regulations established by the General Assembly.

2. Appropriate staffs shall be permanently assigned to the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, and, as required, to other organs of the United Nations. These staffs shall form a part of the Secretariat.

3. The paramount consideration in the employment of the staff and in the determination of the conditions of service shall be the necessity of securing the highest standards of efficiency, competence, and integrity. Due regard shall be paid to the importance of recruiting the staff on as wide a geographical basis as possible.

CHAPTER XVI MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Article 102

1. Every treaty and every international agreement entered into by any Member of the United Nations after the present Charter comes into force shall as soon as possible be registered with the Secretariat and published by it.

2. No party to any such treaty or international agreement which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article may invoke that treaty or agreement before any organ of the United Nations.

Article 103

In the event of a conflict between the obligations of the Members of the United Nations under the present Charter and their obligations under any other international agreement, their obligations under the present Charter shall prevail.

Article 104

The Organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such legal capacity as may be necessary for the exercise of its functions and the fulfillment of its purposes.

Article 105

1. The Organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the fulfillment of its purposes.

2. Representatives of the Members of the United Nations and officials of the Organization shall similarly enjoy such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the independent exercise of their functions in connection with the Organization.

3. The General Assembly may make recommendations with a view to determining the details of the application of paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article or may propose conventions to the Members of the United Nations for this purpose.

CHAPTER XVII TRANSITIONAL SECURITY ARRANGEMENTS

Article 106

Pending the coming into force of such special agreements referred to in Article 43 as in the opinion of the Security Council enable it to begin the exercise of its responsibilities under Article 42, the parties to the Four-Nation Declaration signed at Moscow, October 30, 1943, and France, shall, in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 5 of that Declaration, consult with one another and as occasion requires with other Members of the United Nations with a view to such joint action on behalf of the Organization as may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

Article 107

Nothing in the present Charter shall invalidate or preclude action, in relation to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory to the present Charter, taken or authorized as a result of that war by the Governments having responsibility for such action.

CHAPTER XVIII AMENDMENTS

Article 108

Amendments to the present Charter shall come into force for all Members of the United Nations when they have been adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

Article 109

1. A General Conference of the Members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present Charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council. Each Member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

United Nations (Charter)

2. Any alteration of the present Charter recommended by a two-thirds vote of the conference shall take effect when ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

3. If such a conference has not been held before the tenth annual session of the General Assembly following the coming into force of the present Charter, the proposal to call such a conference shall be placed on the agenda of that session of the General Assembly, and the conference shall be held if so decided by a majority vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council.

CHAPTER XIX

RATIFICATION AND SIGNATURE

Article 110

1. The present Charter shall be ratified by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

2. The ratifications shall be deposited with the Government of the United States of America, which shall notify all the signatory states of each deposit as well as the Secretary-General of the Organization when he has been appointed.

3. The present Charter shall come into force upon the deposit of ratifications by the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America, and by a majority of the other signatory states. A protocol of the ratifications deposited shall thereupon be drawn up by the Government of the United States of America which shall communicate copies thereof to all the signatory states.

4. The states signatory to the present Charter which ratify it after it has come into force will become original Members of the United Nations on the date of the deposit of their respective ratifications.

Article 111

The present Charter, of which the Chinese, French, Russian, English, and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall remain deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatory states.

IN FAITH WHEREOF the representatives of the Governments of the United Nations have signed the present Charter.

DONE at the city of San Francisco the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five.

AMENDMENTS

The following amendments to Articles 23 and 27 of the Charter came into force in August 1965.

Article 23

1. The Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations. The Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect ten other Members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of Members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members after the increase of the membership of the Security Council from eleven to fifteen, two of the four additional members shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members.

3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

The following amendments to Article 61 of the Charter came into force in September 1973.

Article 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of fifty-four Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly.

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, eighteen members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. At the first election after the increase in the membership of the Economic and Social Council from twenty-seven to fifty-four members, in addition to the members elected in place of the nine members whose term of office expires at the end of that year, twenty-seven additional members shall be elected. Of these twenty-seven additional members, the term of office of nine members so elected shall expire at the end of one year, and of nine other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

The following amendment to Paragraph 1 of Article 109 of the Charter came into force in June 1968.

Article 109

1. A General Conference of the Members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present Charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any nine members of the Security Council. Each Member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

ORGANIZATION

(as at September 1977)

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

The highest policy-making body of the Bank. Each member country nominates one Governor, usually its Minister of Finance and Economic Affairs. The Board meets once a year.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Consists of nine members elected by the Board of Governors for a term of three years; responsible for the general operations of the Bank. Holds ordinary meetings once a year.

PRESIDENT

Responsible for the organization and the day-to-day operations of the Bank under guidance of the Board of Directors, by whom he is elected for a five-year term and whom he serves as chairman. He is assisted by two or more Vice-Presidents elected by the Board of Directors on his recommendation for a three-year term.

President and Chairman of Board of Directors: Dr. KWAME DONKOH FORDWOR (Ghana).

Vice-President: LOUIS-PASCAL NÈGRE (Mali).

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The Bank uses a unit of account (U.A.) which is equivalent to one United States dollar before the devaluation of 1971.

In contrast with practice in the other regional development banks, where countries outside the region participate, the capital stock of the Bank is exclusively open for subscription by African countries. Each member subscribes to its initial shares consisting of an equal number of paid-up and callable shares:

Payments of amounts subscribed to the paid-up capital are made in gold or convertible currency.

At June 30th, 1976, the position of subscriptions to the capital stock was as follows:

Authorized capital stock	U.A. 800,000,000
Subscribed capital	U.A. 408,460,000
Paid-up capital	U.A. 204,230,000

ACTIVITIES

Lending activities. By December 1975 the Bank had financed 99 projects, programmes and studies in 35 of its member countries. In financial terms this commitment exceeded U.S. $317 million. In 1975 alone the Bank financed 28 projects or studies in 21 countries at a total cost of U.S. $103 million, compared with 24 projects costing U.S. $88.2 million in 1974.

For the future the Bank is to concentrate more on agriculture, while also giving priority to transport and telecommunications. The commencement of operations by the African Development Fund has enabled the Bank to extend its operations to new sectors whose development is necessary as a foundation for general economic growth in the member countries.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Co-operation with other institutions. The Bank maintains close relations with the other African regional and sub-regional organizations, as well as with various world bodies. It has signed formal co-operation agreements with the OAU, the Arab Bank for Economic Development in Africa, the West African Rice Development Association and the following UN organizations: UNDP, UNESCO, FAO, ILO, WHO.

The Bank co-operated with the OAU and the UN Economic Commission for Africa in preparing the African Ministerial Conference on Trade, Development and Monetary Problems held in May 1973 at Abidjan, Ivory Coast.

African Development Fund—ADF. Established in June 1972 by the African Development Bank as a multinational fund to which the AfDB and 17 capital exporting countries subscribe: Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Denmark, Finland, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Norway, Saudi Arabia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, the United Kingdom, the U.S.A. and Yugoslavia. Interest has since been expressed by Kuwait, Romania and France.

At June 30th, 1976, total pledges to the Fund amounted to U.A. 361 million (about U.S. $401 million) of which U.A. 133 million (about U.S. $148 million) had been paid in.

Loans by the Fund are granted on concessional terms, are interest free and repayable over 50 years.

The Fund began operations in August 1973 and by December 31st, 1975, had committed nearly $140 million for 40 projects and studies, mainly in the drought affected areas.

SIFIDA (Investment Company, S.A.). Established in November 1970 on the initiative of, and with participation

African Development Bank

by, the Bank; Headquarters are in Geneva, Switzerland. SIFIDA is a holding company which aims to promote the establishment and growth of productive enterprises in Africa. Its shareholders include the IFC, and about 100 financial, industrial and commercial institutions in the U.S.A., Europe and Asia. Authorized capital is U.S. $50 million, subscribed capital $12.5 million.

Other resources. A Trust Fund was placed under the Bank's administration by the Government of Nigeria in February 1976. The Fund, initially amounting to 50 million naira (about U.S. $80 million), is intended for the financing of development projects designed to foster economic growth and social progress in Africa, particularly in those member countries of the Bank which are relatively less developed or are seriously affected by disasters or international economic recession.

The Bank has also started to float short-, intermediate- and long-term bonds in African and international markets.

The Bank is active in numerous other fields, including co-operation with African regional and sub-regional development finance institutions, the joint financing of projects with other agencies, equity participation in national development banks and the granting of a wide variety of technical assistance facilities.

Co-operation with the Arab countries. The Bank has decided to put its capabilities at the disposal of the OAU and the Arab League in order to promote co-operation between Africa and the Arab countries. It participated in preparing the Dakar Declaration and Programme of Action on Afro-Arab Co-operation.

The Bank has also decided to offer its services to Arab countries willing to give aid and technical assistance to Africa.

under time schedules which are likely to be amended as follows: internal tariffs are to be removed and a common external tariff introduced in stages up to 1982 for the four larger members, and up to 1987 for Bolivia and Ecuador, except that each country may keep a reserve list of items for which liberalization may be delayed for a further five years. As at August 1976 these liberalization measures affected 3,470 items.

The pact also provides for a common policy on foreign capital and the multinational companies, on trademarks, patents, licences and royalties, on co-ordination of financial, industrial and agricultural policies including joint programmes, and for the creation of a Common Reserve Fund (above).

Tariffs: Colombia, Peru and Venezuela have made a partial reduction of their internal tariffs, by stages of 10 per cent. Bolivia and Ecuador are already allowed to export duty free to the three larger countries, and made their first internal tariff reduction of 10 per cent at the end of 1975.

The Junta presented its proposal for the definitive form of the common external tariff in December 1975, but negotiations on this were expected to continue for some time and had not been completed by October 1977.

Joint Programmes: negotiations began in 1970 for the formulation of joint industrial programmes. The deadline for conclusion of all the programmes was put forward to 1977, but negotiations during 1977 ran into difficulties over the allocation of products. The petrochemical and metal-working programmes were approved in 1970 and 1975 respectively. The others include motor vehicles, fertilizer industry, steel, chemicals, glass, electronics, pharmaceuticals and pulp and paper.

The motor vehicle programme is regarded as the most important of the series. An agreement for sharing the market for motor vehicles among the five countries was signed at Quito, Ecuador, in September 1977, which may enable further progress in regional integration.

Foreign Capital and the Multinationals: since 1971 in accordance with a Commission directive (Decision 24) foreign investors are required to transfer 51 per cent of their shares to local investors, in order to qualify for the preferential trade arrangements. Transfers must be completed within 15 years for Colombia, Peru and Venezuela, and 20 years for Bolivia and Ecuador. Foreign-owned companies may not repatriate dividends of more than 14 per cent, except with approval of the Commission, on pain of disqualification from preferential tariffs.

In October 1976 Chile decided to withdraw from the group, having failed to obtain a revision of this decision.

Social Policy: an extensive plan was adopted by ministers of labour, meeting in June 1976, for the integration of social and labour policies in two stages, to 1978 and to 1980. The plan covers harmonization of labour laws, harmonization and extension of systems of social security, the organization of co-operatives, the encouragement of agriculture and agricultural organizations and the distribution of income in society.

An arrangement for social security has been established, whereby workers may receive appropriate benefits when they move to other member countries.

The ministers called for increased assistance from the international organizations, particularly the ILO and the UNDP; they proposed to form an Andean Commission for Social Security at Lima, Peru; and to institute a common market in handicrafts.

External Relations: The Andean Group has established Joint Commissions with Argentina, Mexico and Spain. The Andean Development Corporation has a co-operation agreement with the Central American Bank for Economic Integration (page 131).

The Group opened multilateral negotiations with the EEC in 1977.

ANZUS TREATY

Department of Foreign Affairs, Canberra, A.C.T. 2600, Australia

The ANZUS Security Treaty was signed in San Francisco in 1951 to co-ordinate defence as the first step to a more comprehensive system of regional security in the Pacific. This system was developed further in 1954 by the South-East Asia Collective Defence Treaty (the Manila Treaty).

MEMBERS

Australia

New Zealand

U.S.A.

ORGANIZATION

ANZUS COUNCIL

The ANZUS Council is the main consultative organ of the ANZUS Pact, consisting of the Foreign Ministers, or their deputies, of the three signatory powers. Meetings are generally held once a year, in one of the three capitals. The 26th meeting was held in Wellington, New Zealand, in July 1977. Official talks, and other forms of practical co-operation, are held more frequently.

The organization has no permanent staff or secretariat, and costs are borne by the Government in whose territory the meeting is held.

The instruments of ratification are deposited with the Government of Australia in Canberra.

MILITARY REPRESENTATIVES

The Council meetings are attended also by a military officer representing each country. These officers also meet separately, and it is their function to advise the Council on military co-operation.

SECURITY TREATY

The treaty itself is brief, containing only 11 articles. Like the NATO treaty upon which it was based, the ANZUS treaty is largely a declaratory, constitutional document which is not drafted in precise and detailed legal terms.

In the words of the preamble to the treaty, the purposes of the signatory powers are: "to strengthen the fabric of peace in the Pacific Area"; "to declare publicly and formally their sense of unity, so that no potential aggressor could be under the illusion that any of them stand alone in the Pacific Area"; "to co-ordinate further their efforts for collective defence for the preservation of peace and security pending the development of a more comprehensive system of regional security in the Pacific Area".

The Parties to the treaty undertake to "consult together whenever in the opinion of any of them, the territorial integrity, political independence or security of any of the parties is threatened in the Pacific" (Article 3). Each Party is bound to act to meet the common danger according to its constitutional processes, since each Party recognizes that an armed attack on any of the Parties would be dangerous to its own peace and safety (Article 4).

An armed attack in the terms of the treaty includes an armed attack on the metropolitan territory of any of the Parties, or on the island territories under its jurisdiction in the Pacific, or on its armed forces, public vessels or aircraft in the Pacific.

Any armed attack and all measures taken as a result thereof shall be immediately reported to the Security Council of the UN. These measures are to be terminated when the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to restore and maintain international peace and security (Article 4).

SPECIAL ARAB ASSISTANCE FUND FOR AFRICA—SAafa

Established by a resolution of a meeting of Arab Oil Ministers in January 1974 under the title Arab Loan Fund for Africa. Objective: to provide urgent aid to African countries suffering from serious balance of payments deficits. Came to be referred to erroneously, as the Oil Fund. Acts in response to emergency situations in Africa, such as natural disasters, as well as difficulties caused by the increase in petroleum prices since 1973. Assistance has also been provided to newly independent African countries.

The Fund was integrated with BADEA, and subscriptions to the capital stock of the two organizations were merged, in accordance with a resolution at an extraordinary session of the Board of Governors of BADEA in December 1976.

By the end of 1976 the Fund had disbursed aid to the total of U.S. $208.5 million to 32 African countries.

ARAB FUND FOR ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT

P.O.B. 21923, Kuwait City, Kuwait

Established in 1968, the Fund began its operations in 1973.

MEMBERSHIP

19 countries and the Palestine Liberation Organization (see table of subscriptions below)

FUNCTIONS

The Fund participates in the financing of economic and social development projects in the Arab states and countries by:

1. Financing economic projects of an investment character by means of loans granted on easy terms to governments, and to public or private organizations and institutions, giving preference to economic projects of interest specifically to Arab peoples, and to joint Arab projects.

2. Encouraging, directly or indirectly, the investment of public and private capital in such a manner as to ensure the development and growth of the Arab economy.
3. Providing technical expertise and assistance in the various fields of economic development.

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

The Board of Governors consists of a Governor and an Alternate Governor appointed by each member of the Fund for a period of five years. The Board of Governors is considered as the General Assembly of the Fund, and has all powers.

President of the Fund and Chairman of the Board of Directors: SAEB JAROUDI (Lebanon).

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The Board of Directors is composed of six full-time Directors elected by the Board of Governors from among Arab citizens of recognized experience and competence. They are elected for a renewable term of two years.

The Board of Directors is charged with all the activities of the Fund in a general manner, and exercises the powers delegated to it by the Board of Governors.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The authorized capital at commencement of operations in April 1973 was 100 million Kuwaiti dinars. In 1975 the capital was increased to KD 400 million (one Kuwaiti dinar being equal to 2.48828 grammes of gold). The capital is divided into 40,000 shares having a value of 10,000 Kuwaiti dinars each.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

Midan Al Tahrir, Cairo, Egypt

The League of Arab States is a voluntary association of sovereign Arab states designed to strengthen the close ties linking them and to co-ordinate their policies and activities and direct them towards the common good of all the Arab countries. It was founded in March 1945.

MEMBERS

Algeria	Kuwait	Palestine (see below)	Tunisia
Bahrain	Lebanon	Qatar	United Arab Emirates
Djibouti	Libya	Saudi Arabia	Yemen Arab Republic
Egypt	Mauritania	Somalia	Yemen, People's Democratic Republic
Iraq	Morocco	Sudan
Jordan	Oman	Syria

MEMBERSHIP AND FUNCTIONS

While it is a prerequisite that members must be Arab states that are fully independent, the activities of the League also often include Arab countries which are not independent. Palestine is considered an independent state, as explained in the Charter Annex on Palestine, and therefore a full member of the League.

The status of Palestine as a full member of the League was confirmed at a meeting of the Arab League Council in September 1976.

The Arab League itself is an international body with its own independent statutory powers and general objectives.

COUNCIL

The supreme organ of the Arab League. Meets in March and September. Consists of representatives of the twenty member states, each of which has one vote, and a representative for Palestine. Unanimous decisions of the Council shall be binding upon all member states of the League; majority decisions shall be binding only on those states which have accepted them.

The Council may, if necessary, hold an extraordinary session at the request of two member states. Invitations to all sessions are extended by the Secretary-General. The ordinary sessions are presided over by representatives of the member states in turn.

Sixteen committees are attached to the Council:

Political Committee: studies political questions and reports to the Council meetings concerned with them. All member states are members of the Committee. It represents the Council in dealing with critical political matters when the Council is meeting. Usually composed of the Foreign Ministers.

Cultural Committee: in charge of following up the activities of the Cultural Department and the cultural affairs within the scope of the secretariat; co-ordinates the activities of the general secretariat and the various cultural bodies in member states.

Economic Committee: complemented by the Economic Council since 1953.

Communications Committee: supervises land, sea and air communications, together with weather forecasts and postal matters.

Social Committee: supports co-operation in such matters as family and child welfare.

Legal Committee: an extension of the Nationality and Passports Committee abolished in 1947; studies and legally formulates draft agreements, bills, regulations and official documents.

Arab Oil Experts Committee: for study of oil affairs; also investigates methods to prevent the smuggling of Arab oil into Israel; and for co-ordination of oil policies in general.

Information Committee: studies information projects, suggests plans and carries out the policies decided by the Council of Information Ministers.

Health Committee: for co-operation in health affairs.

Human Rights Committee: studies subjects concerning human rights, particularly violations by Israel; collaborates with the Information and Cultural Committees.

Permanent Committee for Administrative and Financial Affairs.

Permanent Committee for Meteorology.

Committee of Arab Experts on Co-operation.

Arab Women's Committee.

Organization of Youth Welfare.

Conference of Liaison Officers: co-ordinates trade activities among commercial attachés of various Arab embassies abroad.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

The administrative and financial offices of the League. The Secretariat carries out the decisions of the Council, and provides financial and administrative services for the personnel of the League. There are a number of departments: economic, political, legal, cultural, social and labour affairs, petroleum, finance, Palestine, health, information, communications, protocol. The most recently formed department deals with African affairs.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

The Secretary-General is appointed by the League Council by a two-thirds majority of the member states. He appoints the Assistant Secretaries and principal officials, with the approval of the Council. He has the rank of Ambassador, and the Assistant Secretaries have the rank of Ministers Plenipotentiary.

Secretary-General: MAHMOUD RIAD (Egypt).

Assistant Secretaries-General: Dr. SAIED NOFAL (Egypt), Dr. AHMED EL SAIED HAMAD (Sudan), ASSAAD EL ASSAAD (Lebanon), SELIM EL YAFI (Syria), Dr. MOHAMMED EL FARRA (Jordan).

Assistant Secretary-General for Military Affairs: Gen. MOHAMMED ALI FAHMY (Egypt).

DEFENCE AND ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION

Groups established under the Treaty of Joint Defence and Economic Co-operation, concluded in 1950 to complement the Charter of the League:

Arab Unified Military Command: Cairo; f. 1964 to co-ordinate military policies for the liberation of Palestine.

Arab Economic Council: to compare and co-ordinate the economic policies of the member states; the Council is composed of Ministers of Economic Affairs or their deputies. Decisions are taken by majority vote. The first meeting was held in 1953.

Joint Defence Council: supervises implementation of those aspects of the treaty concerned with common defence. Composed of Foreign and Defence Ministers; decisions by a two-thirds majority vote of members are binding on all.

Military Advisory Organization.

Permanent Military Commission: Established 1950; composed of representatives of army General Staffs; main purpose: to draw up plans of joint defence for submission to the Joint Defence Council.

ARAB PEACEKEEPING FORCE

Set up in June 1976 by the Arab League Council to supervise successive attempts to cease hostilities in Lebanon, and afterwards to maintain the peace. In March 1977 the Council renewed the mandate of the force until September 1977. The Arab League Summit Conference in October 1976 agreed that costs were to be paid in the following percentage contributions:

Saudi Arabia	20
Kuwait	20
United Arab Emirates	15
Qatar	10

ASIAN DEVELOPMENT BANK—ADB

2330 Roxas Boulevard, Pasay City, Philippines (P.O.B. 789, Manila 2800).

Telephone: 80-72-51/61; 80-65-11/29; 80-26-31/69.

Sponsored by the UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP), the Bank commenced operations in December 1966. Members: 28 countries within the ESCAP region and 14 other countries.

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

All powers of the Bank are vested in the Board which may delegate its powers to the Board of Directors except in such matters as admission of new members, changes in the Bank's authorized capital stock, election of Directors and President, amendment of the Charter. One Governor and one Alternate Governor appointed by each member country. The Board meets at least once a year.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Responsible for general direction of operations and exercises all powers delegated by the Board of Governors. Composed of twelve Directors elected by the Board of Governors, eight representing member countries within the ESCAP region and four representing the rest of the member countries. Each Director serves for two years and may be re-elected. The President of the Bank, though not a Director, is Chairman of the Board.

Chairman of Board of Directors and President: TAROICHI YOSHIDA (Japan).

Vice-President: C. S. KRISHNA MOORTHY (India).

ADMINISTRATION

Departments: Operations, Projects (I and II), Administration, Controller's, Treasurer's.

Offices: Secretary, General Counsel, Economic, Internal Auditor and Information.

Secretary: DOUGLAS C. GUNESKERA (Sri Lanka).

General Counsel: GRAEME F. REA (New Zealand).

AIMS

1. To raise funds from private and public sources for development purposes in the region. Two priorities are: promotion of regional and sub-regional projects in which member states co-operate; and the needs of the smaller and less developed countries.

2. To assist the Asian member states in co-ordinating their policies for development, trade and general economic affairs.

3. To give technical assistance in all phases of development projects. This includes the formulation of specific proposals, and the preparation, financing and implementation of projects. One priority is to assist regional and national institutions in sectors such as agriculture, industry and public administration, and to form new institutions.

4. To co-operate with the UN and its specialized agencies.

ASSOCIATION OF SOUTH EAST ASIAN NATIONS— ASEAN

ASEAN Secretariat, Jakarta, Indonesia

Established August 1967 at Bangkok, Thailand, to accelerate economic progress and to increase the stability of the South-East Asian region.

MEMBERS

Indonesia
Malaysia

Philippines
Singapore

Thailand

ORGANIZATION

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE

Composed of the Foreign Ministers of member states; meets annually in each member country in turn.

STANDING COMMITTEE

Meets when necessary between Ministerial meetings for consultations in one of the five countries in annual rotation: Singapore in 1977, Thailand in 1978. Consists of the Foreign Minister of the host country and Ambassadors of the other four.

SECRETARIAT

A permanent secretariat was established in Jakarta, Indonesia, in 1976.

Secretary-General: Gen. HARTONO REKSO DHARSONO (Indonesia).

PERMANENT COMMITTEES

The seats of the Permanent Committees are distributed among the ASEAN capitals, and move in rotation at 2-3 year intervals.

There are nine Committees:

1. Trade and Tourism.
2. Industry, Minerals and Energy.
3. Food, Agriculture and Forestry.

4. Transportation and Communications.
5. Finance and Banking.
6. Science and Technology.
7. Social Development.
8. Culture and Information.
9. Budget.

There are eight Ad Hoc Committees:

1. Special Co-ordinating Committee of ASEAN Nations (SCCAN): responsible for negotiating for better trade terms with the European Economic Community.
2. ASEAN Brussels Committee (ABC): assists SCCAN and is composed of 5 ASEAN Ambassadors or Representatives accredited to the EEC.
3. Special Committee of Central Banks and Monetary Authorities.
4. ASEAN Co-ordinating Committee for the Reconstruction and Rehabilitation of Indochina States (ACCRIS).
5. Senior Officials on Sugar.
6. Senior Trade Officials on Multilateral Trade Negotiations (GATT).
7. ASEAN Geneva Committee: assists Senior Trade Officials.
8. Senior Officials on Synthetic Rubber.

AIMS

ASEAN was established in 1967 with the signing of the ASEAN Declaration, otherwise known as the Bangkok Declaration. This set out the objectives of the organization as follows:

To accelerate the economic growth, social progress and cultural development in the region through joint endeavours in the spirit of equality and partnership in order to strengthen the foundation for a prosperous and peaceful community of South-East Asian nations.

To promote regional peace and stability through abiding respect for justice and the rule of law in the relationship among countries of the region and adherence to the principles of the United Nations Charter.

To promote active collaboration and mutual assistance on matters of common interest in the economic, social, cultural, technical, scientific and administrative fields.

To provide assistance to each other in the form of training and research facilities in the educational, professional, technical and administrative spheres.

To collaborate more effectively for the greater utilization of their agriculture and industries, the expansion of their trade, including the study of the problems of international commodity trade, the improvement of their transportation and communication facilities and the raising of the living standards of their people.

To promote South-East Asian studies.

To maintain close and beneficial co-operation with existing international and regional organizations with similar aims and purposes, and explore all avenues for even closer co-operation among themselves.

ACTIVITIES

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

GATT: The ASEAN-Geneva Committee was formed in 1973 to assist member countries in their participation in the Multilateral Trade Negotiations at the GATT Secretariat.

EEC: A Joint Study Group was set up by ASEAN and the EEC Commission in 1975. This group is to discuss the possibilities for economic co-operation between the two regions, and has been a forum for contacts with European officials and companies. A conference on industrial co-operation and trade was held in April 1977 in Brussels, under the co-sponsorship of the EEC Commission, the ASEAN Governments and the seven banks of the European Banks' International. Each ASEAN country sent a group of 20 government officials and senior businessmen, whilst the 260 European participants were Chairmen or Managing Directors of a cross-section of Europe's major companies.

The principal achievement in the ASEAN countries' negotiations with the EEC Commission has been a reduction of duties under the EEC's Generalized System of Preferences in favour of ASEAN countries.

Japan: discussions have mainly been concerned with the competition between South-East Asia's traditional exporting industry in natural rubber and Japan's new and growing synthetic rubber industry. In recent years discussions have taken a wider form, and there have been proposals for a formalized relationship between Japan and ASEAN. This would be more likely to entail a form of association agreement, rather than Japanese accession to ASEAN.

Indo-China: the question of relations with the new communist governments was prominent at the Bali summit in February 1976. The Government of Viet-Nam had issued statements warning that South-east Asian countries wishing to be on friendly terms with Viet-Nam must be free of foreign military influence, and particularly of foreign bases from which war could be launched once again.

The documents signed at the summit responded by making clear that ASEAN countries wished to form a zone of peace and neutrality, and would respect the independence and sovereignty of all nations. ASEAN was to be an economic and diplomatic forum, with no question of a military alliance.

Later during the year a Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister visited each of the ASEAN capitals and diplomatic relations were established.

Other countries: there have also been increased contacts with Australia, New Zealand and Canada. Discussions with the U.S.A. began in September 1977, with a meeting of officials in Manila.

INTERNAL RELATIONS

Whilst the policy of peace and neutrality was a major feature of the Treaty of Amity and Co-operation, the ASEAN countries recognized a common problem in combating insurgency. It had been necessary during 1976 and 1977 for Thailand and Malaysia to co-ordinate their military activity against the communists in the area of their mutual border, and this was reflected in the section of the Declaration of Concord concerning the pursuit of political stability in the region.

There have been increased prospects of a closer relationship between the ASEAN countries since the alterations in the political balance in South-east Asia following the end of the war in Indochina.

The Bali summit and the joint industrial projects launched in 1976 were the first actions which gave expression to the new solidarity. A meeting of Economic Ministers in Kuala Lumpur in March 1976 agreed to set up five medium-sized industries by forming joint projects producing the following: diesel engines in Singapore, urea in Indonesia and Malaysia, superphosphates in the Philippines, and soda ash in Thailand.

Singapore and Indonesia had drawn up feasibility studies for the projects designated to them by January 1977, and in February 1977 the Asian Development Bank agreed to conduct the feasibility study for the soda ash project in Thailand.

Meeting in Manila in January 1977 the Economic Ministers concluded a Basic Agreement on the Establishment of ASEAN Preferential Trade Arrangements. This will not lead directly to the formation of a free trade zone. The Philippines, Thailand and Singapore have been in favour of trade liberalization, and early in 1977 they concluded bilateral agreements for 10 per cent tariff cuts on a wide range of items traded between themselves. Indonesia, on the other hand, has been opposed to trade liberalization, taking the view that its own economy is of a type that would be bound to suffer under free trade. The ASEAN agreement therefore provides for negotiations to lead to the introduction of preferences product by product.

The Economic Ministers next met in Singapore in June 1977. They put into effect a number of the decisions in the Basic Agreement, principally a list of trade concessions on 71 products, to come into effect between all five countries.

Joint research and technology. Experts from member countries have drawn up joint programmes to investigate problems of food technology.

Education. Exchanges of teachers and students are arranged, and facilities for teaching the languages, history and geography of member countries are increased. ASEAN scholarships are awarded.

Communications. The Malaysian and Thai national airlines have pooled some of their services. Telecommunications networks in the region have been improved.

Tourism. Visits of up to 7 days may be made to other member countries without a visa; tourists may also obtain ASEAN Common Collective Travel Documents for package tours and may use these in lieu of a passport within the member countries.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Cultural exchanges. Tours by theatrical and dance groups, holding of art exhibitions and exchange of radio and television programmes, films and visual aids. Cultural exchanges and social workers' exchange programmes are also arranged.

MEETINGS OF HEADS OF STATE AND GOVERNMENT

ASEAN's first summit meeting was held at Denpasar, Bali, Indonesia, in February 1976. It was agreed that joint ventures would be established producing urea, superphosphates, potash, petrochemicals, steel, soda ash, newsprint and rubber products.

Two major documents were signed:

Treaty of Amity and Co-operation, laying down principles of mutual respect for the independence and sovereignty of all nations; non-interference in the internal affairs of one another; settlement of disputes by peaceful means; and effective co-operation among the five countries.

Differences would be settled through direct negotiations, and to facilitate this the five nations would constitute a High Council comprising a representative with the rank of Minister from each. Decisions of the Council must be unanimous.

Association of South East Asian Nations

Declaration of Concord, giving guidelines for action in economic, social and cultural relations. This included co-operation in the pursuit of political stability in the region; the members would give priority to the supply of one another's needs for commodities, particularly food and energy, in any emergency. This last aim would be approached by forming industrial projects in common.

The long-term objective of a preferential trade arrangement was acknowledged; the first priority in trade, however, was to develop joint action in the international markets.

The declaration called for assistance between member states in the event of a natural disaster.

The second summit meeting was held in August 1977, in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. The five countries reaffirmed their intention to develop peaceful relations with the communist countries of the region, in spite of the many recent border incidents between Thailand and Cambodia.

Japan and Australia were also represented at part of the meeting, by their Prime Ministers. Japan announced its intention to give U.S. $1,000 million in aid for the five industrial projects, subject to feasibility studies.

ORGANIZATION

THE COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS OF THE ECONOMIC UNION

The Committee of Ministers consists of not less than three Ministers and generally speaking the Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Foreign Trade, Economic Affairs, Agriculture, Finance and Social Affairs of the three countries. Resolutions in the Committee of Ministers must be carried unanimously, but an abstention will not be considered as a negative vote. It supervises the application of the Benelux Economic Union Treaty and ensures that the aims specified therein are pursued. The Committee of Ministers can take decisions, establish conventions, make recommendations and issue directives. The Committee may also set up Working Parties to which it may delegate certain of its powers.

THE CONSULTATIVE INTER-PARLIAMENTARY COUNCIL

Secretary-General: M. HONDEQUIN, Palais de la Nation, Brussels 1000.

The Consultative Inter-Parliamentary Council consists of forty-nine members, twenty-one each from the Netherlands and Belgian Parliaments and seven from Luxembourg Parliament. It was set up in 1956. This Council may deliberate and communicate to the three Governments its views on problems of direct concern to the Economic Union, including cultural relations, foreign policy and the standardization of laws. The Interparliamentary Council receives an annual report, jointly established by the three Governments, on each of the above problems.

THE COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC UNION

Chairmen: L. G. WANSINK (Netherlands), K. PEERENBOOM (Belgium), M. SCHLEICH (Luxembourg).

Consists of three chairmen, one from each member country, and of the presidents of Committees; presidents of the Special Committees may be co-opted on to the Council when their special fields are under discussion.

The Council is responsible for ensuring the execution of the decisions of the Committee of Ministers and for making proposals to the Committee of Ministers; for co-ordinating the work of the committees and special committees; for giving them directives and for transmitting their proposals to the Committee of Ministers.

COMMITTEES AND SPECIAL COMMITTEES

There are a number of committees: foreign economic relations; monetary and financial; industrial and commercial; agriculture, food and fisheries; customs and taxation; transport; social; movement and establishment of persons.

There are also special committees: co-ordination of statistics; comparison of government budgets; public tenders; public health; retail trade and handicrafts; movement of persons (control at external frontiers); territorial planning; tourism; administrative and judicial co-operation; environment.

THE SECRETARIAT-GENERAL

Secretary-General: Drs. E. D. J. KRUIJBOSCH.

The secretary-general is always of Netherlands nationality and is assisted by one Belgian and one Luxembourg deputy secretary-general. They are appointed by the Committee of Ministers and are directly responsible to this committee. The budget of the secretariat for 1977 was 89,981,000 Belgian francs, to which Belgium and the Netherlands each contributed 48.5% and Luxembourg 3%.

JOINT SERVICES

The Committee of Ministers may establish joint services to improve the functioning of the Economic Union, and determine their tasks, operational layout and working methods. Such services have executive powers in the sector in which they are active. Currently there are two joint services: the Benelux Office on trademarks and brands (for the registering and protection of trademarks within the Union), and the Joint Service for the Registration of Medicaments, which issues licences to sell medicaments in the Union.

THE ARBITRATION TRIBUNAL

The Arbitration Tribunal is composed of six people (two from each member country) appointed by the Committee of Ministers. Their function is to settle any disputes that may arise from the working of the Union.

COURT OF JUSTICE

President: G. J. WIARDGA.

Founded 1974; has judicial competence to give binding interpretations on judicial ruling common to the three countries; consultative role for advising on interpretation of common judicial ruling on request from one of the three governments; supervises legal protection of those in the Union's service.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Benelux

It is also competent (after taking advice of a special Consultative Committee) on matters of jurisdictional protection of persons working in the service of the Union.

THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL ADVISORY COUNCIL

President: C. A. Bos.

The Economic and Social Advisory Council consists of twenty-seven members and twenty-seven deputy members from representative economic and social organizations, each country supplying one third of the number. It may offer advice on its own initiative or prepare considered opinions when requested to do so by the Committee of Ministers.

COLLEGE D'IMPULSION

Chairman: M. J. KEYZER.

Secretary: P. VAN DER MEIREN.

The Collège d'Impulsion, a body which is intended to provide an independent stimulus to the activities of the Union, was established in 1969 for one year and subsequently prolonged for the same period. It consists of six members (two from each member country) and is responsible for proposing the most appropriate measures for an integral achievement in the application of the Union Treaty.

ORGANIZATION

CARIBBEAN COMMUNITY

The Community has three main areas of activity: economic integration, by means of the Common Market, replacing and extending the work of the former Caribbean Free Trade Association, CARIFTA; co-operation apart from the economic sphere, and the operation of certain common services; and the co-ordination of foreign policies of the member states.

CARIBBEAN COMMON MARKET

Provides for the establishment of a common external tariff and a common protective policy for the community's trade with outside countries; and the adoption of a scheme for the harmonization of fiscal incentives to industry; double taxation arrangements; co-ordination of economic policies and development planning; and a special régime for the less developed countries of the community.

HEADS OF GOVERNMENT CONFERENCE

The final authority of the Community and the Common Market, the Conference determines the policy of the Community. It is responsible for the conclusion of treaties on behalf of the Community and for entering into relationships between the Community and international organizations and states. The Conference also makes the financial arrangements to meet the expenses of the Community. Decisions are generally taken unanimously.

COMMON MARKET COUNCIL

Consists of a Minister of Government designated by each member state. Responsible for the development and smooth running of the Common Market, and for the settlement of any problems arising out of its functioning. However, the Conference may issue directives to the Council. The Council generally takes decisions unanimously.

SECRETARIAT

The two chief divisions are: Trade and Integration, and General Services and Administration. There is a trade and tariffs section, a health section, an accounts and administration section, a sectoral unit and an economic and statistical unit; other expert staff are: legal counsel, education adviser, tax administration adviser and industrial relations adviser.

Secretary-General: M. ALISTER McINTYRE (Grenada).

INSTITUTIONS

Conference of Ministers responsible for Health, Standing Committees of Ministers responsible for Education, Industry, Labour, Foreign Affairs, Finance, Agriculture, Mines and Transport.

ASSOCIATE INSTITUTIONS

Under the treaty, the following bodies are made into associate institutions of the Community, in collaboration with the principal ministerial committees of the Heads of Government Conference:

East Caribbean Common Market Council of Ministers Caribbean Development Bank
Caribbean Examinations Council
Caribbean Investment Corporation
Caribbean Meteorological Council
Council of Legal Education
Regional Shipping Council
University of Guyana
University of the West Indies
West Indies Associated States Council of Ministers

CARIBBEAN FOOD CORPORATION

Established under an agreement signed at Basseterre, St. Christopher, by the second Heads of Government Conference in December 1975. The Corporation came into operation in September 1976 as a multinational food producing concern including all CARICOM members. It administers a livestock development programme involving investment of £242 million, and a scheme to establish large scale food farms in the member states. The Corporation has a nominal capital of £2 million. Guyana, Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago each hold 25 per cent of the shares, with the remainder divided among other members.

MONETARY FUND

A reserve fund for assistance in case of balance of payments difficulties was established in April 1976 by Barbados, Guyana, Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago. The fund is to amount to 200 million Trinidad and Tobago dollars.

CENTRAL AMERICAN COMMON MARKET—CACM

Established in 1960 under the aegis of the Organization of Central American States (ODECA).

MEMBERS

Costa Rica Guatemala El Salvador Honduras* Nicaragua

* Honduras still regards itself as a de jure member of CACM, although it suspended participation in the common market in December 1970 by imposing tariffs on all imports from the region.

ORGANIZATION

(as at May 1976)

PERMANENT SECRETARIAT

(Secretaría Permanente de Integración Económica Centroamericana—SIECA)

The Permanent Secretariat was set up as the administrative arm of the Economic Council and the Executive Council. It supervises the correct implementation of the legal instruments of economic integration, carries out relevant studies at the request of the Common Market authorities, and arranges the meetings of the main bodies.

Secretary-General: ROBERTO MAYORGA CORTÉS.

HIGH-LEVEL COMMITTEE

Comprises representatives of all five member countries. The first meeting was held in Antigua, Guatemala, on August 13th, 1973, and sessions have been held frequently. The committee examines in detail procedures for improving and restructuring the Common Market and its institutions.

TRIPARTITE MEETING

Composed of Ministers of Economy and Finance and Directors of Central Banks. Generally meets more than once a year. The High-Level Committee was set up on the basis of agreement reached at the Tripartite Meeting of December 1972.

MINISTERIAL MEETINGS

Held as necessary by Ministers and Vice-Ministers of Economy. Replaces the Central American Economic Council and Executive Council.

FUNCTIONS

The Central American Common Market was established under the Tratado Multilateral de Libre Comercio e Integración Económica Centroamericana and the Tratado de Integración Económica Centroamericana. It visualizes the eventual elimination of all tariffs and barriers between members, and the establishment of a common external tariff for the rest of the world. So far practically all internal barriers have been removed and agreement has been reached on 98 per cent of the items in the regional customs classification; uniform tariffs now apply to 87 per cent of these items and the others are to be equalized over a five-year period. Intra-regional trade increased from $34 million in 1960 to $388.5 million in 1973.

It was intended that there would be a common customs administration, unified fiscal policy, a regional industrial policy and co-ordinated regional policies in public health, labour, education, transport and agriculture.

A draft Treaty for a Central American Economic and Social Community was drawn up and presented to the Presidents of the member countries in March 1976. It aims to achieve a full customs union among the contracting parties and greater equality in sharing the benefits of integrated development.

TREATIES, AGREEMENTS AND FUNDS

TREATIES

TRATADO MULTILATERAL DE LIBRE COMERCIO
E INTEGRACIÓN ECONÓMICA
CENTROAMERICANA

Signed in Tegucigalpa in 1958 by all members of ODECA, except Costa Rica who joined in 1962. For the equalization of Customs duties between the members. All duties were removed from 237 groups of regionally produced commodities when the Treaty came into force and were to be removed from all regionally produced goods over a period of ten years.

TRATADO DE INTEGRACIÓN ECONÓMICA
CENTROAMERICANA

Signed in 1959 by all members of ODECA except Costa Rica who joined in 1962. In July 1962 the members signed agreements establishing uniform tariffs on more than 95 per cent of all products entering the area.

TRATADO DE ASOCIACIÓN ECONÓMICA

Signed in February 1960 by El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, and came into force in April 1960. Tariffs were then removed on 95 per cent of all goods traded between the members, and most remaining tariffs had been removed by June 1966. At a later stage restrictions on the movement of capital and labour will be removed.

TRATADO DE INTERCAMBIO PREFERENCIAL
Y DE LIBRE COMERCIO

Signed by Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Panama in 1961 and ratified in 1962, to speed economic integration through tariff reductions between members.

OTHER AGREEMENTS

Convention on Integrated Industries: signed June 1958; provides that special monopoly status be given to an individual enterprise in each industry, to be established in one member country with a view to exporting to the rest.

The operation of this convention has been limited and, to date, only two integration industries have been set up—a tyre factory in Guatemala and an insecticides plant in Nicaragua.

Special System of Promotion of Productive Industries: signed January 1963, this system uses tariff regulations to encourage projects requiring heavy investment, with the limitation that such projects must produce at least half the total of the regional demand.

Convention of Uniform Fiscal Incentives for Industrial Development: signed in July 1962, the Convention provides for a wide range of benefits to be applied to various categories of industries in Central America.

Agreement to establish the Central American Monetary Union: signed by the Governors of the Central Banks in 1964. The Monetary Union is not yet effective; it involves the alignment of foreign exchange and monetary policies, and the operation of a common currency (Central American peso at par with the U.S. dollar).

Treaty on Telecommunications: signed in April 1966 by Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, and by Costa Rica in January 1967.

FUNDS

Guarantee Fund: set up 1969 by the Governors of the Central American Bank for Economic Integration. Capital of $40 million subscribed entirely by members of the Bank.

Fondo Centroamericano de Estabilización Monetaria (Central American Fund for Monetary Stabilization): agreement signed on October 1st, 1969, by Presidents of the five Central American Central Banks to provide short-term financial assistance to members facing temporary balance-of-payments difficulties. Capital to be subscribed equally by the five members: U.S. $20 million. Initial shares of $1 million each subscribed January 2nd, 1970. Additional funds will be sought from international sources. Memos.: Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica.

CENTRAL TREATY ORGANIZATION—CENTO

Secretariat: Eski Büyük Millet Meclisi Binası, Ankara, Turkey

Scientific Secretariat: P.O.B. 1828, Teheran, Iran

Aims to provide mutual security and defence for member countries and seeks the peaceful economic development of the region through co-operative effort. CENTO replaced the Baghdad Pact Organization (formed in 1955) after the withdrawal of Iraq in March 1959.

ORGANIZATION

CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

The highest deliberative body of the Colombo Plan, consisting of Ministers representing member governments. It normally meets every year in a different member country. The Ministers' Meeting is preceded by an Officials' Meeting, which is divided into a number of Committees and identifies issues for discussion by the ministers. The Committee considers the general principles of co-operation among member countries in the fields of capital aid and technical assistance and reviews the progress within the region.

COUNCIL FOR TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION IN SOUTH AND SOUTH-EAST ASIA

Maintains the continuity of the Colombo Plan and meets several times a year in Colombo. The Council is composed of heads of diplomatic missions of member governments in Colombo. It serves as a forum for consultation and co-ordination in the field of technical co-operation among member countries and information about the Colombo Plan in general. Its executive arm is the Colombo Plan Bureau.

President: Justice ABDUL HAKIM (Bangladesh).

COLOMBO PLAN BUREAU

The only permanent institution of the Plan, the Bureau compiles statistics relating to the Technical Assistance Programme of the Colombo Plan, services the Council and disseminates information on the Colombo Plan as a whole. It also provides assistance to the host governments for the holding of Consultative Committee Meetings and attends these meetings in an advisory capacity. The Bureau represents the Colombo Plan at meetings where such representation is necessary.

The operating costs of the Bureau are met by equal contributions from member states.

Director: LEONORE E. T. STORAR (U.K.).

Principal Information Officer: P. R. CHONA (India).

Information Officer: U TIN MYA (Burma).

AID BETWEEN MEMBER COUNTRIES

CAPITAL AID

Capital aid takes the form of grants and loans for national projects mainly from six industrial countries outside the region to the developing member countries of the Plan. The capital aid covers almost all aspects of social and economic development.

From 1950 to 1975 total amounts of assistance from the major donors were as follows:

	million U.S. $
Australia	1,138.95
Canada	1,834.12
Japan	5,591.91
New Zealand	88.36
United Kingdom	2,896.56
U.S.A.	33,325.50
TOTAL	44,875.40

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

Under the Technical Co-operation programme experts are supplied, fellowships are awarded and equipment for training and research is supplied.

From 1950 to December 1975, 112,985 trainees and students had received technical training and 29,034 experts and 268 volunteers and equipment to the value of U.S. $698.1 million had been provided.

During 1975, 6,804 trainees and students received training; 2,007 experts and 268 volunteers were sent out; value of equipment supplied was $23 million; total value of co-operation activities from the inception of the Plan to December 1975 was over $2,554.9 million, spent in the proportion of 18 per cent on trainees and students, 52 per cent on experts and volunteers and 30 per cent on technical equipment.

Of the 6,804 training and student places provided in 1975, the United Kingdom is the major donor country, providing 2,080 places, i.e. 30 per cent of the total. Australia (1,484) is the second largest donor, closely followed by Japan (1,331) and the United States (1,308).

Indonesia was the largest recipient of training and student awards during 1975 with 857 awards, followed by India (776), Thailand (746) and the Philippines (552).

Of the 2,007 experts provided in 1975, Japan is the major donor country, providing 955 assignments, i.e. 48 per cent of the total. Australia (517) is the second largest donor followed by the United Kingdom (269) and the United States (216). A total of 268 Volunteers was provided by three major donors i.e. the United Kingdom (149), Japan (60) and Australia (59) during the period 1975.

Papua New Guinea was the largest recipient of experts (89) during 1975 followed by Malaysia (41), Nepal (32) and the Philippines (25).

DRUG ADVISORY PROGRAMME

The programme was launched in 1973 to eliminate the causes and ameliorate the effects of drug abuse in member states. The programme acts as a supplement to national campaigns and is co-ordinated with the work of UN and other agencies concerned with drug problems. It has an advisory role and does not conduct any campaign operations.

Seminars are held in member countries to inform governments and the public and to help organize remedial measures. Assistance is given in training narcotics officials in all aspects of drug abuse prevention by means of exchanges, fellowships, study, training and observation. Bilateral and multilateral talks among member countries are held.

Member countries are helped in establishing narcotics control offices or boards, revising legislation on narcotics, improving law enforcement, treatment, rehabilitation and prevention education, and in improving public understanding of these matters by the use of mass media, workshops and seminars.

The programme is financed by the U.S.A.

Drug Adviser: Pío A. ABARRO (Philippines).

STAFF COLLEGE FOR TECHNICIAN TRAINING

Established in Singapore in 1974 as the first multilateral project of the Colombo Plan. All 26 member governments contribute to its operating costs.

The College is administered by a Governing Board consisting of a representative from each member government, the Director of the College and the Director of the Colombo Plan Bureau.

The main functions of the College are:

- (i) to undertake programmes in the development of staff and in the training of staff for technician education;
- (ii) to conduct study conferences and courses in technician education for senior administrators;
- (iii) to undertake research in any special problems in the training of technicians in the region;
- (iv) to give advice and other facilities for training of technicians within and outside the region.

Chairman of the Governing Board: R. K. THOMSON (Canada).

Director: Dr. L. S. CHANDRAKANT (India).

THE COMMONWEALTH

Commonwealth Secretariat: Marlborough House, Pall Mall, London, SW1Y 5HX, England

The Commonwealth is a voluntary association of 36 independent states, comprising nearly a quarter of the world's population.

MEMBERS

Australia	Ghana	Malta	Sri Lanka
Bahamas	Grenada	Mauritius	Swaziland
Bangladesh	Guyana	Nauru*	Tanzania
Barbados	India	New Zealand	Tonga
Botswana	Jamaica	Nigeria	Trinidad and Tobago
Canada	Kenya	Papua New Guinea	Uganda
Cyprus	Lesotho	Seychelles	United Kingdom
Fiji	Malawi	Sierra Leone	Western Samoa
Gambia	Malaysia	Singapore	Zambia

* Nauru is a special member of the Commonwealth; it has the right to participate in functional activities but is not represented at Meetings of Commonwealth Heads of Government.

Sovereignty over Rhodesia is vested in the United Kingdom but Rhodesia has remained under the control of an illegal régime which unilaterally declared independence in 1965.

¹ United Kingdom-United States Condominium.

² Anglo-French Condominium.

MEMBERSHIP

The Commonwealth has no written constitution but members subscribe to the ideals set out in a Declaration of Commonwealth Principles (see page 150) unanimously approved by Heads of Government at their meeting in Singapore in 1971. The Commonwealth is not a federation, for there is no central government, nor are there any rigid contractual obligations such as bind the members of the United Nations. Membership is granted only by consent of all the members and the right of secession is implicit.

The Commonwealth includes the self-governing states and dependencies associated with Commonwealth members. These are also eligible for Commonwealth technical assistance and take part in a variety of Commonwealth activities. They enjoy varying and increasing degrees of self-government, and several are approaching independence.

HISTORY

The evolution of the Commonwealth began with the introduction of self-government in Canada in the 1840s; Australia, New Zealand and South Africa became independent before the first world war. At the Imperial Conference of 1926 the United Kingdom and the four Dominions, as they were then called, were described as "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status", and this change was enacted into law by the Statute of Westminster, in 1931.

The modern Commonwealth began with the entry of India and Pakistan in 1947, and of Sri Lanka (then Ceylon) in 1948. In 1950 India became a republic, and the Commonwealth Heads of Government then decided that allegiance to the same monarch need not be a condition of membership. This was a precedent for a number of other members (see Heads of State and Heads of Governments, below).

ORGANIZATION

MEETINGS OF HEADS OF GOVERNMENT

Meetings are private and informal, and operate not by voting but by consensus. The emphasis is on consultation and exchange of views for co-operation. A communiqué is issued at the end of every meeting. Meetings are held every two years in different capitals in the Commonwealth. Last meeting: London, June 1977. Next meeting: Lusaka, Zambia, 1979.

The 1977 London meeting considered the Commonwealth Group of Experts' Final Report entitled Towards a New International Economic Order and endorsed it as a constructive contribution towards the current world economic debate. They asked the Secretary-General to set up a Commonwealth team on the establishment and role of the Common Fund for Commodities, a key element in the Integrated Programme for Commodities. The team which was subsequently set up, finalized its report for submission to the Heads of Government to facilitate progress at the UNCTAD negotiations in November 1977. The meeting also approved a Commonwealth statement on apartheid in sport.

HEADS OF STATE AND HEADS OF GOVERNMENT

As of October 1977, 15 member countries were monarchies and 21 were republics. All Commonwealth countries accept Queen Elizabeth II as the symbol of the free association of the independent member nations and as such the Head of the Commonwealth. Of the 21 republics, the offices of Head of State and Head of Government were combined in 14: Bangladesh, Botswana, Cyprus, the Gambia, Ghana, Kenya, Malawi, Nauru, Nigeria, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Tanzania, Uganda and Zambia. The two offices were separate in the remaining 7: Guyana, India, Malta, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Trinidad and Tobago and Western Samoa.

Of the monarchies, the Queen is Head of State of the United Kingdom and of 10 others, in each of which she is represented by a Governor-General: Australia, the Bahamas, Barbados, Canada, Fiji, Grenada, Jamaica, Mauritius, New Zealand and Papua New Guinea. Lesotho, Malaysia, Swaziland and Tonga are also monarchies, where the traditional monarch is Head of State.

The Governors-General are appointed by the Queen on the advice of the ministers of the country concerned. They are wholly independent of the Government of the United Kingdom.

HIGH COMMISSIONERS

Governments of member countries are represented in other Commonwealth countries by High Commissioners who have a status equivalent to that of Ambassadors.

WITHDRAWALS

Ireland withdrew from the Commonwealth on April 18th, 1949; South Africa withdrew on May 31st, 1961; and Pakistan withdrew on January 30th, 1972.

OTHER CONSULTATIONS

Cabinet secretaries, permanent secretaries to Heads of Government and other senior officials from member countries meet regularly between meetings of Heads of Government to provide continuity, to exchange views on various developments and to review the activities of the Commonwealth Secretariat.

In recent years, the meetings of Finance Ministers, Law Ministers and Health Ministers have become a fairly regular feature of Commonwealth consultations. Since 1959 Finance Ministers of the Commonwealth have met before the meetings of the IMF and the World Bank. The most recent were Barbados, September 1977, Hong Kong, September 1976 and Guyana, 1975. The 1977 meeting discussed plans for enlarging the capital of the World Bank (page 36 to enable it to increase its support for development. Ministers reviewed the working progress of the International Development Association, the World Bank affiliate which provides development loans on concessional terms to the least developed countries.

Discussions on the International Monetary Fund centred

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Commonwealth

on measures to improve its capability to assist countries, particularly developing countries that are not oil producers, the setting up of the new Witteveen Facility to assist deficit countries, the IMF's Compensatory Finance Facility to assist countries which have unexpected shortfalls in export income. A major focus of interest will be the seventh review of IMF quotas, and follow-up action to implement the agreements on economic issues reached by Heads of Government at their London meeting in June. They also considered other issues raised in the final report of the Commonwealth Group of Experts on the New International Economic Order, the progress of the North-South dialogue, and the implications of the Common Fund for Commodities.

COMMONWEALTH SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat, established by Commonwealth Heads of Government at their meeting in London in July 1965, operates as an international organization at the service of all Commonwealth countries, responsible to Commonwealth governments collectively and is the main agency for multilateral communication between them. It promotes consultation and disseminates information on matters of common concern to member governments, services the meetings of Commonwealth Heads of Government, Ministers and officials, and assists appropriate agencies in the fostering of Commonwealth links.

The cost of the Secretariat is borne by Commonwealth Governments in agreed shares based on the UN formula.

The Secretariat is staffed from member countries and the Secretary-General, appointed by the Heads of Government for a period of five years, is equivalent in rank to a senior High Commissioner. He is assisted by two Deputy Secretaries-General (one with general responsibilities, the other with responsibility for economic matters) and two Assistant Secretaries-General, one with responsibility for general matters and the other being the Managing Director of the Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation (CFTC).

The Secretariat budget for 1976/77 was £2.15 million.

Secretary-General (1975-80): H.E. SHRIDATH RAMPHAL, K.B., C.M.G. (Guyana).

Deputy Secretaries-General: M. A. HUSAIN (India), R. P. DEANE (Australia).

Assistant Secretary-General (Managing Director, CFTC): A. G. TASKER (U.K.).

Assistant Secretary-General: E. C. ANYAOKU (Nigeria).

Administration Division

Director: H. LYNCH-SHYLLON (Sierra Leone).

DEVELOPMENT CO-OPERATION

The Commonwealth's commitment to the removal of disparities in wealth and to the achievement of a more equitable world society was expressed in the Declaration of Commonwealth Principles adopted in 1971.

Commonwealth action in support of this commitment takes two forms. The Commonwealth seeks to advance the world community towards agreement on major economic issues that divide rich and poor. It benefits from the fact that it is a substantial section of the international community, comprising both developed and developing nations, a consensus among whom can assist agreement on the wider stage.

Deliberations among Commonwealth Finance Ministers, who meet annually on the eve of the World Bank and IMF meetings, have been guided by awareness of this Commonwealth potential. At the last meeting of Heads of Government, in Kingston in 1975, Commonwealth leaders gave priority to a discussion of world economic issues, and in particular to the question of trade in primary commodities, in which most Commonwealth countries have a deep interest. The meeting set up a Commonwealth Group of experts to make proposals for bridging the gap between rich and poor in the context of the world dialogue on a new international economic order. The group of ten experts was drawn from both developing and developed member countries, with Mr. Alister McIntyre, Secretary-General of the Caribbean Community, as its chairman.

The Group's first report was presented to the seventh special session of the UN General Assembly (New York, September 1975) and contributed to the consensus which emerged at that meeting. Its second report was similarly presented to the fourth UN Conference on Trade and Development (Nairobi, May 1976).

The Group's final and consolidated report was placed before Heads of Government in London, and provides a basis for a further Commonwealth contribution to the world debate on a more equitable system of economic relationships.

Meanwhile, another group of Commonwealth specialists has been commissioned to examine the possibilities for Commonwealth action in the specific area of industrial development. This team's mandate is to recommend measures for co-operative action, both among developing countries and between them and developed countries, and it is expected that their proposals could be a guide to action within and outside the Commonwealth. A preliminary report by this team, headed by L. K. Jha, Governor of Kashmir in India, was considered in 1977 in London by Heads of Government, who asked the team to identify a programme of action.

A Commonwealth Technical Group, set up in 1977, produced a report on the Common Fund for Commodities to help discussions during UNCTAD negotiations in November 1977.

The Commonwealth has welcomed the membership of its members in the regional economic groupings to which many belong. Britain's membership of the EEC was welcomed by the Kingston Meeting. Twenty-four Commonwealth developing countries are signatories of the Lomé Convention which links them economically with the EEC, and other member countries have arrangements with the European Community. Concern has been expressed at the effects of EEC policies on Britain's traditional trading partners, particularly in South Asia and Australasia.

The study of policy issues in economic and financial affairs is an important part of the work of the Commonwealth Secretariat. Its Economic Affairs Division services such special bodies as the Commonwealth Group of Experts and the Team of Industrial Specialists. Studies are also undertaken to assist Governments in formulating national policy, in Commonwealth consultations like those of Finance Ministers, and in international negotiations.

Commonwealth nations also work together to give practical support to economic and social progress in developing member countries. The latter receive the major share of bilateral development aid provided by the developed nations within the association. Several of the developing nations themselves assist others, particularly by providing expertise and educational assistance.

COMMONWEALTH FUND FOR TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION (CFTC)

Managing Director: A. G. TASKER (U.K.).

General Technical Assistance Division

Director: A. SELVANATHAN (Malaysia).

Education and Training Division

Director: P. D. SNELSON (U.K.).

Finance and Personnel Services Division

Director: K. R. BAIN (New Zealand).

Technical Assistance Group

Directors: G. K. GOUNDREY (Canada), J. R. SYSON (U.K.).

All member countries, rich and poor, contribute to the Commonwealth Fund for Technical Co-operation, the Commonwealth's own mutual assistance agency which forms part of the Commonwealth Secretariat. From modest beginnings in 1971, the CFTC has grown vigorously, and is now a significant instrument of Commonwealth collaboration for development.

Every Commonwealth developing country benefits from the Fund's capacity to offer Commonwealth experts and advisers, arrange training for nationals in other member countries, or provide assistance in improving export performance. Nearly 300 experts, almost half of them from developing countries, are now serving on CFTC assignments. About 500 training projects, many involving several students, are supported each year. Help for export promotion has helped several countries to win new markets or to improve production for export.

Heads of Government are likely to consider how the momentum of the CFTC's growth can be maintained as the demand for its services continues to grow. CFTC resources rose from £400,000 in its first year (1971/72) to £8 million in 1976/77, and its governing body has adopted a plan of expenditure of £11 million for the year beginning July 1977, subject to resources being available.

TRADE

Intra-Commonwealth trade declined as a share of the total trade of Commonwealth countries from two-fifths in the mid-1950s to one-fifth in 1973. In 1954 the Commonwealth took 48 per cent of United Kingdom exports, but by 1977 the proportion had fallen to 15 per cent. The withdrawal of South Africa, of course, was a major factor in this change. Meanwhile, United Kingdom exports to the EEC increased, exceeding exports to the Commonwealth for the first time in 1970. In percentage terms, they rose from 19.3 per cent (to the six plus Ireland and Denmark) in 1960 to 36 per cent in 1977.

The system of Commonwealth Preferences, under which members accorded a tariff lower than Most Favoured Nation rates to imports from Commonwealth and some other countries, was phased out, ending in January 1977.

A number of Commonwealth members are included in the African, Caribbean and Pacific group of developing countries which have associate status with the EEC under the Lomé Convention of 1975. This entails reciprocal trading preferences; guaranteed income for exporters of primary commodities; technical assistance; and certain joint institutions. The Commonwealth members concerned are:

AFRICA		CARIBBEAN	PACIFIC
Botswana	Nigeria	Bahamas	Fiji
Gambia	Seychelles	Barbados	Papua New
Ghana	Sierra Leone	Grenada	Guinea
Kenya	Swaziland	Guyana	Tonga
Lesotho	Tanzania	Jamaica	Western Samoa
Malawi	Uganda	Trinidad
Mauritius	Zambia	and Tobago

SECRETARIAT SERVICES

Statistical and other economic material is compiled by the Secretariat and distributed to member governments, and papers are prepared for meetings on financial and economic problems. The Secretariat prepares annual reports on Commonwealth trade and collects and issues statistics on certain commodities.

Consultative meetings of Commonwealth delegates to the main sessions of UNCTAD and such meetings as the World Food Conference and the FAO commission on fertilizers, have been organized.

A special representative of the Secretariat in Geneva provides member countries with advice in connection with the GATT multilateral trade negotiations.

SOME COMMONWEALTH PROGRAMMES

Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan: drawn up at the 1959 Education Conference; provides opportunities for students within the Commonwealth. The target figure of 1,000 award holders at any one time was met each year from 1965, and over 10,000 awards had been made by early 1977.

Book Development Programme: drawn up at the 1971 Education Conference to assist the development of national book industries, the training of national book publishing staff and to pass on information on new publications produced in the developing countries. A number of regional seminars and courses have been organized by the Secretariat under this programme.

Commonwealth Youth Programme: inaugurated 1973; seeks solutions to problems of young people, particularly in relation to employment. Three regional centres have been set up in Guyana, Zambia and India to provide training for youth workers, and to offer technical assistance with national youth programmes. The Asian-Pacific Regional Centre for Advanced Studies in Youth Work opened at Chandigarh, India, in September 1975.

The first All-Commonwealth meeting of youth leaders from member countries under the programme was held in May 1977.

Commonwealth Information Programme: opened 1971; the Information Division plans and conducts press arrangements for Commonwealth meetings in conjunction with host governments, issues press releases, provides a feature service for Commonwealth newspapers and magazines, and maintains close liaison with the media. Monthly radio-tape programmes are distributed to all member countries and focus on political, social, economic and cultural news and events. The basis of the information programme is its publications, which are issued free of charge. (See Publications below.)

Special Commonwealth Programme for Zimbabwe: established 1966; member governments provide assistance for suitably qualified Zimbabweans (Rhodesians) who have left their country for political reasons or in order to seek opportunities for education or training or employment which are not available to them in their country. Over 2,800 students have been offered study places, scholarships and employment in Commonwealth countries.

Commonwealth Zimbabwe Scholarship Trust Fund: begun in 1972 with finance from Canada, now also from Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom; enables young Zimbabweans to take up places in Commonwealth developing countries.

Commonwealth Programme of Applied Studies in Government: set up in 1975 with the primary objective of providing senior administrators with opportunities for study and exchange of experience related to the practicalities of modern public administration within the framework of Commonwealth relations. Its recent activities have included meetings on problems facing public service commissions and the management of public enterprises.

OTHER COMMONWEALTH ORGANIZATIONS

(In England, unless otherwise stated)

AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY

Commonwealth Agricultural Bureaux: Farnham House, Farnham Royal, Slough, SL2 3BN, England; f. 1929; consists of four Institutes and ten Bureaux under the control of an Executive Council comprising representatives of the Commonwealth countries which contribute to its funds.

The functions of the CAB are to provide:

1. a scientific information service;
2. identification of pests;
3. biological control services.

Each Institute and Bureau is concerned with its own particular branch of agricultural science and acts as an effective clearing house for the collection, collation and dissemination of information of value to research workers. The information, compiled from worldwide literature, is published in 21 abstract journals which have a monthly circulation of 30,000 in 150 countries.

Fifteen new journals on specialized subjects, compiled from data included in the main journals, began publication in 1975.

Annotated bibliographies provide information on specific topics, and review articles, books, maps and monographs are also issued.

In addition, three Institutes provide identification and taxonomic services and the fourth undertakes field work in biological control in several parts of the world. Chair. J. GEORGE (Trinidad and Tobago); Acting Exec. Dir. N. G. JONES, D.F.C.

Commonwealth Bureau of Agricultural Economics: Dartington House, Little Clarendon St., Oxford, OX1 2HH; f. 1966; abstracts the world literature on (1) Agricultural economics, including policy, supply, demand and prices, marketing and distribution, international trade, finance and credit, farm-level production and management; co-operatives and collectives; education, extension and research; rural sociology; (2) Rural development, including theory and policy, physical, human and economic resources; public services; projects and surveys; (3) Rural extension, education and training, including education theory, policy and planning, primary, secondary, tertiary and non-formal education; extension methods, adoption and case studies; (4) Rural recreation and tourism.

Dir. J. O. JONES, M.A. Publ. World Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology Abstracts (monthly), Rural Development Abstracts (quarterly), Rural Extension, Education and Training Abstracts (quarterly), Rural Recreation and Tourism Abstracts (quarterly).

Commonwealth Bureau of Animal Breeding and Genetics: Animal Breeding Research Organisation, The King's Bldgs., West Mains Rd., Edinburgh, EH9 3JX, Scotland; f. 1929 for the collection and abstracting of the world's literature on the breeding and the genetics of animals, and for the dissemination of this information throughout the world.

Dir. J. D. TURTON, B.Sc., M.R.C.V.S., D.T.V.M. Publ. Animal Breeding Abstracts (monthly).

Commonwealth Bureau of Animal Health: Central Veterinary Laboratory, New Haw, Weybridge, Surrey; f. 1929; provides world-wide information service in veterinary science and closely related subjects.

Dir. R. MACK, F.R.C.V.S. Publs. The Veterinary Bulletin (monthly), Index Veterinarius (monthly).

Commonwealth Bureau of Dairy Science and Technology: National Institute for Research in Dairying, Shinfield, Reading, RG2 9AT, Berks.; f. 1938 for the collection, collation, and distribution of scientific and technological information on dairy husbandry, milk and milk products, and the economics, physiology, microbiology, chemistry and physics of dairying for the benefit of research workers, teachers, advisory officers, etc.

Dir. E. J. MANN, N.D.D., C.D.D. Publs. Dairy Science Abstracts (monthly).

Commonwealth Bureau of Horticulture and Plantation Crops: East Malling Research Station, near Maidstone, Kent, ME19 6BJ; f. 1929.

Dir. D. O'D. BOURKE, M.A., DIP.AGRIC., F.L.S. Publs. Horticultural Abstracts, Ornamental Horticulture (monthly).

Commonwealth Bureau of Nutrition: Rowett Research Institute, Bucksburn, Aberdeen, AB2 9SB, Scotland; f. 1929 to collect and abstract the world's literature in the field of human and animal nutrition, and to disseminate this information throughout the world.

Dir. Miss D. L. DUNCAN, B.Sc., PH.D. Publ. Nutrition Abstracts and Reviews: Series A—Human and Experimental (monthly), Series B—Livestock Feeds and Feeding (monthly).

Commonwealth Bureau of Pastures and Field Crops: Hurley, Maidenhead, SL6 5LR; f. 1929; publishes abstracts compiled from the world's scientific literature on grasses and grasslands, herbage plants, rangelands and annual field crops, and produces annotated bibliographies on selected subjects within its scope.

Dir. P. J. BOYLE, M.A. Publs. Herbage Abstracts, Field Crop Abstracts (both monthly), and occasional publications.

Commonwealth Bureau of Plant Breeding and Genetics: Department of Applied Biology, Pembroke St., Cambridge, CB2 3BX; f. 1929 to abstract and review current literature on the breeding and genetics of plants of economic importance and relevant publications in allied fields, such as plant pathology, applied statistics, and other sciences, and to maintain an information service on these subjects.

Dir. R. H. RICHENS, M.A., PH.D. Publ. Plant Breeding Abstracts (monthly).

Commonwealth Bureau of Soils: Rothamsted Experimental Station, Harpenden, Herts., AL5 2JQ; f. 1929 for the collection and dissemination of information from the world scientific literature on all aspects of soils, the use of fertilizers, and the relationship between plants and soils, particularly plant nutrition.

Dir. B. BUTTERS. Publs. Soils and Fertilizers (monthly), Irrigation and Drainage Abstracts (quarterly), series of Annotated Bibliographies (continuous), series of Technical Communications (occasional).

Commonwealth Forestry Bureau: at Commonwealth Forestry Institute, South Parks Rd., Oxford, OX1 3RD; f. 1938 for the collection and abstracting of the world's literature on forestry, forest products and their utilization, and for the dissemination of this information throughout the world.

Dir. W. FINLAYSON, B.Sc. Publs. Forestry Abstracts (monthly), Forest Products Abstracts (monthly), Card Title Service (weekly).

Commonwealth Institute of Biological Control: Gordon St., Curepe, Trinidad, West Indies; f. 1927 as the Farnham House Laboratory of the Imperial Institute of Entomology; transferred to Canada 1940 and to Trinidad 1962; its purpose is the biological control of injurious insects and noxious weeds, and the collection and distribution throughout the Commonwealth of beneficial organisms with which to attack the pests.

Dir. F. D. BENNETT, B.S.A., PH.D. Publs. A Catalogue of the Parasites and Predators of Insect Pests, Technical Bulletin of Biological Control, Technical Communications.

Commonwealth Institute of Entomology: 56 Queen's Gate, London, SW7 5JR; f. 1913 for the collection, co-ordination and dissemination of all information bearing upon injurious and useful insects and other arthropods; undertakes identifications.

Dir. N. C. PANT, M.Sc.AGR., PH.D. Publs. Bulletin of Entomological Research (quarterly), Review of Applied Entomology; Series A—Agriculture; Series B—Medical and Veterinary (both monthly), Distribution Maps of Pests (18 yearly).

Commonwealth Institute of Helminthology: The White House, 103 St. Peter's Street, St. Albans, AL1 3EW, Herts.; f. 1929; collates world research literature on helminth parasites of animals, on nematode parasites of plants and on parasitic protozoans with reference particularly to those of economic importance.

Dir. SHEILA WILLMOTT, PH.D., F.I.BIOL. Publ. Helminthological Abstracts: Series A—Animal and Human Helminthology (monthly); Series B—Plant Nematology (quarterly); Protozoological Abstracts (monthly).

Commonwealth Mycological Institute: Ferry Lane, Kew, Richmond, Surrey, TW9 3AF; f. 1920 for the collection and dissemination of information on the fungal, bacterial, virus and physiological disorders of plants; on fungal diseases of man and animals; and on the taxonomy of fungi; undertakes identifications of micro-fungi and plant pathogenic bacteria.

Dir. A. JOHNSTON, B.Sc., A.I.C.T.A., F.I.BIOL. Publs. Review of Plant Pathology (monthly), Distribution Maps of Plant Diseases (42 each year), Index of Fungi (twice a year), Review of Medical and Veterinary Mycology (quarterly), Mycological Papers (irregular), Phytopathological Papers (irregular), Descriptions of Pathogenic Fungi and Bacteria (four sets a year), Descriptions of Plant Viruses (one set a year), Bibliography of Systematic Mycology (twice a year), books on mycology and plant pathology.

ORGANIZATIONS NOT AFFILIATED TO THE COMMONWEALTH AGRICULTURAL BUREAUX

Commonwealth Forestry Association: 11 Keble Rd., Oxford, OX1 3QG; f. 1921; collects and circulates information relating to forestry and the commercial utilization of forest products, and provides a means of communication between forestry organizations in the Commonwealth; Mems.: 1,100. Chair. JOHN WYATT SMITH; Editor and Sec. JOHN PITT. Publ. Commonwealth Forestry Review.

Standing Committee on Commonwealth Forestry: 231 Corstorphine Rd., Edinburgh, EH12 7AT, Scotland; f. 1923 to provide continuity between one Conference and another, and to provide a forum for discussion on any forestry matters of common interest to member governments which may be brought to the Committee's notice by any member country or organization; mems. about 50; Chair. G. D. HOLMES; Sec. A. WILSON. Publs. reports and papers.

COMMERCE

Commonwealth Industries Association Ltd.: 55 Park Lane, London, W1Y 3DH; f. 1926 as the Empire Industries Association, merged with the British Empire League in 1947; present title 1967; aims to strengthen the Commonwealth by means of mutual preferential trade, investment, migration and technical and scientific co-operation; Pres. Sir JOHN REISS, B.E.M.; Chair. NEIL MARTEN, M.P.; Dir. EDWARD HOLLOWAY; Sec. Miss H. PACKER; publ. Britain and Overseas (four a year).

COMMONWEALTH STUDIES

Institute of Commonwealth Studies: 27 Russell Square, London, WC1B 5DS, England; f. 1949 to promote advanced study of the Commonwealth; provides a library and meeting place for postgraduate students and academic staff engaged in research in this field. Dir. Prof. W. H. MORRIS-JONES, B.Sc. (ECON.); Sec. P. H. LYON, B.Sc. (ECON.), PH.D.; publs. Annual Report, Commonwealth Papers (series), Collected Seminar Papers.

Institute of Commonwealth Studies: University of Oxford; Queen Elizabeth House, 21 St. Giles, Oxford; a research and senior teaching centre for administrators and foreign service officers from developing countries and for postgraduate students of Oxford University. Undertakes studies of new states.

Royal Institute of International Affairs: Chatham House, 10 St. James's Square, London, SW1Y 4LE; f. 1920; promotes research in all aspects of international affairs, maintains a library and a press cuttings library, organizes meetings, discussions and study groups; corporate and individual membership; Dir. ANDREW SHONFIELD; publs. The World To-day (monthly), International Affairs (quarterly), and books on various aspects of international affairs.

COMMUNICATIONS

A common-user system of cable, radio and satellite communications links most Commonwealth countries, with extensions providing a world-wide network. Besides broadband cables across the Atlantic and Pacific and from Australia to Singapore-Malaysia via New Guinea and Hong Kong, there are satellite services connecting Australia, Britain, Canada, East Africa, Hong Kong and Malaysia with various countries. In addition, HF radio systems, microwave and tropospheric scatter systems, provide communications in different parts of the network.

Commonwealth Telecommunications Organization: established in its present form in 1967. Consists of periodic conferences at government level. the Telecommunications Council and the Telecommunications Bureau (see below).

Commonwealth Telecommunications Council: f. 1967 to advise Partner Governments and the nationalized telecommunications organizations on matters relating to external telecommunications systems. Mems.: 23 representing 21 Partner Governments and 1 representing British Overseas Territories and Associated States.

Commonwealth Telecommunications Bureau: 28 Pall Mall, London, SW1Y 5LP; f. 1968 to serve the Commonwealth Telecommunications Organization under the direction of the Council; Gen. Sec. S. N. KALRA.

Commonwealth Air Transport Council: Shell-Mex House, Strand, London, WC2R 0DP, England; f. 1945 to keep under review the development of Commonwealth civil air transport. Meetings generally every three years; latest meeting in Ottawa, Canada, 1975. Mems.: governments of Commonwealth Countries and British Dependent Territories; Sec. P. BRAUNTON.

Conferences of Commonwealth Postal Administrations: Three Conferences have been held so far (London 1971, Trinidad and Tobago 1973 and Sri Lanka October 1976). Their purpose is to discuss international postal matters of common concern, especially those which touch upon the activities of the Universal Postal Union. There is no permanent secretariat. The Conferences are held on a purely ad hoc basis and are organized by the host administration.

EDUCATION

Association of Commonwealth Students (ACS): 29 Queen St., Edinburgh, EH2 1JX, Scotland; f. April 1967 at meeting of National Unions of Students of 27 Commonwealth countries; aims "to assist participants to co-operate in promoting action on issues of common concern to their members and to assist in the exchange of students between these countries, provided that this will not limit the sovereignty of any participants; and to assist students in non-Commonwealth countries where appropriate"; activities devoted primarily to "issues of educational and welfare concern"; General Conference once every three years elects seven-member Consultative Committee and a President who is Executive Officer; Pres. A. K. P. KLUDZE (Ghana); Sec. WILLIAM ROE (U.K.).

Association of Commonwealth Universities: 36 Gordon Square, London, WC1H 0PF; f. 1913 as the Universities Bureau of the British Empire; holds quinquennial Congresses and other meetings in the intervening years; publishes factual information about universities and access to them; acts as a general information centre and provides an advisory service for the filling of university teaching staff appointments overseas; supplies secretariats for the Commonwealth Scholarship Commission in the United Kingdom, the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission and the Kennedy Memorial Trust; mems.: 209 Universities and University Colleges; Chair. (1976/77) Prof. E. J. BORG COSTANZI (Malta); Sec. Gen. LAW

The Secretariat facilitates the exchange of information among member governments on legislation in their respective countries, and keeps governments informed of developments in legal affairs.

Member governments preparing legislation on particular subjects are provided with information about similar legislation enacted in other Commonwealth countries.

The shortage of legislative draftsmen led to the formation of a training programme which began in 1974; this consists of courses in four Commonwealth regions, followed by practical work under supervision in government drafting departments.

The Secretariat has also provided technical assistance to countries negotiating agreements relating to mineral exploitation; and advisers have been provided for such matters as accession to treaties, merchant shipping legislation, law revision and taxation.

Committee on Legal Co-operation: f. November 1974 to investigate ways to improve the exchange of legal information, law reform, technical assistance, research, training, law enforcement and correctional policies. Chair. DECLARATION OF COMMONWEALTH PRINCIPLES Agreed by the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting at Singapore, January 22nd, 1971.

The Commonwealth of Nations is a voluntary association of independent sovereign states, each responsible for its own policies, consulting and co-operating in the common interests of their peoples and in the promotion of international understanding and world peace.

Members of the Commonwealth come from territories in the six continents and five oceans, include peoples of different races, languages and religions, and display every stage of economic development from poor developing nations to wealthy industrialized nations. They encompass a rich variety of cultures, traditions and institutions.

Membership of the Commonwealth is compatible with the freedom of member-governments to be non-aligned or to belong to any other grouping, association or alliance. Within this diversity all members of the Commonwealth hold certain principles in common. It is by pursuing these principles that the Commonwealth can continue to influence international society for the benefit of mankind.

We believe that international peace and order are essential to the security and prosperity of mankind; we therefore support the United Nations and seek to strengthen its influence for peace in the world, and its efforts to remove the causes of tension between nations.

We believe in the liberty of the individual, in equal rights for all citizens regardless of race, colour, creed or political belief, and in their inalienable right to participate by means of free and democratic political processes in framing the society in which they live. We therefore strive to promote in each of our countries those representative institutions and guarantees for personal freedom under the law that are our common heritage.

We recognize racial prejudice as a dangerous sickness threatening the healthy development of the human race and racial discrimination as an unmitigated evil of society. Each of us will vigorously combat this evil within our own nation.

No country will afford to regimes which practice racial discrimination assistance which in its own judgment directly contributes to the pursuit or consolidation of this evil policy. We oppose all forms of colonial domination and racial oppression and are committed to the principles of human dignity and equality.

We will therefore use all our efforts to foster human equality and dignity everywhere, and to further the principles of self-determination and non-racialism.

We believe that the wide disparities in wealth now existing between different sections of mankind are too great to be tolerated. They also create world tensions. Our aim is their progressive removal. We therefore seek to use our efforts to overcome poverty, ignorance and disease, in raising standards of life and achieving a more equitable international society.

To this end our aim is to achieve the freest possible flow of international trade on terms fair and equitable to all, taking into account the special requirements of the developing countries, and to encourage the flow of adequate resources, including governmental and private resources, to the developing countries, bearing in mind the importance of doing this in a true spirit of partnership and of establishing for this purpose in the developing countries conditions which are conducive to sustained investment and growth.

We believe that international co-operation is essential to remove the causes of war, promote tolerance, combat injustice, and secure development among the peoples of the world. We are convinced that the Commonwealth is one of the most fruitful associations for these purposes.

In pursuing these principles the members of the Commonwealth believe that they can provide a constructive example of the multi-national approach which is vital to peace and progress in the modern world. The association is based on consultation, discussion and co-operation.

In rejecting coercion as an instrument of policy they recognize that the security of each member state from external aggression is a matter of concern to all members. It provides many channels for continuing exchanges of knowledge and views on professional, cultural, economic, legal and political issues among member states.

These relationships we intend to foster and extend, for we believe that our multi-national association can expand human understanding and understanding among nations, assist in the elimination of discrimination based on differences of race, colour or creed, maintain and strengthen personal liberty, contribute to the enrichment of life for all, and provide a powerful influence for peace among nations.

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE OF HEADS OF STATE

The Conference of Heads of State is the supreme organ of the Community. It is held at least once a year in one of the member states, and its President is the Head of State of the host country. Decisions of the Conference must be unanimous. It appoints the Secretary-General, accountant and financial controller of the Community. First conference, Niamey, Niger, in April 1975.

Chairman (1977): Col. MOUSSA TRAORÉ (Mali).

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

The Council of Ministers will meet at least twice a year, usually at the seat of the Community. Each member state will be represented by its Minister of Finance or a member of government, according to the subject under discussion. Decisions are taken unanimously.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

Responsible for carrying out decisions of the Conference of Heads of State and the Council of Ministers. Plans to set up an industrial development agency and a trade promotion agency. The Secretary-General is appointed for a four-year term.

Secretary-General: MOUSSA NGOM (Senegal).

REGIONAL CO-OPERATION TAX

Industrial products manufactured in the West African Economic Community may benefit from a special preferential system, when exported to the other member states. This system is particularized by the substitution of customs duties and taxes by a sole tax called Regional Co-operation tax.

The main purpose of the tax is to encourage exchanges within the Community; it will usually be lower than the ones now payable in the member states.

The Regional Co-operation tax came into force on January 1st, 1976.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT FUND

The Fund will be financed by member states according to their respective shares in the trade of industrial products within the Community. It will be able to compensate for certain types of trade loss and to finance economic development projects. In September 1977 the Fund amounted to Frs. CFA 1,287.6 million.

COURT OF ARBITRATION

A Court of Arbitration is to be set up; its composition, competence and procedure are to be determined in a protocol which will be approved by the Conference of Heads of State.

FUNCTIONS

The West African Economic Community will go beyond the West African Customs Union in co-ordinating not only customs and trade measures but also the development of policies with regard to transport and communications, cattle and beef, industry, external trade, tourism, energy, research, etc.

It will develop trade between member states in agricultural and industrial products, through the establishment of an area of organized trade; and it will develop regional economic co-operation policies, in particular as regards industry and transport.

Non-manufactured, crude products may be imported and exported within the Community without internal taxes.

Industrial products of member states, when exported to other member states, may benefit from the special preferential system based on a Regional Co-operation Tax, which replaces the import taxes of the separate states. Certain products remain subject to special agreements.

CONSEIL DE L'ENTENTE

(Entente Council)

Headquarters: Mutual Aid and Guarantee Fund, B.P. 20824, Abidjan, Ivory Coast.

A political and economic association of four states which were formerly part of French West Africa, and Togo, which joined in June 1966. The organization was founded in May 1959. In recent years it has given priority to economic co-ordination in member states.

MEMBERS

ORGANIZATION

THE COUNCIL

The Council consists of the Heads of State and the ministers concerned with the items on the agenda of particular meetings.

The Council meets annually, the place rotating each year between the member states. Secretariat services are provided by the Secretariat of the Mutual Aid and Guarantee Fund. Extraordinary meetings may be held at the request of two or more members.

Council meeting: Yamnougoukro, Ivory Coast, February 1976. No meeting was scheduled for 1977.

Chairman (1977): Gen. GNASSINGBÉ EYADÉMA (Togo).

MUTUAL AID AND GUARANTEE FUND

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Has the same membership as the Council above. Administrative and financial matters are delegated to a Management Committee which meets twice a year.

Chairman of the Management Committee: KPETIGO KWASSI.

SECRETARIAT

A small group of professional advisers assists development institutions in the preparation of projects, in analysis and presentation of requests for aid.

Administrative Secretary: PAUL KAYA.

FUNCTIONS

Aims to promote economic development in the region; to assist in preparing specific projects and to mobilize funds from other sources; to act as a guarantee fund to encourage investments in the region; to encourage trade and investment between the member states.

Since 1974 it has been empowered to finance the reduction of interest rates and the extension of maturity periods of foreign loans to member countries.

FINANCE

Consists of annual contributions from member states, subsidies and grants, and investment returns and commissions from its guarantee operations. In 1977 the capital of the Fund amounted to 7,250 million francs CFA. The 1976 budget amounted to 812 million francs CFA, of which about 60 per cent was allocated to the work of the secretariat and its development programmes.

Albania ceased to participate in the activities of the Council at the end of 1961.

OBSERVERS

In accordance with Article X of the Charter, the Council may invite participation of non-member countries in the work of its organs, in spheres agreed by arrangement with the relevant countries. At the present time a number of socialist non-member countries, including Viet-Nam and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, participate in the work of the Council's organs in the role of observers.

In 1964 an agreement was concluded whereby Yugoslavia can participate in certain defined spheres of the Council's activity, where a mutual interest with member countries prevails, in the areas of foreign trade, finance and currency, and in a number of branches of national economy, to all intents and purposes on the same level as member countries. The agreement also envisaged Yugoslavia attending sittings of the Council's organs in the capacity of observer.

CO-OPERATING COUNTRIES

The CMEA has co-operation agreements with Finland (signed May 1973), Iraq (July 1975) and Mexico (August 1975).

AIMS

To unite and co-ordinate the efforts of the member countries in order to improve the development of socialist economic integration; to promote planned economic development; to achieve more rapid economic and technical progress in these countries, and particularly a higher level of industrialization in countries where this is lacking; to achieve a steady growth of labour productivity; to work gradually towards a balanced level of development in the different regions; and a steady increase in standards of living in the member states.

COUNCIL

Supreme organ of CMEA. Meets at least once yearly, in the capital of each member state in turn, all members being represented. Discusses proposals from members, from the Executive Committee, CMEA Committee for Co-operative Planning, CMEA Committee for Scientific and Technical Co-operation, CMEA Committee for Materials and Technical Supply, Standing Commissions, the Secretariat and other bodies. Considers economic, scientific and technical collaboration. Lays down programme of action for CMEA.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Created at the 16th (Extraordinary) Session of the Council held in Moscow in June 1962 to take the place of the Conference of Members' Representatives and to form the chief executive organ of CMEA. Composed of the representatives of the member states at the level of Deputy Prime Minister, their deputies and advisers. Meets at least once every three months to examine proposals from member states, the Permanent Commissions and the Secretariat. Guides all co-ordinating work linked with the resolution of problems before the Council, in agreement with the decisions of the Session of the Council. The Chair is taken in turn by representatives of each country.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Council for Mutual Economic Assistance

1975 Budapest Heads of Governments of member states participated in this session.

Discussion of questions concerning the co-ordination of plans for 1976-80. Approval of a Concerted Plan for Multilateral Integration of Measures Providing for the Joint Construction of Enterprises and the Creation of Additional Production Capacities. This plan was estimated to cost 9,000 million transferable roubles. Discussion of scientific and technological questions.

1977 Warsaw

Heads of Governments of member states participated in this session. The joint development of energy and raw material supplies was discussed.

1976 Berlin

Heads of Governments of member states participated in this session. Review of the implementation of the Complex Programme for 1971-75. It was decided to extend the scope of the programme, and work was initiated to produce specific long-term programmes for a variety of sectors. These include fuel and power resources, raw materials, machine building, production of staple foods, production and delivery of consumer goods, development of transport between member countries.

CMEA TRADE

Foreign trade is one of the most important forms of economic co-operation between member states of CMEA. Trade between member states was planned by yearly agreements until 1951 and thereafter by long-term bilateral and multilateral trade agreements linked to the development plans of the member countries. In 1956 the standing Commission for Foreign Trade was set up. Trade between member countries comprises more than 60 per cent of their foreign trade which is wholly conducted through state monopolies. Long-term trade agreements were concluded with Yugoslavia for 1966-70, 1971-75, and 1976-80. The amount of trade between member-countries and Yugoslavia increased by 150 per cent during the period 1971-75.

COUNCIL OF ARAB ECONOMIC UNITY

20 Sharia Aisha el Taymouria, Garden City, Cairo, Egypt

Formed under the 1957 Arab Economic Unity Agreement, the Council is an autonomous organization aiming to form an integrated economy of all member states of the Arab League.

MEMBERS

Djibouti	Kuwait	Somalia	Yemen, Arab Republic
Egypt	Libya	Sudan	Yemen, People's Democratic Republic
Iraq	Mauritania	Syria
Jordan	Palestine Liberation Organization	United Arab Emirates

Morocco signed the agreement in 1962 but had not completed ratification by October 1977; Djibouti signed the agreement in September 1977.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

Entrusted with the implementation and follow-up of the Council's decisions. It has a number of permanent committees.

Secretary-General: ABDUL AAL AL-SAGBAN (Iraq).

COUNCIL

The first session was held in June 1964, and the 29th session was held in June 1977.

ACTIVITIES

ARAB COMMON MARKET

Based on a resolution passed by the Council in August 1964; its implementation is supervised by the Council and does not constitute a separate organization. Customs duties and other taxes on trade between the four member countries were eliminated in annual stages, the process being completed in 1971. The second stage is to be the adoption of a full customs union, and ultimately all restrictions on trade between the member countries, including quotas and other administrative restrictions, are to be abolished. Mems.: Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, Libya, Sudan, Syria. Libya and Sudan joined in June 1977.

Investment and Movement of Capital: the Council approved five agreements facilitating capital movement, settlement of investment disputes, avoidance of double taxation and provision for a corporation to guarantee against non-commercial risks.

ARAB MONETARY FUND

Established at Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates, in April 1977. First meeting of Executive Board, May 1977. Authorized capital: 250 Arab Accounting Dinars (an artificial unit equivalent to 3 SDRs as determined by the International Monetary Fund). This sum was equivalent to U.S. $860 million in May 1977. The chief purpose of the Fund is to assist countries with their foreign exchange requirements when in difficulty with their balances of payments. Other aims are to help stabilize exchange rates, to formulate policies for monetary co-operation, to advise on foreign investment, to develop Arab capital markets, to settle current payments between member countries and to form a common approach to international problems related to these questions.

Managing Director: JAWAD HASHIM (Iraq).

JOINT VENTURES

A number of multilateral organizations in industry and agriculture have been formed on the principle that faster development and economies of scale may be achieved by combining the efforts of member states. In industries that are new to the member countries, Arab Joint Companies are formed; existing industries are to be co-ordinated by the setting up of Arab Specialized Unions. The unions are for closer co-operation on problems of production and marketing, and to help companies deal as a group in international markets. The companies are intended to be self-supporting on a purely commercial basis; they may issue shares to citizens of the participating countries. The joint ventures are:

Arab Joint Companies (cap.=capital; figures in Kuwaiti dinars):

Arab Company for Mining, Amman, Jordan; cap. 120 million.

Arab Company for the Development of Animal Wealth: Damascus, Syria; cap. 66 million.

Arab Company for Pharmaceuticals and Medical Supplies: Cairo, Egypt: f. January 1976; cap. 50 million.

Arab Company for Agriculture and Food Production: f. June 1976; cap. 100 million.

Arab Company for Tourism: cap. 100 million.

Arab Company for Industrial Investments: Baghdad, Iraq; cap. 150 million.

Arab Specialized Unions:

Arab Union of Producers of Fertilizers: Kuwait.

Arab Union of Textile Industries: Cairo, Egypt.

Arab Union for Engineering and Electrical Industries: to be formed.

Arab Union for Paper Industries: to be formed.

Arab Union for Cement and Cement Products: to be formed.

Arab Union for Foodstuff Industries: to be formed.

THE COUNCIL OF EUROPE

NIC KLECKER (Luxembourg)

Secretary: HANS-CHRISTIAN KRÜGER (Federal Republic of Germany).

The commission is competent to examine complaints made either by a contracting party, or in certain cases, by an individual, non-governmental organization or group of individuals that the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms has been violated by one or more of the contracting parties. If the commission decides to admit the application, it then ascertains the full facts of the case and places itself at the disposal of the parties in order to try and reach a friendly settlement. If no settlement is reached, the commission sends a report to the Committee of Ministers in which it states an opinion as to whether there has been a violation of the Convention. It is then for the Committee of Ministers or, if the case is referred to it, the Court to decide whether or not a violation has taken place.

EUROPEAN COURT

Judges:

GIORGIO BALLADORE PALLIERI, President (Italy)

GÉRARD J. WIARDA, Vice-President (Netherlands)

HERMANN MOSLER, Vice-President (Federal Republic of Germany)

DENISE BINDSCHIEDLER-ROBERT (Switzerland)

DIMITRIOS EVRIGENIS (Greece)

JOÃO DE DEUS PINHEIRO FARINHA (Portugal)

Registrar: MARC-ANDRÉ EISSEN (France).

The Court may deal with a case only after the Commission has acknowledged the failure of efforts for a friendly settlement within the prescribed period. The following may bring a case before the Court, provided that the High Contracting Party or Parties concerned have accepted its compulsory jurisdiction or, failing that, with the consent of the High Contracting Party or Parties concerned: the Commission, a High Contracting Party whose national is alleged to be a victim, a High Contracting Party which referred the case to the Commission, and a High Contracting Party against which the complaint has been lodged. In the event of dispute as to whether the Court has jurisdiction, the matter is settled by the decision of the Court. The judgment of the Court is final. The Court may, in certain circumstances, give advisory opinions at the request of the Committee of Ministers.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL WORK PROGRAMME

A medium-term plan for 1976-80 covers human rights, social problems, education and culture, youth, public health, nature conservation and regional planning, regional and municipal government, legal co-operation and crime prevention. Annual programmes of activities are adopted as part of the budget.

Observers from other international organizations and non-governmental organizations participate in many activities.

ECONOMIC

Particular attention is given to the protection of the socio-economic rights of the individual.

Recent examples of the Council's work in this field are: consumer education and information, consumer consultation and participation, provision of adequate after-sale service.

SOCIAL

European Social Charter: in force since 1965, now applying in Austria, Cyprus, Denmark, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Norway, Sweden and the United Kingdom; lays down the rights and principles which are the basis of the Council's social policy, and guarantees a number of social and economic rights to the citizen; complements the European Convention of Human Rights, which guarantees certain civil and political rights (see Human Rights above).

European Code of Social Security: covers medical care and the following benefits: sickness, old-age, unemployment, employment injury, family, maternity, invalidity and survivor's benefit.

European Convention on Social Security: in force since March 1977 for Austria, Luxembourg and Turkey and since May 1977 for the Netherlands; most of the provisions apply automatically; others are subject to the conclusion of additional multilateral or bilateral agreements. The Convention is concerned with establishing equality of treatment for nationals of member states and with ensuring the granting and maintenance of social security rights by such means as the adding together of insurance periods completed in more than one state; two interim agreements are also in force, which will progressively be superseded by the Convention.

Recommendations to Governments: A number of resolutions passed by the Committee of Ministers give guidance for intergovernmental action on particular aspects of social policy, welfare or labour law.

Legislation: Eight states are harmonizing their legislation on the protection of industrial safety and health.

Fellowships: The Council of Europe operates a fellowships scheme for the benefit of personnel in the social services drawn from the member countries, and an annual research fellowships programme, in which a group of specialists investigates a subject chosen by the Social Committee.

HEALTH

Professional Co-operation: the Council aims to increase the exchange of medical techniques and equipment between member states. A programme of medical fellowships enables members of the medical profession and personnel of public health departments to study new techniques and modern methods of treatment, and to participate in co-ordinated research programmes.

European Agreements provide for special facilities for a network of blood transfusion centres, and for common standards for the training of nurses.

Study projects: include the removal, grafting and transplantation of human biological substances, blood transfusion methods and standards, histocompatibility, treatment of alcoholism, causes of failure of family planning programmes, participation of the patient in his own treatment, activities of psychologists in hospitals, attitude of health profession members dealing with dying patients, drug dependence, comparison of costs of health care inside and outside hospitals, self-medication, role of school health services within the general health services, prevention of infection in hospitals.

Legislation: Eleven states are harmonizing their legislation on pharmaceuticals, health control of foodstuffs, the use of pesticides and cosmetic products.

Convention on the Elaboration of a European Pharmacopoeia: entered into force in May 1974. Thirteen states are parties to the Convention and four observer states participate in the meetings; Vol. I published 1969, Vol. II 1971, supplement to Vol. II 1973, Vol. III 1975, supplement to Vol. III 1977.

Rehabilitation of the Disabled: ten states co-operate in medical and functional treatment, educational training, occupational and vocational work.

POPULATION

Committee of Demographic Experts: f. 1973 to observe population trends and their implications; currently engaged on a five-year study of fertility trends, age structures, migration and stationary population.

MIGRANT WORKERS AND REFUGEES

In May 1977 the Committee of Ministers adopted the European Convention on the Legal Status of Migrant Workers. The Committee also made a number of recommendations to governments on the reunion of migrant workers' families; clandestine immigration; and social and economic repercussions on migrant workers of economic recessions and crises.

Language classes for migrant workers and special experimental classes for their children are sponsored.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Vocational training grants are awarded to student-instructors and instructor-trainees.

European Resettlement Fund: created in 1956 to make loans to governments for the resettlement of refugees and to help in problems of over-population. Fourteen countries contribute to the Fund, which by the end of 1976 had granted loans totalling over $329 million.

LEGAL

European Committee on Legal Co-operation: supervises the work programme for international, administrative, civil and commercial law. Most of the specialized committees of legal experts work under its direction. Its work has resulted in numerous conventions on matters which include: foreign liabilities; information on foreign law; consular functions; bearer securities; state immunity; motorists' liability; legal status of children of unmarried parents; product liability; mutual aid in administrative matters.

Conferences of Ministers of Justice of Member States: although not formally under the Council of Europe, these meetings make proposals for the Council's work programme. Eleventh conference, Copenhagen, June 1978.

CRIME

European Committee on Crime Problems: has prepared conventions on such matters as extradition, mutual assistance in procedural matters, the international validity of criminal judgements and the transfer of proceedings. A number of resolutions on various questions relating to suppression of terrorism, penal law, penology and criminology have been adopted by the Committee of Ministers.

Criminological Scientific Council: composed of specialists in law, psychology, sociology and related sciences. Advises the European Committee on Crime Problems and the conferences of directors of criminological research institutes.

Penological items are examined by the Directors of Prison Administrations whose resolutions and conclusions serve as guidelines to the member States for the penal policy to be adopted.

EDUCATION AND CULTURE

Council for Cultural Co-operation (CCC): implements the educational and cultural programme which is based on the concepts of permanent education and cultural development. It administers the Cultural Fund which was established to promote and finance educational and cultural activities in accordance with the statute of the Council of Europe. Mems.: member states and other signatories of the Cultural Convention, the latter including Finland, Spain and the Vatican City. The European Cultural Foundation and the Consultative Assembly also hold membership.

The CCC is assisted by various committees and expert groups. Its range of activities is as follows: improving of the educational systems; pre-school education as a step towards equality of opportunity; closing the gap between pre-primary and primary education; curricula reform; the 16-19 age group, including technical and vocational training and vocational mobility; evaluation of national pilot projects for permanent education; modern language learning related to the motivation and needs of learners in different situations of use of language; structure of tertiary education; structures of staff; mobility of students and staff; equivalence of qualifications; level of attainment in university curricula; access to higher education; organization, content and methods of adult education; educational research; development of a European system for computer exchange of information (EUDISED); provision of a forum of discussion of educational research; cultural development and the quality of life in towns; use of the mass media including cable television.

The Council also organizes:

- Council of Europe Higher Education scholarships
- Teacher training scheme
- Co-operation in learning resources
- European Art Exhibitions
- Cultural Identity Card

Standing Conference of European Ministers of Education: secretariat services are provided by the Council of Europe. Sessions are held every two years.

YOUTH

European Youth Centre: equipped with audio-visual workshops, reading and conference rooms; provides about 20 residential courses a year for youth leaders, on European affairs, problems of modern society, the role of youth, and techniques of leading and organizing youth movements. About 600 people can be accommodated annually.

European Youth Foundation: aims to provide financial assistance to European activities of non-governmental youth organizations; began operations in 1973; total endowment in 1976 was 5 million French francs.

ENVIRONMENT

European Committee for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources: f. 1962; prepares policy recommendations and promotes co-operation in all environmental questions; introduced a European Water Charter in 1968; and a Soil Charter in 1974; convened the European Conservation Conference in 1970.

European Convention for the protection of International Watercourses against Pollution: drawn up by a special committee.

European Ministerial Conference on the Environment: first held in Vienna, 1973; the second Conference, held in Brussels, March 1976, discussed reconciling economic development with the protection of the natural environment, the protection of wildlife (a convention will be drafted) and voluntary participation in nature conservation. Third Conference scheduled for 1979 in Switzerland.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND REGIONAL PLANNING

Conference of Local and Regional Authorities in Europe: created in 1956 as a representative assembly of regions and municipalities of the member States of the Council of Europe; since April 1976 annual sessions chiefly concerned with local government matters, regional planning, regional policy of the European Communities, protection of the environment, town planning and social and cultural affairs.

Steering Committee on Regional and Municipal Matters: f. 1970 as a forum for senior officials from ministries of local government, for the exchange of experience

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

Agreements providing for co-operation and exchange of documents and observers have been concluded with the United Nations and its Agencies, and with most of the European inter-governmental organizations. Particularly close relations exist with the European Communities, OECD, EFTA and Western European Union. Members of the European Parliament hold an annual joint meeting with members of the Consultative Assembly.

Israel is represented in the Consultative Assembly by observers, and certain European non-member countries have been invited to participate in or send observers to certain meetings of technical committees and specialized conferences.

Relations with non-member states, other organizations and non-governmental organizations are co-ordinated within the Secretariat by the Directorate of Political Affairs inside which an external relations division was established in 1972.

EAST AFRICAN COMMUNITY

P.O.B. 1001, Arusha, Tanzania

The Community was established in 1967 to strengthen the common market in the former British territories of East Africa (Kenya, Tanzania, Uganda); its principal activities were the meetings of the East African Authority, Legislative Assembly, four Councils, Secretariat and other main institutions; and the work of four corporations, for Railways, Harbours, Posts and Telecommunications and Airways.

The Community also took over the functions of the former East African Common Services Organization, under which a number of scientific, technical, medical and agricultural institutions have been maintained.

In recent years little activity has been reported in the main institutions of the community. During 1976 and 1977 the border between Kenya and Tanzania was closed and the four corporations were under strain; by October 1977 they had all been replaced in effect by national services, and Kenya had announced that it had withdrawn from the Community.

The continued work of the Community services, which are described below, was in question during 1977, as the Community had become heavily indebted and further finance would be required.

EAST AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

Kampala, Uganda

Established in 1967 to provide financial and technical assistance to promote the industrial development of the member states.

The Bank's members are the three governments together with such other non-governmental bodies, enterprises and institutions whose membership is approved by the governments. Initial subscriptions by the governments total Sh. 120 million and the total authorized capital is Sh. 400 million. The Bank is administered by a Board of Directors appointed by the members.

ORGANIZATION

(as at August 1977)

AUTHORITY OF HEADS OF STATE AND GOVERNMENT

Meets once a year. The Chairman is drawn from the member states in turn. First session, Lomé, Togo, November 1976.

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

Consists of two representatives from each country; chairman is drawn from each country in turn. The first session was held in Accra, Ghana, in July 1976. The third session, in Lagos, Nigeria, in July 1977, approved the manpower requirements of the Secretariat, the staff regulations and an interim budget.

TRIBUNAL

To interpret the treaty and settle disputes that are referred to it.

EXECUTIVE SECRETARIAT

Began operations in March 1977. The Executive Secretary is elected for a four-year term, which may be renewed once only.

Executive Secretary: BOUBACAR DIABY OUATTARA (Ivory Coast).

Deputy Executive Secretaries: JAMES NTI (Ghana); Dr. D. M. TRAORE (Guinea).

SPECIALIZED COMMISSIONS

There are four commissions:

- (a) Trade, Customs, Immigration, Monetary and Payments;
- (b) Industry, Agriculture and Natural Resources;
- (c) Transport, Telecommunications and Energy;
- (d) Social and Cultural Affairs.

AIMS

To promote co-operation and development in economic activity, particularly in the fields for which specialized commissions are appointed, to raise the standard of living of the people of the member countries, increase and maintain economic stability, improve relations among member countries and contribute to the progress and development of Africa.

ACTIVITIES

CUSTOMS UNION

Elimination of tariffs and some other obstructions to trade amongst member states is planned over a transitional period of 15 years. During the first two years import duties on intra-community trade are to be maintained as they are, and then eliminated in phases over the next eight years. Quotas and other restrictions of equivalent effect are to be abolished in the first 10 years. In the remaining five years all differences between external customs tariffs are to be abolished, leading to a common customs tariff.

SAFEGUARDS

The treaty provides for compensation for states whose import duties are reduced through trade liberalization and contains a clause permitting safeguard measures in favour of any country affected by economic disturbances through the application of the treaty.

COMMON POLICIES

The treaty also contains a commitment to abolish all obstacles to the free movement of people, services and capital; and to harmonization of agricultural policies; promotion of common projects in marketing, research and the agriculturally based industries; joint development of economic and industrial policies and elimination of disparities in levels of development; common monetary policies; the establishment of the fund for co-operation, compensation and development (see below).

FUND FOR CO-OPERATION, COMPENSATION AND DEVELOPMENT

Lomé, Togo

The Fund is administered by a Board of Directors.

The chief executive of the Fund is the Managing Director, who holds office for a term of four years and is eligible for reappointment for another term of four years only.

Managing Director: Dr. ROMEO HORTON (Liberia).

The Deputy Managing Director is to be nominated by Benin.

European Broadcasting Union

TECHNICAL CENTRE

Comprises the Technical Directorate, the Eurovision Control Centre, the Receiving and Measuring Centre, and the Technical Committee Secretariat.

Director: R. GRESSMANN (Federal Republic of Germany).

AIMS

To represent the members and establish relations with other broadcasting organizations or groups; promote research and the exchange of information on broadcasting; assist the development of broadcasting; seek the solution, by means of international co-operation, of any differences that may arise; supervise international broadcasting agreements.

ACTIVITIES

Legal: The essential task of the EBU Legal Committee is to supervise international conventions dealing with the rights that those who collaborate in or provide services for programmes can claim, or the rights that broadcasting organizations themselves can claim for their programmes.

Technical: the main categories of technical work are:

- (a) Operations: includes the supervision and technical planning of international transmissions, and policy formulation on future trends in broadcasting practice.
- (b) Research and development: some of the research undertaken specifically requires a combined effort based internationally; attention is also given to problems posed by the introduction of new techniques.

Radio Programme Committee: f. 1964 to organize programme exchanges, which include music, drama, sports and educational programmes; the EBU concert seasons are broadcast live simultaneously in the member countries; exchange of musical publications; exchange of new ideas on radio programming.

Television Programme Committee: organizes programme exchanges and news transmissions, within Eurovision and with other continents via satellite; exchanges recorded television material, including agricultural and educational programmes and films; organizes screening sessions and staff training courses.

Eurovision: f. 1954; a permanent sound and vision network covering Europe and North Africa; 33 television services in 26 countries are linked. Iran, Israel and Jordan are connected by satellite. The technical aspects are organized at the Technical Centre, in Brussels. Eurovision's most important application is in the exchange of television news.

In 1976 (last complete statistical year) 756 programmes (763 in 1975) of a duration of 1,235 hours (1,051 in 1975) were transmitted on the Eurovision Network and received by an average of 9.4 television services (5.9 in 1975). 6,353 news items were broadcast (6,018 in 1975) to an average of 19.4 television news services, giving a total of 123,569 relays (109,030 in 1975).

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

No final decision has been made on a headquarters for the Communities. Meetings of the principal organs take place in Brussels, Luxembourg and Strasbourg.

The European Coal and Steel Community was created in 1951 to pool the coal and steel production of the six original members (see below). It was seen as a first step towards a united Europe. The European Economic Community and European Atomic Energy Community were established in 1957, the former to create a Common Market and approximate economic policies, the latter to promote growth in nuclear industries. Political union is regarded as the ultimate aim of the Communities.

COMMUNITY INSTITUTIONS

Originally each of the Communities had its own Commission (High Authority in the case of the ECSC) and Council, but a treaty transferring the powers of these bodies to a single Commission and a single Council came into effect in 1967.

Commission of the European Communities

200 rue de la Loi, 1049 Brussels, Belgium

MEMBERS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

(October 1977)

President: ROY JENKINS (U.K.): Secretariat-General, Legal Service, Information, Spokesman's Group.

Vice-Presidents: FRANÇOIS-XAVIER ORTOLI (France): Economic and Financial Affairs, Credits and Investments, Statistical Office.

WILHELM HAERKAMP (Fed. Repub. of Germany): External Affairs.

FINN OLAV GUNDELACH (Denmark): Agriculture and Fisheries.

LORENZO NATALI (Italy): Special responsibilities for institutional questions pertaining to enlargement; environmental affairs, nuclear safety, preparations for direct elections to the European Parliament.

Members: HENK VREDELING (Netherlands): Employment and Social Affairs, Tripartite Conference.

CLAUDE CHEYSSON (France): Development aid.

GUIDO BRUNNER (Fed. Repub. of Germany): Energy, Research and Science, Education.

RAYMOND VOUEL (Luxembourg): Competition policy.

ANTONIO GIOLETTI (Italy): Co-ordination of Community Funds, Regional Policy.

RICHARD BURKE (Ireland): Taxation, Transport, Consumer Affairs, Relations with the European Parliament.

Viscount ETIENNE DAVIGNON (Belgium): Industrial Affairs, Internal Market.

CHRISTOPHER TUGENDHAT (U.K.): Budget and Financial Control, Financial Institutions, Personnel and Administration.

The Commission works on the principle of collegiate responsibility but with each member having responsibility for a particular sector.

The functions of the Commission are fourfold: to ensure the application of the provisions of the Treaties and of the provisions enacted by the institutions of the Communities in pursuance thereof; to formulate recommendations or opinions in matters which are the subject of the Treaties, where the latter expressly so provides or where the Commission considers it necessary; to dispose, under the conditions laid down in the Treaties of a power of decision of its own and to participate in the preparation of acts of the Council of Ministers and of the European Parliament; and to exercise the competence conferred on it by the Council of Ministers for the implementation of the rules laid down by the latter.

The Commission may not include more than two members having the nationality of the same state; the number of members of the Commission may be amended by a unanimous vote of the Council of Ministers. In the performance of their duties, the members of the Commission are forbidden to seek or accept instructions from any Government or other body, or to engage in any other paid or unpaid professional activity.

The members of the Commission are appointed by the Governments of the member states acting in common agreement for a renewable term of four years; the President and Vice-Presidents are appointed for renewable terms of two years. Any member of the Commission, if he no longer fulfils the conditions required for the performance of his duties, or if he commits a serious offence, may be declared removed from office by the Court of Justice. The Court may furthermore, on the petition of the Council of Ministers or of the Commission itself, provisionally suspend any member of the Commission from his duties.

Council of Ministers of the European Communities

170 rue de la Loi, Brussels, Belgium

The Council of Ministers has the double responsibility of ensuring the co-ordination of the general economic policies of the member states and of taking the decisions necessary for carrying out the Treaties.

The Council is composed of representatives of the member states, each Government delegating to it one of its members. In practice more than one minister from each member state may be present. The office of President is exercised for a term of six months by each member of the Council in rotation according to the alphabetical order of the member states. Meetings of the Council are called by the President acting on his own initiative or at the request of a member or of the Commission.

The conclusions of the Council can usually be taken by a majority vote; where conclusions require a qualified majority, the votes of its members are weighted as follows: France, Germany, Italy, and the U.K. 10, Belgium and the Netherlands 5, Denmark and Ireland 3, Luxembourg 2 (Total 58). Majorities are required for the adoption of any conclusions as follows: 41 votes in cases where the Treaty requires a previous proposal of the Commission, or 41 votes including a favourable vote by at least six members in all other cases. Abstentions by members either present or represented do not prevent the adoption by the Council of conclusions requiring unanimity. When the Council acts on a proposal of the Commission, it must, where the amendment of such a proposal is involved, act only by means of a unanimous vote; as long as the Council has not so acted, the Commission may amend its original proposal, particularly in cases where the European Parliament has been consulted. The Council may request the Commission to undertake any studies which the Council considers desirable for the achievement of the common objectives, and to submit to it any appropriate proposals.

The Ministers of Foreign Affairs meet in the Council regularly each month.

PERMANENT REPRESENTATIVES

Preparation and co-ordination of the Council's work is entrusted to a Committee of Permanent Representatives, meeting in Brussels, consisting of the ambassadors of the member countries to the Communities, and aided by committees of national civil servants.

14. Rules of Procedure and Petitions: WILLIAM HAMILTON (U.K.).

The task of the European Parliament is to supervise the executive organs of the three Communities, and to debate the Annual General Reports of the three Communities and all other matters of interest to them. It has powers, by a vote of censure of a two-thirds majority, to dismiss the executives of the Communities. It meets seven or eight times a year (normally in Strasbourg) for sessions of up to one week. The annual opening session is in October.

European Communities

The Parliament has been given increased legislative power over the Community Budget since the end of 1974.

The first decision for elections by universal suffrage to the Parliament was made by the Paris summit conference of December 1974. The European Council in Rome in December 1975 decided that the elections would take place in May or June 1978; however, any member country unable to hold direct elections at that time should be allowed, to continue the current practice of appointing representatives from the national parliaments.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: H. R. NORD (Netherlands).

Court of Justice

Centre Européen, Plateau de Kirchberg, P.O.B. 1406, Luxembourg

President of the Court:

HANS KUTSCHER (Federal Republic of Germany)

Presidents of the Chambers:

ANDREAS DONNER (Netherlands)

PIERRE PESCATORE (Luxembourg)

Judges:

JOSSE MERTENS DE WILMARS (Belgium)

AINDRIES O'KEEFE (Ireland)

MAX SØRENSEN (Denmark)

LORD MACKENZIE STUART (U.K.)

GIACINTO BOSCO (Italy)

ADOLPHE TOFFAIT (France)

Advocates-General:

HENRI MAYRAS (France)

ALBERTO TRABUCCHI (Italy)

JEAN PIERRE WARNER (U.K.)

GERHARD REISCHL (Federal Republic of Germany)

The primary task of the Court of Justice is to ensure the observance of law and justice in the interpretation and application of the Treaties setting up the three Communities. The President of the Court is appointed by the Judges from among their members for a renewable term of three years. The Judges and Advocates-General are appointed for renewable six-year terms by the Governments of the member states. A partial renewal of the Court takes place every three years, affecting four and five Judges alternately as well as two Advocates-General. The Court has full jurisdiction to settle all disputes within the Communities and to award penalties. It may review the legal validity of acts (other than recommendations or opinions) of the executives and is competent to give judgment on appeals by a member state or the executives on grounds of incompetence, of errors of substantial form, of infringement of the Treaties or of any legal provision relating to their application, or of abuse of power. Any natural or legal person may, under the same conditions, appeal against a decision addressed to him or against a decision which, although in the form of a regulation or decision addressed to another person, is of direct and specific concern to him.

The Court is also empowered to hear cases concerning compensation for damage, disputes between the Communities and their employees, fulfilment by member states of the obligations arising under the Statute of the European Investment Bank, arbitration clauses contained in any contract concluded, under public or private law, by or on behalf of the Communities and disputes between member states in connection with the objects of the Treaties, where such disputes are submitted to it under the terms of a compromise. It also gives pre-judicial rulings at the request of national courts on the interpretation of the Treaties or of Community legislation.

The European Council

The Heads of State or Government of the member countries meet three times a year, generally in the capital of the member state which currently exercises the presidency of the Council of Ministers.

Previously, summit meetings were held at rather less frequent intervals and were often required to take decisions which came to be regarded as the major guidelines for the development of the Community.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

In answer to the evident need for more frequent consultation at the highest level it was decided at the summit meeting in Paris in December 1974 that the meetings would become an institution of the Community. The European Council holds its meetings in a less formal atmosphere than the earlier summit meetings.

European Communities

European Investment Bank

2 Place de Metz, Luxembourg

Board of Governors: Generally the Finance Ministers of the nine member states.

Board of Directors: There are 18 directors and 10 alternates. France, Germany, Italy and the U.K. nominate three directors and two alternates; Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands each nominate one director and, jointly, one alternate; Denmark and Ireland each nominate one director, and the Commission nominates one director and one alternate.

Management Committee:

President: YVES LE PORTZ (France).

Vice-Presidents: HORST-OTTO STEFFE (Federal Republic of Germany), Sir RAYMOND BELL (U.K.), GIORGIO BOMBASSEI DE VETTOR (Italy).

Members: The nine Governments of the Community.

The task of the European Investment Bank is to contribute, by calling on the capital markets and its own resources, to the balanced and smooth development of the Common Market in the interest of the Community. For this purpose, the Bank is to grant loans and guarantees on a non-profit-making basis to facilitate the financing of projects for developing less-developed regions, for modernizing or converting enterprises or for creating new activities.

The Bank is also authorized to lend to Greece, Portugal, Turkey, Yugoslavia and Spain, to the overseas dependencies of member countries, to the African, Caribbean and Pacific countries of the Lomé Convention and to Mediterranean countries that have association or co-operation agreements with the EEC.

Major Consultative Bodies

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COMMITTEE

(2 rue Ravenstein, Brussels)

President: HENRI CANONGE.

Vice-Presidents: LOUIS AMEYE, J. M. W. VAN GREUNSVEN.

Members: 144 persons representing economic and social fields, 12 each from Belgium and the Netherlands, 24 each from France, Germany, Italy and the U.K., 9 from Denmark and Ireland, and 6 from Luxembourg. One-third represent each side of industry and one-third the general economic interest. Appointed for a renewable term of four years by the unanimous vote of the Council of Ministers of the European Communities (Euratom is also represented in this Committee). Members are appointed in their personal capacity and are not bound by any mandatory instructions.

The Committee is advisory and is consulted by the Council of Ministers or by the Commission of the European Communities, particularly with regard to agriculture, free movement of workers, harmonization of laws and transport.

ECSC CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

Members: Not fewer than 60 and not more than 81 representing, in equal proportions, producers, workers and consumers and dealers in the coal and steel industries.

The Committee is advisory and is attached to the Commission. Its members are appointed by the Council of Ministers for two years and are not bound by any mandate from the organizations that designated them in the first place.

Agricultural Advisory Committees. One for the organization of the market of each sector; two for dealing with social questions in agriculture; and one for structures.

In addition to the consultative bodies listed above there are several hundred special interest groups representing every type of interest within the Community. All these hold unofficial talks with the Commission.

Special Funds

(see also Statistics below)

SOCIAL FUND

The Fund was established under the EEC Treaty to improve opportunities for employment within the Community by covering 50 per cent of expenses incurred by a member state in retraining or resettling workers or in granting benefits to workers whose employment was temporarily reduced.

The Fund has been based on a new scheme since May 1972. Assistance is given in more general circumstances, not limited to cases of need that arise specifically from the functioning of the Common Market.

EUROPEAN AGRICULTURAL FUND

Created in 1962 the European Agricultural Guidance and Guarantee Fund (or FEOGA as it is known after its French initials) is administered by the Commission. The Guidance Section contributes credits towards the structural reform of agriculture. The Guarantee Section, under which the bulk of the Community's budget has always been spent, acts in two ways. The prices of imports are kept at a threshold price by means of variable import levies, and the internal market is supported by the authorities who are committed to buy at an intervention price. Export refunds are also provided by this section.

EUROPEAN MONETARY CO-OPERATION FUND

Created in 1973, the Fund is to take over the running of the Community's special narrow margin system whereby six members' currencies fluctuate against each other within limits of 2.25 per cent, compared with the 4.5 per cent permitted under international rules. The Fund will also put the settlement of debits and credits under the scheme on a multilateral basis, acting as a clearing agent, instead of leaving the two countries concerned in a support operation to settle bilaterally.

In addition it will take over the management of the Community's system of short-term credits, which central banks can grant to a partner in temporary balance of payments difficulties.

EUROPEAN DEVELOPMENT FUND

Community development aid is mainly in the framework of the Conventions of association. The two Yaoundé Conventions included the second and third European Development Funds, and the fourth began operations with the Lomé Convention. The chief purposes of the Fund are to increase production and modernize basic services, and to improve marketing and sales promotion. The Fund also employs technical assistance staff to help with projects.

REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT FUND

Payments began in autumn 1975. The Fund is intended to compensate for the unequal rate of development in different regions of the Community. Disbursements may be as much as 15 per cent of the total cost of a private project; and up to 30 per cent of the public expenditure on new infrastructure. More generally, the Fund can contribute up to 50 per cent of the total national regional aid in each case.

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

European Economic Community

Free Movement of Goods. In accordance with the EEC treaty the Community established between 1958 and 1968 a customs union covering the exchange of all goods, the prohibition of customs duties on exports and imports between member states, and the adoption of a common external tariff in relations with third countries. Quota restrictions on internal trade were abolished by 1962, while the removal of internal tariff barriers had been achieved by July 1st, 1968. Common markets for coal and steel and for nuclear materials had been achieved by 1955 and 1959 respectively. While tariff barriers have been removed, however, (or in the case of the new members are being removed) the free movement of goods is in practice restricted by a great many non-tariff barriers, such as national regulations on health and safety. The Commission proposes to deal with these as soon as possible.

Free Movement of Persons. Free movement of workers between member countries became effective on July 1st, 1968. Workers may seek employment anywhere in the Community, though governments retain the right, in some cases, to restrict free movement of labour. These provisions do not apply to employees in the public service. Nationals of member states enjoy equal treatment in every important field relating to unemployment, including matters relating to taxation, social insurance and dependants. Medical treatment on the same basis as that received by nationals is also available.

The European Council decided in December 1975 that uniform European Community passports could be introduced in 1978. The passports would bear the title European Community above the national designation, but would be issued by the national authorities and are not designed to have more significance than national passports, other than a symbolic one.

Free Movement of Services. The Right of Establishment—the right to engage in business and supply services anywhere in the Community—is provided for in the EEC treaty. Progress has been slow in this field because of inherent difficulties such as the problem of mutual recognition of differing professional qualifications, though some progress has been achieved in banking, nursing and in-insurance. Many aspects of company law also require to be harmonized.

Free Movement of Capital. This is also provided for in the EEC treaty. In practice the provisions have only been implemented in a modest way. Free movement of capital is, however, entailed by the plan to achieve full economic and monetary union.

Approximation of Fiscal Policy. From January 1st, 1973, a single system of Value Added Tax was applied throughout the six original member countries, and applied throughout the new member countries from April 1st, 1973. Rates of VAT, however, are not uniform.

Proposals for further harmonization resulted in no decision by the Council, and the Commission revised its proposals in a programme which it issued in July 1975, calling for:

European Communities

- simplification of some procedures for VAT and excise duty;
- duty free allowances;
- harmonization of corporation tax systems.

The long term plan entails uniform rates of VAT, excise duty and direct taxes.

Competition. Both the EEC and ECSC treaties make provision for action against practices which restrict or distort competition in intra-Community trading (competition within individual countries is excluded). Since 1961 the Commission has ruled on a large number of inter-company restrictive agreements and has become increasingly active in the anti-trust field.

European Atomic Energy Community (EURATOM)

The treaty setting up EURATOM came into force on January 1st, 1958. Its role is to assist the growth of nuclear industries in the Community. This includes research, access to information and the building of power reactors. It is also responsible for establishing common laws and procedures for nuclear industries.

A common market in nuclear materials was introduced in 1959, eliminating internal duties and setting a common tariff for imports from third countries. Assistance is given to the free movement of specialized labour, and there is a common insurance scheme against nuclear risks.

There is also an Agency for the supply of nuclear fuels, with rights to purchase materials within the community and a monopoly of contracts with third countries. It is the exclusive owner of special fissile materials.

An agreement which had been signed in 1973 between the IAEA and EURATOM entered into force in 1977. The agreement is designed to improve co-operation between the two agencies on nuclear safeguards and controls. It was hoped that this would contribute towards an unimpeded steady delivery of fissionable materials.

A plan to finance the development of nuclear power stations through EURATOM with loans eventually amounting to U.S. $200 million had to be postponed because of conditions attached to agreement by the United Kingdom.

The Commission bases its attitude to nuclear energy on the need to avoid an energy shortage, which it considers to be likely by the 1980s unless a Community programme to develop nuclear energy is put into effect.

European Coal and Steel Community (ECSC)

The ECSC treaty, signed on April 18th, 1951, came into force on July 25th, 1952. By the end of 1954 nearly all barriers to trade in coal, coke, steel, pig-iron and scrap iron had been removed. The Community fixes prices and imposes fines on firms infringing treaty rules. The ECSC provides financial aid to resettle and retrain workers whose jobs are put at risk by technical developments in the coal and steel industries. Funds for this are raised by levies on coal and steel production, the rates for which are decided annually. The ECSC may assist investment and redevelopment programmes by granting or guaranteeing loans.

The iron and steel market was particularly affected by the recession in 1974-75; France called increasingly for emergency action by the Commission, which in the event of a crisis is empowered by treaty to fix production quotas and to limit imports from third countries. The Federal Republic of Germany and some other members were opposed to this.

The Commission drew up a plan involving regulations for the control of prices and limits to production in the various steel-making concerns of the Community. This was brought into effect in 1977 and is referred to as the Simonet plan. An international group, the European Federation of Iron and Steel Industries (EUROFER), was formed by the steel makers to help rationalize the industry.

Main Developments to October 1977

Agriculture. The main features of the common policy on agriculture, adopted by stages since 1962, are:

- (a) the establishing of a common market for almost all major agricultural commodities—cereals, pigmeat, eggs and poultry, rice, milk and dairy products, beef and veal, fruit and vegetables including manufactures thereof, wine, oils and fats, sugar, non-food horticultural products, tobacco, flax and hemp, seed, fish, hops;

- (b) support buying, through the Agricultural Fund (see p. 177), to ensure that prices do not fall below agreed levels;
- (c) a system of protective levies on agricultural imports from third countries;

(d) the rationalization of Community agriculture.

The Commission issued a proposal in September 1975 to introduce a common market for sheep meat.

Agricultural prices are fixed at a common level for the community as a whole, monetary compensation amounts (MCAs) being paid for agricultural exchanges between member states to take account of fluctuations between the reference rate of exchange and the real rate. Thus a subsidy is paid to the supplier in a country whose currency has appreciated against a reference rate of exchange, and a tax is paid by the supplier where the currency has depreciated or not appreciated as much. The reference rates of exchange are determined in relation to the unit of account, and are known as the green currencies.

The largest category of expenditure under the agricultural policy is the guarantee section of the Agricultural Fund, which pays for intervention buying; in 1977 agriculture amounted to slightly less than three-quarters of the General Budget.

A report by the Commission on its stock-taking of the agricultural policy was published in February 1975; this rejected any change in basic principles, making six main recommendations related to the reduction of surpluses and the alignment of policies to the requirements of efficient producers.

Fisheries. The common fisheries policy gives all EEC fishermen equal access to the waters of the member states; in the case of the United Kingdom, Ireland and Denmark special arrangements delay full implementation until 1982.

Imports from third countries are controlled by use of reference prices, with preferential entry under separate agreements with each of the EFTA countries. Duties on imports from Iceland began to be reduced in July 1976.

From the beginning of 1977 the Community has reserved a zone extending up to 200 nautical miles (370 km.) from the shore around all its coastlines, within which all member countries have access to fishing and other economic uses of the sea. Exclusive national zones extend for 12 nautical miles (22.2 km.). Agreements to regulate exploitation by third countries are being negotiated, the main countries concerned during 1977 being Iceland and the U.S.S.R.

The Commission has proposed that the Council of Ministers lay down a policy for limiting catches for all member states, in order to conserve stocks of fish. During 1977 an interim arrangement to reduce catches was prepared, to come into effect at the beginning of 1978.

Nuclear Research. In 1976 the EEC and EURATOM signed an agreement with the International Atomic Energy Agency for co-operation on energy research. The Communities were expected to begin their participation with two research projects, one on nuclear safety and one on the construction of a neutron source.

A new four-year programme for the Community's Joint Research Centre (JRC) up to 1980 was submitted to the Council in the autumn of 1976. The main innovation is that instead of spreading resources over many projects as in the preceding programme, the plan concentrates on two sectors—energy and the environment. In the energy sector half the research will be devoted to nuclear safety.

The cost of the new programme is estimated at EUA 374.4 million and will be distributed between the four establishments of the JRC as follows.

Ispira, Italy. (by far the largest of the establishments): safety of reactors, management of radioactive materials, hydrogen, environment and resources, services and support; solar energy laboratory.

Karlsruhe, Federal Republic of Germany: plutonium fuels and actinide research.

Petten, Netherlands: high-temperature materials.

Geel, Belgium: Bureau for Nuclear Measurements.

The Joint European Torus (JET) is an experimental thermonuclear machine which will pioneer new processes of nuclear fusion. Since 1974 work has been proceeding at Culham in the United Kingdom; the member states agreed in 1977 to establish the project at Culham permanently.

Energy. Two questions concerning petroleum in the Community have been of major importance recently: the use of a minimum price for oil from the North Sea; and an arrangement for sharing stocks of oil in the event of a blockage of supplies from external sources.

There had been no agreement on a minimum price during the period under review. This was because of the long-standing French policy of opposition to such a plan.

An emergency strategy for oil sharing, under which member states would accept mandatory cuts in their consumption of energy, was discussed by the Council in July 1977. Apart from minor reservations, the plan was approved.

Industry. A proposal for a European Company Statute was approved by the Commission in April 1975. This provides an optional structure for new companies wishing to trade across frontiers of EEC countries subject only to Community legislation. It involves worker participation, a supervisory board and a works' council.

Proposals have also been put forward as the basis for discussion as to how similar principles might be introduced in national legislation.

The Community Patent Convention was signed in Luxembourg in December 1975, providing for harmonization of patent legislation, and will come into effect on ratification by all EEC countries. The convention anticipated the entry into force at the end of 1976 of the European Patent Convention embracing 21 West European countries, and would have the effect of creating a uniform bloc within the wider system.

The Business Co-operation Centre, created by the Commission in 1973, has provided businesses with information and contacts. Its work has resulted in a number of contractual links for co-operation between companies in different member countries.

Information. A three-year plan for scientific and technical information was agreed by the Council in March 1975. Organized access to information is considered a priority for the development of energy, raw materials and industrial policy.

Euronet, a Community-wide transmission system for data from over 20 computer banks, was installed during 1977. This will be of use mainly to research centres and to high-technology industries.

Science and Technology. In January 1974 the Council approved a policy programme with the following main points: the creation of a committee for scientific and technical research (CREST) charged with the co-ordination of all aspects of national research policies not subject to military or industrial secrecy; co-operation with the European Science Foundation; action on research projects in support of Community policy in various fields; and a pilot project on a technological forecasting unit.

In August 1977 the Commission sent a plan to the Council to encourage member states to keep up or increase their research efforts in science and technology.

Transport. A scheme introduced in 1968 affected road transport including the conditions of competition; to eliminate frontier formalities, community licences for cross-frontier transport were introduced. In 1971 common rules for cross-frontier passenger transport, and a revision of maximum driving times for short distance transport, were agreed.

Rules limiting the size and weight of lorries crossing frontiers are under consideration and may be adopted by 1980.

Educational Policy. The Education Ministers of the Six met for the first time in November 1971 to discuss the proposals for a European university and for mutual recognition of academic qualifications made in the EEC treaty. They agreed to create a European postgraduate university institute in Florence and to set up a group to study the creation of a European education development centre. The Florence institute was consequently established; courses were planned for 600 postgraduate students. During the second academic year, 1976-77, about 110 students attended.

Social Policy. A Social Action Programme for 1974-76 was adopted by the Council in January 1974. The Ministers agreed to allow assistance for the handicapped and for migrant workers from the Social Fund; approved an action programme for handicapped workers; set up a European General Industrial Safety Committee; and reorganized the Mines Safety and Health Commission.

The Council agreed on a directive for equal pay rights for women to be in force by February 1976; the introduction of a 40-hour week and 4-week annual holiday has also been called for.

Other objectives were:

1. an initial action programme for migrant workers;
2. a European vocational training centre (opened in Berlin in March 1977);
3. harmonization of laws for the protection of workers' rights in the case of mergers (a directive was adopted in 1977 establishing the workers' right to prior consultation by management about the arrangements for a transfer of ownership powers);
4. action to achieve equality between men and women in employment, training and promotion;
5. an initial action programme for health and safety at work;

6. the legal framework to permit specific measures to combat poverty.
7. measures to co-ordinate employment policies and social protection policies;
8. measures to involve workers in the decision-making process in their companies, and to involve both management and labour in the activities of the EEC.

Tripartite conferences of trade union representatives, employers' representatives and Ministers for Finance or Economy and for Employment or Social Affairs have been held annually since 1975. The third conference, in June 1977, authorized an intensive programme of investigations into four aspects of policy for reducing unemployment, to be carried out by the tripartite institutions of the Community—principally the Standing Committee on Employment and the Economic Policy Committee.

Consumer Protection and Information. A preliminary programme was issued by the Council in April 1975, in the form of a charter of five basic rights:

- protection of health and safety;
- protection of economic interests;
- right of compensation for defective goods, including damage caused;
- right to information, including consumer education;
- consumer consultation and representation.

Environment Policy. The first Environment Action Programme began in 1973, and the second, for the period 1977-81, was published by the Commission in 1976. This comprises five main sections: war on waste, conservation, prevention of pollution, developing countries and international co-operation, and research and information.

Regional Policy. The Regional Development Fund, created in January 1975, began operations in autumn 1975 (see table, page 187).

Economic and Monetary Union: the following objectives for the end of 1973 were agreed by the Council in 1971, as the first of three stages towards union:

- the narrowing of exchange rate margins to 2.25 per cent;
- creation of a medium-term pool of reserves;
- co-ordination of short- and medium-term economic and budgetary policies;
- a joint position on international monetary issues;
- harmonization of taxes;
- creation of the European Monetary Co-operation Fund (see above);
- creation of the Regional Development Fund (see above).

The narrowing of exchange margins (the "Snake") came into effect in 1972; but Denmark, France, Ireland, Italy and the United Kingdom have since floated their currencies, with only Denmark permanently returning to the arrangement. Sweden and Norway also linked their currencies to the "snake"; but in August 1977 Sweden withdrew from the arrangement.

The Monetary Co-operation Fund came into effect in April 1973, but its effect has been limited, mainly because of the floating of the currencies.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

European Union. A report by Léo Tindemans, the Belgian Prime Minister, was published in January 1976. Resulting from a year of surveying opinions among government and other representatives, the report analysed the problems that would need to be dealt with in a gradual change to political unity. These include regional imbalances in development, and the formation of common policies on industry, energy, research and economic and monetary union.

Another difficult task would be to form a united external policy, not least in negotiations for a new international economic order. The Community would also require a common defence policy.

The report contains specific proposals for discussion. To bring about economic and monetary union, for example, all members should be included in the joint currency float and the European Monetary Co-operation Fund should be strengthened for this purpose. The possibility was mentioned that the more prosperous members might proceed to economic union ahead of the other countries, achieving union in two stages.

Some of the Community Institutions would need to be strengthened, particularly the Parliament; in the Council of Ministers majority voting should more commonly replace the system requiring unanimity. Political direction should come from the European Council.

External Relations. An example of the difficulty of forming a common policy was the fundamental difference between members over the question of a response to the rise in OPEC oil prices in 1973-74. However, the Council of Ministers issued a common declaration in November 1973 emphasizing the desire for good relations with the Arab countries. This led to the negotiation of a series of joint technical projects in the so-called Euro-Arab Dialogue in 1975-77.

All member states were represented by the Presidents of the Council and the Commission in the Conference on International Economic Co-operation (the North-South Dialogue) in 1975-77; but it had to be conceded that national representatives be allowed to address the conference—as in the case of the British position concerning North Sea oil.

France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy and the United Kingdom were separately represented at the economic summit conferences of major western countries at Rambouillet château near Paris in November 1975, at Puerto Rico in June 1976 and in London in June 1977.

The Council of Foreign Ministers issued a policy statement on southern Africa in February 1976. This endorsed the right of Africans in Rhodesia and Namibia (South West Africa) to self-determination and independence. It condemned the policy of apartheid in South Africa and called for an end to all military intervention in Angola. Further statements have been issued in favour of political and social change in Southern Africa during 1976 and 1977. In September 1977 the Council agreed on a code of conduct for European firms operating in South Africa. The code deals with matters such as freedom to organize trade unions for African employees, levels of pay, fringe benefits and the importance of desegregation at places of work.

In September 1975 the Community established diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China. An outline agreement for commercial relations between the two parties is under discussion; a delegation representing the Commission visited Peking for exploratory talks in July 1977.

The member countries of the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance (CMEA) have never fully recognized the European Community and have been unwilling to enter into any negotiations with it. However, an EEC delegation visited Moscow in 1975 to discuss the possibility of a trade agreement between the two groups of countries; and during 1977 negotiations took place on the subject of access to EEC fisheries. Exploratory talks on the trade agreement continued and in September 1977 it was agreed that the negotiations would begin in spring 1978.

ASSOCIATION AND TRADE AGREEMENTS

Association in Europe. Association agreements have been signed between the Community and Greece (1962), Turkey (1964), Malta (1971) and Cyprus (1972). The agreement with Greece was intended to lead to a customs union with the EEC by 1980; in 1975 the Greek Government requested full accession to the EEC at an earlier date than this and negotiations for this began in July 1976. The Turkish agreement leads to a customs union by 1992, and possible accession. The Maltese agreement, intended to lead to a customs union by 1981, entered its second phase in April 1976.

Mediterranean countries. The Community is developing a policy for the Mediterranean area, based on a global approach with similar arrangements of trade preferences, financial aid and technical co-operation affecting each country under a series of agreements.

Apart from the Association agreements described above, co-operation agreements within this scheme came into force with Israel in 1975, with the Maghreb countries (Algeria, Morocco and Tunisia) in July 1976 and with the Machrak countries (Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Syria) in March and May 1977.

Greece, Portugal and Spain have now all applied to join the Community.

Lomé Convention (see separate section below).

Trade agreements. The Community has concluded a number of other agreements with third countries and is gradually evolving an overall policy on external trade.

Member countries of EFTA. Austria, Iceland, Norway, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland and the associate member Finland each have bilateral Free Trade Agreements with the EEC. The agreements mainly concern the industrial sector. Free trade is being introduced by elimination of tariffs in stages, while the transition period is longer for certain industries which might be disrupted by the arrangement.

A full customs union between the Community and the EFTA countries was achieved with effect from July 1977, under the provisions of these agreements.

The agreements also guarantee equal treatment for imports from third countries; and there are provisions affecting coal and steel, removal of quotas, and practices restricting competition.

Latin America. Non-preferential trade agreements were signed with the EEC by Argentina (1971), Uruguay (1973), Brazil (1973) and Mexico (1975).

Asia. Non-preferential trade agreements were signed with the EEC by India (1973), Sri Lanka (1975) and Pakistan (June 1976).

Canada. A framework agreement for commercial and economic co-operation between the Community and Canada was signed in Ottawa in July 1976. It is the Community's first non-preferential co-operation agreement concerned not only with trade promotion but also with wide-ranging economic co-operation. It is also the Community's first economic co-operation agreement with an advanced industrial country.

Textiles. Agreements were concluded with a number of countries in 1975-76 in the context of the Geneva Arrangement for International Trade in Textiles under the auspices of GATT. They cover EEC imports of textiles until the end of 1977. Further negotiations in the Textiles Committee for a replacement for these agreements after expiry were unsuccessful as of September 1977.

Generalized Preferences. In July 1971 the Community introduced a scheme of generalized preferences to 91 developing countries. Under the scheme exemption from customs duties is granted on manufactures and semi-manufactures imported from the developing countries. The scheme has been extended to include 15 more countries.

Tariff reductions on a wide range of tropical products imported from developing countries were added to the scheme with effect from January 1977.

The Lomé Convention

Concluded at Lomé, Togo, in February 1975 by the European Community and 46 African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) states, the Convention now applies to 52 developing countries.

* Acceded in March 1977.

FUNCTIONS

The Convention, which came into force on April 1st, 1976, replaces the Yaoundé Conventions and the Arusha Agreement, providing a new framework of co-operation and taking into account the states newly associated with the Community through the accession of the United Kingdom. It has also been extended to apply to countries which were not former dependencies of Community member states. The European Council agreed in March 1977 to consider a further extension, applying some elements of the Convention to developing countries in other world regions.

ACP-EEC INSTITUTIONS

Council of Ministers: one Minister from each signatory state; Chairmanship alternates between the two groups; second meeting in Suva, Fiji, April 1977; Chair. (April-Sept. 1977): Fiji.

Committee of Ambassadors: one Ambassador from each signatory state; Chairmanship alternates between the two groups; meets about twice a year; Chair. (April-Sept. 1977): O'NEIL LEWIS (Trinidad and Tobago).

Consultative Assembly: EEC and ACP are equally represented; attended by parliamentarians; one Co-chairman from each of the two groups; second meeting in Luxembourg, June 1977; Co-chair. (until June 1977): GEORGES SPÉNALE (France), PHILIPPE YACÉ (Ivory Coast).

ACP INSTITUTIONS

ACP Council of Ministers: Chair. (April-Sept. 1977): Fiji.

ACP Committee of Ambassadors: Chair. (April-Sept. 1977): O'NEIL LEWIS (Trinidad and Tobago).

ACP Secretariat: Africa House, Brussels, Belgium; Sec.-Gen. TISOULÉ KONATE (Mali); Deputy Sec.-Gen. EDWARD CARRINGTON (Jamaica).

ACP-EEC COMMITTEES

Composed of representatives of EEC and ACP states and institutions of the EEC. The distinction between committees and sub-committees is of little importance, and in April 1977 they were listed as follows:

Sub-Committee on Trade Co-operation.

Committee on Customs Co-operation.

Sub-Committee on STABEX.

Sub-Committee on Financial and Technical Co-operation.

Committee on Industrial Co-operation.

Sub-Committee on Sugar.

Committee on Bananas.

INDUSTRIAL CO-OPERATION

Centre for Industrial Development: to carry out a programme of industrial development, promote contacts with enterprises in the industrial countries and where possible finance individual projects. Dir. ROGER THIESEN (Luxembourg); Deputy Dir. Dr. ISAAC ADEDAYO AKINRELE (Nigeria).

FINANCE

"OWN RESOURCES" FINANCING

As from January 1st, 1978, the Community budget is to be provided entirely by automatic payments made over by the member governments from the revenue they collect in import levies and customs duties, and from a small percentage of their revenue from Value-Added Tax (VAT).

The Council agreed in May 1977 that up to one per cent of VAT revenue is to accrue to the Community. The Commission had been working on the tentative proposal of 0.77 per cent; the precise percentage was to be determined after the final decision on the amount of the budget itself, during December 1977.

This decision of the Council is known as the sixth VAT Directive. The Directive also set out a uniform list of goods and services to which VAT is to apply in each member state from the beginning of 1978. This principle of uniform assessment is of course essential for the system to be equitable.

Although it has advantages, the new system will also impose new restraints on budget estimates and management. The volume of revenue from own resources is less flexible than financial contributions from member states and supplementary budgeting will be extremely difficult, if not impossible. It will be even more necessary than before, therefore, to ensure accuracy in estimating revenue and in administering expenditure.

It will also put an end to the "relative shares" system, under which member states' contributions were calculated on the basis of temporary criteria (scale of contributions, share of Community G.N.P.). From the beginning of 1978 the system of financing will be neutral, in the sense that the own resources paid by member states will stem purely from the economic activity in each state.

In the case of the three new member states, however, the Treaty of Accession imposes certain limits on actual payments until 1980.

THE UNIT OF ACCOUNT

Another proposal which directly affects the budget is the introduction of a new valuation of the unit of account. The budgetary unit of account, which is referred to in the statistics below by the abbreviation EUR, represents the value of the U.S. dollar before 1971, when its fixed parity was terminated; the unit is expressed in terms of gold and linked to the national currencies by officially declared fixed parities.

A new unit of account has already been introduced in the Community's finances; it is known as the European Unit of Account (EUA) and the question currently under discussion is its full adoption throughout the system.

The new unit is based on the sum of the value of fixed amounts in each of the currencies of the Community. This is known as basket valuation; the unit's parity against national currencies is calculated and published daily. It has been in use for the transactions of the European Development Fund since the Lomé Convention came into effect; by the European Investment Bank since the end of 1974; and in the activities of the ECSC since the beginning of 1976.

The growing discrepancy between the official parities of the old unit and the actual rates of exchange has created a number of problems, particularly in agriculture, where dual rates of exchange, involving the "green currencies", have led to financial distortions which have been borne by the Community budget.

As of September 26th, 1977, the dollar parity of the EUA was: $\text{EUA } 1 = \text{U.S. } \1.3713 .

SUMMARY OF EEC TREATY (TREATY OF ROME)

PART I. PRINCIPLES

The aim of the Community is, by establishing a Common Market and progressively approximating the economic policies of the member states, to promote throughout the Community a harmonious development of economic activities, a continuous and balanced expansion, an increased stability, an accelerated raising of the standard of living and closer relations between its member states. With these aims in view, the activities of the Community will include:

- (a) the elimination between member states of customs duties and of quantitative restrictions in regard to the importation and exportation of goods, as well as of all other measures with equivalent effect;
- (b) the establishment of a common customs tariff and a common commercial policy towards third countries;
- (c) the abolition between member states of the obstacles to the free movement of persons, services and capital;
- (d) the inauguration of a common agricultural policy;
- (e) the inauguration of a common transport policy;
- (f) the establishment of a system ensuring that competition shall not be distorted in the Common Market;
- (g) the application of procedures that will make it possible to co-ordinate the economic policies of member states and to remedy disequilibria in their balance of payments;
- (h) the approximation of their respective municipal law to the extent necessary for the functioning of the Common Market;
- (i) the creation of a European Social Fund in order to improve the possibilities of employment for workers and to contribute to the raising of their standard of living;

- (j) the establishment of a European Investment Bank intended to facilitate the economic expansion of the Community through the creation of new resources; and

- (k) the association of overseas countries and territories with the Community with a view to increasing trade and to pursuing jointly their effort toward economic and social development.

Member states, acting in close collaboration with the institutions of the Community, shall co-ordinate their respective economic policies to the extent that is necessary to attain the objectives of the Treaty; the institutions of the Community shall take care not to prejudice the internal and external financial stability of the member states. Within the field of application of the Treaty and without prejudice to certain special provisions which it contains, any discrimination on the grounds of nationality shall be hereby prohibited.

The Common Market shall be progressively established in the course of a transitional period of twelve years. This transitional period shall be divided into three stages of four years each; the length of each stage may be modified in accordance with the provisions set out below.

Transition from the first to the second stage shall be conditional upon a confirmatory statement to the effect that the essence of the objectives laid down in the Treaty for the first stage has been in fact achieved, and that all obligations have been observed. Failing a unanimous vote by the Council of Ministers at the end of the fourth year, the first stage shall be automatically extended for a period of one year. A similar procedure may be followed at the end of the sixth year if the first stage has in fact been extended. If at the end of the seventh year a unanimous vote is not forthcoming to proceed to the second stage, the Council of Ministers shall appoint an Arbitration Board whose decision shall bind both member states and Community institutions. The second and third stages may not be extended or curtailed except by a decision of the Council acting by means of a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission. These provisions shall not have the effect of extending the transitional period beyond a total duration of fifteen years after the date of entry into force of the Treaty.

PART II. BASES OF THE COMMUNITY

FREE MOVEMENT OF GOODS

Member states shall refrain from introducing between themselves any new import or export customs duties, or charges with equivalent effect, and from increasing such duties or charges as they apply in their commercial relations with each other. Member states shall progressively abolish between themselves all import and export customs duties, charges with an equivalent effect, and also customs duties of a fiscal nature. Independently of these provisions, any member state may, in the course of the transitional period, suspend in whole or in part the collection of import duties applied by it to products imported from other member states, or may carry out the foreseen reductions more rapidly than laid down in the Treaty if its general economic situation and the situation of the sector so concerned permit.

A common customs tariff shall be established, which, subject to certain conditions (especially with regard to the Italian tariff), shall be at the level of the arithmetical average of the duties applied in the four customs territories (i.e. France, Germany, Italy and Benelux) covered by the Community. This customs tariff shall be applied in its entirety not later than at the date of the expiry of the transitional period. Member states may follow an independent accelerating process similar to that allowed for reduction of inter-Community customs duties.

Member states shall refrain from introducing between themselves any new quantitative restrictions or measures with equivalent effect, and existing restrictions and measures shall be abolished not later than at the end of the first stage of the transitional period. These provisions shall not be an obstacle to prohibitions or restrictions in respect of importation, exportation or transit which are justified on grounds of public morality, health or safety, the protection of human or animal life or health, the preservation of plant life, the protection of national treasures of artistic, historic or archaeological value or the protection of industrial and commercial property. Such prohibitions or restrictions shall not, however, constitute either a means of arbitrary discrimination or a disguised restriction on trade between member states. Member states shall progressively adjust any state monopolies of a commercial character in such a manner as will ensure the exclusion, at the end of the transitional period, of all discrimination between the nationals of member states in regard to conditions of supply and marketing of goods. These provisions shall apply to any body by means of which a member state shall de jure or de facto either directly or indirectly, control or appreciably influence importation or exportation between member states, and also to monopolies assigned by the state. In the case of a commercial monopoly which is accompanied by regulations designed to facilitate the marketing or the valorisation of agricultural products, it should be ensured that in the application of these provisions equivalent guarantees are provided in respect of the employment and standard of living of the producers concerned.

The obligations incumbent on member states shall be binding only to such extent as they are compatible with existing international agreements.

AGRICULTURE

The Common Market shall extend to agriculture and trade in agricultural products. The common agricultural policy shall have as its objectives:

- the increase of agricultural productivity by developing technical progress and by ensuring the rational development of agricultural production and the optimum utilisation of the factors of production, particularly labour;
- the ensurance thereby of a fair standard of living for the agricultural population;
- the stabilisation of markets;
- regular supplies;
- reasonable prices in supplies to consumers.

Due account must be taken of the particular character of agricultural activities, arising from the social structure of agriculture and from structural and natural disparities between the various agricultural regions; of the need to make the appropriate adjustments gradually; and of the fact that in member states agriculture constitutes a sector which is closely linked with the economy as a whole. With a view to developing a common agricultural policy during the transitional period and the establishment of it not later than at the end of the period, a common organization of agricultural markets shall be effected.

FREE MOVEMENT OF PERSONS, SERVICES AND CAPITAL

Workers: The free movement of workers shall be ensured within the Community not later than at the date of the expiry of the transitional period, involving the abolition of any discrimination based on nationality between workers of the member states as regards employment, remuneration and other working conditions. This shall include the right to accept offers of employment actually made, to move about freely for this purpose within the territory of the member states, to stay in any member state in order to carry on an employment in conformity with the legislative and administrative provisions governing the employment of the workers of that state, and to live, on conditions which shall be the subject of implementing regulations laid down by the Commission, in the territory of a member state after having been employed there. (These provisions do not apply to employment in the public administration).

In the field of social security, the Council shall adopt the measures necessary to effect the free movement of workers, in particular, by introducing a system which permits an assurance to be given to migrant workers and their beneficiaries that, for the purposes of qualifying for and retaining the rights to benefits and of the calculation of these benefits, all periods taken into consideration by the respective municipal law of the countries concerned shall be added together, and that these benefits will be paid to persons resident in the territories of the member states.

Right of Establishment: Restrictions on the freedom of establishment of nationals of a member state in the territory of another member state shall be progressively abolished during the transitional period, nor may any new restrictions of a similar character be introduced. Such progressive abolition shall also extend to restrictions on the setting up of agencies, branches or subsidiaries. Freedom of establishment shall include the right to engage in and carry on non-wage-earning activities, and also to set up and manage enterprises and companies under the conditions laid down by the law of the country of establishment for its own nationals, subject to the provisions of this Treaty relating to capital.

Services: Restrictions on the free supply of services within the Community shall be progressively abolished in the course of the transitional period in respect of nationals of member states who are established in a state of the Community other than that of the person to whom the services are supplied; no new restrictions of a similar character may be introduced. The Council, acting by a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission, may extend the benefit of these provisions to cover services supplied by nationals of any third country who are established within the Community.

Particular services involved are activities of an industrial or artisan character and those of the liberal professions.

Capital: Member states shall during the transitional period progressively abolish between themselves restrictions on the movement of capital belonging to persons resident in the member states, and also any discriminatory treatment based on the nationality or place of residence of the parties or on the place in which such capital is invested. Current payments connected with movements of capital between member states shall be freed from all restrictions not later than at the end of the first stage of the transitional period.

Member states shall endeavour to avoid introducing within the Community any new exchange restrictions which affect the movement of capital and current payments connected with such movements, and making existing rules more restrictive.

TRANSPORT

With a view to establishing a common transport policy, the Council of Ministers shall, acting on a proposal of the Commission and after consulting the Economic and Social Committee and the European Parliament, lay down common rules applicable to international transport effected from or to the territory of a member state or crossing the territory of one or more member states, conditions for the admission of non-resident carriers to national transport services within a member state and any other appropriate provisions. Until these have been enacted and unless the Council of Ministers gives its unanimous consent, no member state shall apply the various provisions governing this subject at the date of the entry into force of this Treaty in such a way as to make them less favourable, in their direct or indirect effect, for carriers of other member states by comparison with its own national carriers.

Any discrimination which consists in the application by a carrier, in respect of the same goods conveyed in the same circumstances, of transport rates and conditions which differ on the ground of the country of origin or destination of the goods carried, shall be abolished in the traffic of the Community not later than at the end of the second stage of the transitional period.

A Committee with consultative status, composed of experts appointed by the governments of the member states, shall be established and attached to the Commission, without prejudice to the competence of the transport section of the Economic and Social Committee.

PART III. POLICY OF THE COMMUNITY

COMMON RULES

Enterprises: The following practices by enterprises are prohibited: the direct or indirect fixing of purchase or selling prices or of any other trading conditions; the limitation or control of production, markets, technical development of investment; market-sharing or the sharing of sources of supply; the application to parties to transactions of unequal terms in respect of equivalent supplies, thereby placing them at a competitive disadvantage; the subjection of the conclusion of a contract to the acceptance by a party of additional supplies which, either by their nature or according to commercial usage, have no connection with the subject of such contract. The provisions may be declared inapplicable if the agreements neither impose on the enterprises concerned any restrictions not indispensable to the attainment of improved production, distribution or technical progress, nor enable enterprises to eliminate competition in respect of a substantial proportion of the goods concerned.

Dumping: If, in the course of the transitional period, the Commission, at the request of a member state or of any other interested party, finds that dumping practices exist within the Common Market, it shall issue recommendations to the originator of such practices with a view to bringing them to an end. Where such practices continue, the Commission shall authorise the member state injured to take protective measures of which the Commission shall determine the conditions and particulars.

Re-importation within the Community shall be free of all customs duties, quantitative restrictions or measures with equivalent effect.

Aid granted by States: Any aid granted by a member state or granted by means of state resources which is contrary to the purposes of the treaty is forbidden. The following shall be deemed to be compatible with the Common Market:

- (a) aids of a social character granted without discrimination to individual consumers;
- (b) aids intended to remedy damage caused by natural calamities or other extraordinary events;
- (c) aids granted to the economy of certain regions of the Federal German Republic affected by the division of Germany, to the extent that they are necessary to compensate for the economic disadvantages caused by the division.

The following may be deemed to be compatible with the Common Market:

- (a) aids intended to promote the economic development of regions where the standard of living is abnormally low or where there exists serious under-employment;
- (b) aids intended to promote the execution of important projects of common European interest or to remedy a serious economic disturbance of the economy of a member state;
- (c) aids intended to facilitate the development of certain activities or of certain economic regions, provided that such aids do not change trading conditions to such a degree as would be contrary to the common interest;
- (d) such other categories of aids as may be specified by a decision of the Council of Ministers acting on a proposal of the Commission.

The Commission is charged to examine constantly all systems of aids existing in the member states, and may require any member state to abolish or modify any aid which it finds to be in conflict with the principles of the Common Market.

Fiscal Provisions: A member state shall not impose, directly or indirectly, on the products of other member states, any internal charges of any kind in excess of those applied directly or indirectly to like domestic products. Furthermore, a member state shall not impose on the product of other member states any internal charges of such a nature as to afford indirect protection to other productions. Member states shall, not later than at the beginning of the second stage of the transitional period, abolish or amend any provisions existing at the date of the entry into force of the Treaty which are contrary to these rules. Products exported to any member state may not benefit from any drawback on internal charges in excess of those charges imposed directly or indirectly on them. Subject to these conditions, any member states which levy a turnover tax calculated by a cumulative multi-stage system may, in the case of internal charges imposed by them on imported products or of drawbacks granted by them on exported products, establish average rates for specific products or groups of products.

Approximation of Laws: The Council, acting by means of a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission, shall issue directives for the approximation of such legislative and administrative provisions of the member states as have a direct incidence on the establishment or functioning of the Common Market. The European Parliament and the Economic and Social Committee shall be consulted concerning any directives whose implementation in one or more of the member states would involve amendment of legislative provisions.

ECONOMIC POLICY

Balance of Payments: Member states are charged to co-ordinate their economic policies in order that each may ensure the equilibrium of their overall balances of payments and maintain confidence in their currency, together with a high level of employment and stability of prices. In order to promote this co-ordination a Monetary Committee is established (see section on Organization, above).

Each member state engages itself to treat its policy with regard to exchange rates as a matter of common interest. Where a member state is in difficulties or seriously threatened with difficulties as regards its balance of payments as a result either of overall disequilibrium of the balance of payments or of the kinds of currency at its disposal, and where such difficulties are likely, in particular, to prejudice the functioning of the Common Market or the progressive establishment of the common commercial policy, the Commission shall examine the situation and indicate the measures which it recommends to the state concerned to adopt; if this action proves insufficient to overcome the difficulties, the Commission shall, after consulting the Monetary Committee, recommend to the Council of Ministers the granting of mutual assistance. This mutual assistance may take the form of:

- (a) concerted action in regard to any other international organization to which the member states may have recourse;
- (b) any measures necessary to avoid diversions of commercial traffic where the state in difficulty maintains or re-establishes quantitative restrictions with regard to third countries;
- (c) the granting of limited credits by other member states, subject to their agreement.

Furthermore, during the transitional period, mutual assistance may also take the form of special reductions in customs duties or enlargements of quotas. If the mutual assistance recommended by the Commission is not granted by the Council, or if the mutual assistance granted and the measures taken prove insufficient, the Commission shall authorise the state in difficulties to take measures of safeguard, of which the Commission shall determine the conditions and particulars. In the case of a sudden balance-of-payments crisis, any member state may take immediate provisional measures of safeguard, which must be submitted to the consideration of the Commission as soon as possible. On the basis of an opinion of the Commission and after consulting the Monetary Committee, the Council may decide that the state concerned shall amend, suspend or abolish such measures.

Commercial Policy: Member states shall co-ordinate their commercial relations with third countries in such a way as to bring about, not later than at the expiry of the transitional period, the conditions necessary to the implementation of a common policy in the matter of external trade. After the expiry of the transitional period, the common commercial policy shall be based on uniform principles, particularly in regard to tariff amendments, the conclusion of tariff or trade agreements, the alignment of measures of liberalisation, export policy and protective commercial measures, including measures to be taken in cases of dumping or subsidies. The Commission will be authorised to conduct negotiations with third countries. As from the end of the transitional period, member states shall, in respect of all matters of particular interest in regard to the Common Market, within the framework of any international organizations of an economic character, only proceed by way of common action. The Commission shall for this purpose submit to the Council of Ministers proposals concerning the scope and implementation of such common action. During the transitional period, member states shall consult with each other with a view to concerting their action and, as far as possible, adopting a uniform attitude.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

SOCIAL POLICY

Social Provisions: Without prejudice to the other provisions of the Treaty and in conformity with its general objectives, it shall be the aim of the Commission to promote close collaboration between member states in the social field, particularly in matters relating to employment, labour legislation and working conditions, occupational and continuation training, social security, protection against occupational accidents and diseases, industrial hygiene, the law as to trade unions and collective bargaining between employers and workers.

Each member state shall in the course of the first stage of the transitional period ensure and subsequently maintain the application of the principle of equal pay for men and women.

The European Social Fund: See the section on Organization above.

The European Investment Bank: See the section on Organization above.

PART IV. OVERSEAS COUNTRIES AND TERRITORIES

The member states agree to bring into association with the Community the non-European countries and territories which have special relations with Belgium, France, Italy and the Netherlands in order to promote the economic and social development of these countries and territories and to establish close economic relations between them and the Community as a whole.

Member states shall, in their commercial exchanges with the countries and territories, apply the same rules which they apply among themselves pursuant to the Treaty. Each country or territory shall apply to its commercial exchanges with member states and with the other countries and territories the same rules which it applied in respect of the European state with which it has special relations. Member states shall contribute to the investments required by the progressive development of these countries and territories.

Customs duties on trade between member states and the countries and territories are to be progressively abolished according to the same timetable as for trade between the member states themselves. The countries and territories may, however, levy customs duties which correspond to the needs of their development and to the requirements of their industrialisation or which, being of a fiscal nature, have the object of contributing to their budgets.

(The Convention implementing these provisions is concluded for a period of five years only from the date of entry into force of the Treaty.)

PART V. INSTITUTIONS OF THE COMMUNITY PROVISIONS GOVERNING INSTITUTIONS

For accounts of the European Parliament, the Council of Ministers, the Commission, the Court, the Economic and Social Committee, the Monetary Committee, the European Investment Bank, the European Social Fund and the Development Fund, see the section on Organization above.

For the achievement of their aims and under the conditions provided for in the Treaty, the Council and the Commission shall adopt regulations and directives, make decisions and formulate recommendations or opinions.

European Communities

Regulations shall have a general application and shall be binding in every respect and directly applicable in each member state. Directives shall bind any member state to which they are addressed, as to the result to be achieved, while leaving to domestic agencies a competence as to form and means. Decisions shall be binding in every respect for the addressees named therein. Recommendations and opinions shall have no binding force.

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

Estimates shall be drawn up for each financial year for all revenues and expenditures of the Community, including those relating to the European Social Fund, and shall be shown in the budget.

The revenues of the budget shall comprise (apart from those contributions which are intended to meet the expenses of the European Social Fund, and apart from any other revenues) the financial contributions of member states fixed according to the following scale:

Belgium	7.9
France	28.0
Italy	28.0
Germany, Federal Republic	28.0
Luxembourg	0.2
Netherlands	7.9

The financial contributions of the member states which are intended to meet the expenses of the European Social Fund shall be fixed according to the following scale:

Belgium	8.8
France	32.0
Italy	20.0
Germany, Federal Republic	32.0
Luxembourg	0.2
Netherlands	7.0

The Commission shall implement the budget on its own responsibility and within the limits of the appropriations made. The Council of Ministers shall:

- lay down the financial regulations specifying, in particular, the procedure to be adopted for establishing and implementing the budget, and for rendering and auditing accounts;
- determine the methods and procedure whereby the contributions by member states shall be made available to the Commission; and
- establish rules concerning the responsibility of pay-commissioners and accountants and arrange for the relevant supervision.

PART VI. GENERAL AND FINAL PROVISIONS

Member states shall, in so far as is necessary, engage in negotiations with each other with a view to ensuring for the benefit of their nationals:

- the protection of persons as well as the enjoyment and protections of rights under the conditions granted by each state to its own nationals;
- the elimination of double taxation within the Community;
- the mutual recognition of companies, the maintenance of their legal personality in cases where the registered office is transferred from one country to another, and the possibility for companies subject to the municipal law of different member states to form mergers; and

- (d) the simplification of the formalities governing the reciprocal recognition and execution of judicial decisions and arbitral awards.

Within a period of three years after the date of the entry into force of the Treaty, member states shall treat nationals of other member states in the same manner, as regards financial participation by such nationals in the capital of companies, as they treat their own nationals, without prejudice to the application of the other provisions of the Treaty.

The Treaty shall in no way prejudice the system existing in member states in respect of property.

The provisions of the Treaty shall not detract from the following rules:

- (a) no member state shall be obliged to supply information the disclosure of which it considers contrary to the essential interests of its security;
- (b) any member state may take the measures which it considers necessary for the protection of the essential interests of its security, and which are connected with the production of or the trade in arms, ammunition and war material; such measures shall not, however, prejudice conditions of competition in the Common Market in respect of products not intended for specifically military purposes.

The list of products to which (b) applies shall be determined by the Council in the course of the first year after the date of entry into force of the Treaty. The list may be subsequently amended by the unanimous vote of the Council on a proposal of the Commission.

Member states shall consult one another for the purpose of enacting in common the necessary provisions to prevent the functioning of the Common Market from being affected by measures which a member state may be called upon to take in case of serious internal disturbances affecting public order, in case of war or serious international tension constituting a threat of war or in order to carry out undertakings into which it has entered for the purpose of maintaining peace and international security.

In the course of the transitional period, where there are serious difficulties which are likely to persist in any sector of economic activity or difficulties which may seriously impair the economic situation in any region, any member state may ask for authorisation to take measures of safeguard in order to restore the situation and adapt the sector concerned to the Common Market economy.

The provisions of the Treaty shall not affect those of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community, nor those of the Treaty establishing the European Atomic Energy Community; nor shall they be an obstacle to the existence or completion of regional unions between Belgium and Luxembourg, and between Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands, in so far as the objectives of these regional unions are not achieved by the application of this Treaty.

The government of any member state of the Commission may submit to the Council proposals for the revision of the Treaty.

Any European state may apply to become a member of the Community.

The Community may conclude with a third country, a union of states or an international organisation agreements creating an association embodying reciprocal rights and obligations, joint actions and special procedures.

The Treaty is concluded for an unlimited period.

OTHER TREATIES

The following additional treaties have been signed by the members of the European Communities:

Treaty Instituting a Single Council and a Single Commission of the European Communities: signed in Brussels on April 8th, 1965, by the six original members.

Treaty Modifying Certain Budgetary Arrangements of the European Communities and of the Treaty Instituting a Single Council and a Single Commission of the European Communities: signed in Luxembourg on April 22nd, 1970, by the six original members.

Treaty Concerning the Accession of the Kingdom of Denmark, Ireland, the Kingdom of Norway and the United Kingdom of Great Britain to the European Economic Community and the European Atomic Energy Community: signed in Brussels on January 22nd, 1972, by the six original members of the European Communities and the four (then) acceding states.

The Accession of the new members to the European Coal and Steel Community was enacted, in accordance with the treaty of that Community, by a Decision of the Council of the European Communities.

Annexed to the Treaty of Accession and the Decision of the Council was an Act Concerning the Conditions of Accession and the Adjustments to the Treaties, consisting of 161 articles and dealing mainly with the transitional measures to be adopted.

Amendments necessitated by the non-accession of Norway were made on January 1st, 1973, when the Treaty of Accession, the Decision of the Council and the annexed Act took effect.

EUROPEAN CONFERENCE OF MINISTERS OF TRANSPORT—ECMT

19 rue Franqueville, 75775 Paris CEDEX 16, France

Founded in 1953 to achieve the maximum use and most rational development of European inland transport.

MEMBERS

COUNCIL

Council delegations are led by Ministers or by the Permanent Official Heads of Delegations. The Chair is held for six months by each country in turn.

The Council is empowered to make decisions about a wide range of issues, including tariffs. Each country has one vote, and decisions must be unanimous where new obligations are involved, though on many issues a majority suffices.

A summit meeting was held in Vienna in May 1977. The Heads of Government of the member countries adopted a Declaration laying down the framework for the activities of the Association for the years to come. This was to mark the achievement in July 1977 of a customs union between EFTA countries and the EEC.

Ministerial Chairman (July-Dec. 1977): ERNST BRUGGER (Switzerland).

Chairman at Official Level (July-Dec. 1977): C. SOMMARUGA (Switzerland).

Vice-Chairman (July-Dec. 1977): Austria.

Heads of National Delegations:

Austria: RUDOLF MARTINS.
Iceland: HARALDUR KRÖYER.
Norway: JOHAN ZEIER CAPPELEN.
Portugal: A. DE CARVALHO.
Sweden: KARL DE GEER.
Switzerland: (to be announced).

FINLAND-EFTA JOINT COUNCIL

Consists of the Heads of National Delegations, when meeting at official level, and a Finnish representative. The Joint Council is empowered to make decisions about a wide range of issues, including tariffs. Each country has one vote, and decisions must be unanimous where new obligations are involved. In practice, almost all meetings of the EFTA Council and the Joint Council are now held simultaneously.

Ministerial Chairman (July-Dec. 1977): Switzerland.

Chairman at Official Level (July-Dec. 1977): Switzerland.

Vice-Chairman (July-Dec. 1977): Austria.

Finnish Representative: PAAVO KAARLEHTO.

EFTA COUNCIL COMMITTEES

Customs Committee.

Committee of Trade Experts.

Budget Committee.

Committee on Agriculture and Fisheries.

Economic Development Committee.

Economic Committee.

CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

Meets a few weeks before each Ministerial Council Meeting. The Chairman reports to the EFTA Council after each meeting. Members: employers representatives, trade union leaders and individuals, all appointed by member countries. Maximum number of members: five from each country. Subjects for discussion: any within EFTA's sphere of activity.

Chairman (July-Dec. 1977): ERNST BRUGGER (Switzerland).

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: CHARLES MÜLLER (Switzerland).

Assistant Secretary-General: ARNE LANGLAND (Norway).

RECORD OF EVENTS

1959	June	Draft plan for EFTA drawn up.	1971	May	EFTA Convention removing certain non-tariff obstacles to trade in pharmaceutical products came into force after being ratified by five signatory states.
1960	Jan.	EFTA Convention signed.
	May	Convention entered into force.	1972	Dec.	Denmark and the U.K. left EFTA to enter the European Communities.
	July	First tariff reduction to 80 per cent of basic duties and increase in quotas.	1973	Jan.	Free Trade Agreements (FTAs) between five EFTA countries (Austria, Iceland, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland) and the enlarged EEC came into force.
1961	Mar.	Association Agreement with Finland signed.		April	First 20 per cent tariff cut under the FTAs.
	June	Agreement with Finland entered into force.		July	Norway's FTA with the EEC (signed May 1973) entered into force.
	Oct.	Denmark and United Kingdom began negotiations with EEC.		Oct.	Finland's FTA with the EEC signed, to take effect from January 1st, 1974.
1963	May	Decision to eliminate all tariffs by 1967.	1976	April	Fund of $100 million set up to assist industrial development in Portugal.
1966	Dec.	Tariff restrictions eliminated. Complete elimination of import duties for industrial goods.	1977	May	EFTA's first summit meeting, Vienna.
1967	Dec.	First meeting of Yugoslav EFTA working group. Decision to allow Yugoslavia to send observers to certain EFTA technical meetings.		July	Entry into force of full customs union between EFTA countries and EEC.
1970	Mar.	Iceland acceded to EFTA and to the Finland-EFTA Association, and made the first tariff cuts.

TARIFFS AND QUOTAS

Import duties within EFTA were removed in eight stages up to the end of 1966, and between EFTA and Finland by 1967. All import quotas were removed by the end of 1966, whilst export quotas had been eliminated by the end of 1961.

FINLAND-EFTA ASSOCIATION AGREEMENT

Entered into force June 1961. First tariff reductions and relaxation of quotas took place on July 1st, 1961. The main principle of the Agreement is to establish a new free trade area where Finland will have the same rights and obligations towards EFTA members as they have among themselves.

FREE TRADE AGREEMENTS

Entered into force on the enlargement of the EEC. These are bilateral agreements between EFTA countries and the EEC. They are described on page 182.

OTHER EFTA ACTIVITIES

In recent years EFTA's work has been increasingly devoted to the problems of non-tariff barriers to trade. Part of this work has been based explicitly on particular articles in the Convention, especially those relating to the conditions of competition, as mentioned below.

Work is also being done on non-tariff barriers which are not specifically mentioned in the Convention. On these, EFTA's aim is to contribute to international agreements covering a wider area than that of the Association and, in the meantime, to seek in EFTA solutions to non-tariff barrier problems which will facilitate trade without limiting possibilities of finding wider agreements. Examples of the barriers being dealt with are differences in compulsory technical requirements for electrical and other products, and in rules for obtaining patent protection for new products.

FUNCTIONS

The field of research, usually referred to as subnuclear, high-energy or elementary particle physics, is not concerned with the development of nuclear reactors or fusion devices. Experimental and theoretical results are freely published or otherwise made generally available.

ACTIVITIES

The convention establishing CERN provides for collaboration among European states in nuclear research and the organization of international co-operation, including joint projects with non-member countries.

Of the four major facilities, the first to be constructed were the 600 MeV Synchro-Cyclotron and the 25-28 GeV Proton Synchrotron, which were completed in 1957 and 1959 respectively.

The Intersecting Storage Rings (ISR), alongside the Synchrotron, were completed in 1971; taking in protons accelerated in the Synchrotron, they are used for experiments on colliding beams.

The Super Proton Synchrotron (SPS), capable of generating 400 GeV, came into operation in 1976. It is the largest particle accelerator in the world, having a diameter of 2.2 km.

The technique of beam sharing enables a variety of projects to use a facility simultaneously. Detection installations include two large bubble chambers and very large spark chambers.

An extensive network of computers is available. In the central facility a CDC 7600 is headed by a CDC 6500 and a CDC 6400; these are connected to a number of remote stations. A new large central computer, an IBM 370/168, was installed in 1976. Other computing equipment is built into data-taking parts of the apparatus.

Research work is conducted by physicists from the member countries, mostly on period assignments, and a small permanent staff.

The organization collaborates with other laboratories outside the member countries. These include various centres in the United States, the Joint Institute for Nuclear Research at Dubna, U.S.S.R., which belongs to the U.S.S.R. and the East European countries, and its laboratory at Serpukhov, U.S.S.R. Contacts have been established with the People's Republic of China and a number of Chinese scientists and engineers have visited CERN.

FINANCE

CONTRIBUTIONS

CERN is funded entirely by the governments of the twelve member states whose individual contributions are calculated on the basis of their net national revenues according to statistics supplied by the UN. All twelve are contributing to the Basic and ISR programmes of CERN but Greece is not participating in the SPS construction programme. The three observer states, Poland, Turkey and Yugoslavia, are not required to contribute.

ORGANIZATION

(as at September 1977)

PERMANENT COMMISSION

The governing body of EUROCONTROL; consists of two representatives from each member state, who are the Ministers responsible for respectively civil and military aviation.

President: E. HAAR (Federal Republic of Germany).

Vice-President: JOS CHABERT (Belgium).

AIR TRAFFIC SERVICES AGENCY

Administered by a Committee of Management and a Director-General.

COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT

Composed of two representatives of each National Administration. One of the two representatives is a highly placed official exercising in his country responsibilities in matters of air navigation.

President: G. PAUL (Federal Republic of Germany).

Vice-President: J. VERSTAPPEN (Belgium).

DIRECTOR-GENERAL

Heads the General Directorate with five Directorates (Operations, Engineering, Personnel and Administration, Finance, General Secretariat) and the EUROCONTROL External Services.

Director-General: RENÉ BULIN (France).

EUROCONTROL EXTERNAL SERVICES

Eurocontrol Experimental Centre: B.P. 15, F-91220 Brétigny-sur-Orge, France; provides the planning staff at headquarters with practical technical operational aid in particular by undertaking experiments to improve or to develop control methods and procedures and to evaluate air traffic control and air navigation equipment and systems. Also undertakes experimental work requested by National Administrations of Member and Non-Member States.

Eurocontrol Institute of Air Navigation Services: Luxembourg (Grand Duchy); a school for the advanced training of ATC personnel (controllers, programmers and engineers) and an air navigation documentation centre.

Central Route Charges Office: Rue de la Loi 72, 1040 Brussels; collects charges on behalf of the EUROCONTROL member states, as well as for Austria, Portugal, Spain and Switzerland, for the use of route facilities and services.

Upper Area Control Centre, Maastricht: Postbus 78, NL-Beek (L) (Netherlands); responsible for providing air traffic services in the upper air space over Belgium, Luxembourg and the northern part of the Federal Republic of Germany. The transfer of responsibility for the upper air space over the Netherlands is planned for the end of 1979, with effect from the beginning of 1980.

Upper Area Control Centre, Karlsruhe: Rintheimer Querallee, D-75 Karlsruhe (Federal Republic of Germany); responsible for providing air traffic control services in the upper air space over the southern part of the Federal Republic of Germany. The centre began operations in February 1977.

The following services are concerned with co-ordination with National Air Traffic Services of France, and of the United Kingdom and Ireland respectively.

Regional Service—France: B.P. 15, 91220 Brétigny-sur-Orge, France.

Regional Service—Ireland/United Kingdom: Heathrow House, Bath Road, Hounslow TW5 9QQ, England.

AIMS

To strengthen the co-operation between member states in matters of air navigation and in particular to provide for the common organization of the air traffic services in the upper airspace, including:

The promotion, in co-operation with the national military authorities, of the adoption of measures and of the installation and operation of facilities designed to ensure the safety of air navigation and ensure an orderly and rapid flow of air traffic, within defined air space under the sovereignty of the Contracting Parties or in respect of which the air traffic services have been entrusted to those Parties under international agreements.

Standardization of national regulations governing air traffic and standardization of the operation of the services responsible for ensuring the safety and regulation of air traffic, on the basis of the Standards and Recommended Practices of ICAO and having regard to the requirements of national defence.

Promotion of a common policy to be followed in respect of radio aids, telecommunications and corresponding airborne equipment.

Promotion and co-ordination of studies relating to air navigation services and installations in order to take account of technical developments.

Determination of policy in respect of remuneration for services rendered to users.

ACTIVITIES

Responsibility for Air Traffic Control: exercising operational, legal and financial responsibilities for air traffic control services in the upper air space of the member states.

Establishing of New Facilities: necessary for the performance of the following tasks: to prevent collisions between aircraft, to ensure the orderly and rapid flow of air traffic, to provide advice and information useful for the safe and efficient conduct of flights, to notify appropriate organizations regarding aircraft in need of search and rescue aid, and assist such organizations as required. These installations are, inter alia, air traffic control centres, air traffic research and experimental centres and schools for advanced and specialized training of personnel of air navigation services.

Studies and Plans: elaboration, in conjunction with the National Administrations of member states, of operational plans for air traffic services in the upper air space of the Benelux/Federal Republic of Germany, Ireland and United Kingdom and France regions. Fundamental study of a common system of air traffic control over Europe after 1980. Linked to this study a five-year programme of operational research is under way with a view to applying scientific methods to the choice of a future optimal system. Study of the impact of supersonic aircraft on control requirements and procedures. Study of the application of modern technology to the requirements of air traffic control. General operational studies of airspace organization, route networks and of the management of traffic flows, of future navigation systems and ATC methods and procedures, including the use of primary and especially secondary radar. Development of automated ATC systems including the exchange of data between adjacent centres.

Tests and Trials: real and fast time simulations of air traffic situations to test and evaluate existing and future proposed systems. Tests and trials of navigational aids and evaluation of navigational accuracy. Operational evaluation of the radar coverage of the EUROCONTROL area. Calibration of new radars.

Traffic Statistics and Forecasting: processing of traffic data for use in the planning of operational requirements and the calculation of route charges. Preparation of forecasts of future air traffic and development of improved forecasting methods.

Training: theoretical and practical training of operational and technical ATC staff and of computer programmers for both member and non-member states.

Co-operation: agreements for co-operation, aiming mainly at an exchange of technical information, have been concluded with Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Federal Aviation Administration of the U.S.A., Switzerland, Italy, Portugal, Austria and more lately Spain, as well as with the ICAO. An association agreement with Portugal was concluded in April 1976.

FINANCE

Budget (1976: Investment and Operating): EUA 87 million (the European Unit of Account is described on page 184).

Scale of members' contributions based mainly on their Gross National Product.

Included in this budget is an amount of EUA 42.6 million for the joint financing of the operating costs of air traffic control services for the upper air space of the Benelux/Federal Republic of Germany region.

EUROPEAN SPACE AGENCY

8-10 rue Mario-Nikis, 75738 Paris, Cedex 15, France

Established in May 1975 to promote co-operation among European states in space research and technology, and their applications, for peaceful purposes. The Agency replaced the European Space Research Organization (ESRO) and the European Organization for the Development and Construction of Space Vehicle Launchers (ELDO).

MEMBERS

Belgium
Denmark
France

Federal Republic of Germany
Italy
Netherlands

Spain
Sweden

Switzerland
United Kingdom

Ireland will gain full membership when parliamentary ratification has been obtained in the ten original member countries; Norway, Austria and Canada have observer status, Canada wishing to apply for full membership.

ORGANIZATION

(as at October 1977)

COUNCIL

The Agency is directed by a Council composed of representatives of the member states; its first meeting at ministerial level was held in Paris in February 1977.

Chairman: Dr. WOLFGANG FINKE (Federal Republic of Germany).

DIRECTORATE

The Director-General is the chief executive of the Agency and its legal representative.

Director-General: ROY GIBSON (United Kingdom).

There are Directors of Planning and Future Programmes; Administration; Scientific and Meteorological Satellite Programmes; Communication Satellite Programmes; Spacelab Programme; ESTEC; and ESOC; and a Technical Inspector.

MAIN ESTABLISHMENTS

European Space Research and Technology Centre (ESTEC): Domeinweg, Noordwijk, Netherlands.

European Space Operations Centre (ESOC): Robert-Bosch-Strasse 5, 61 Darmstadt, Federal Republic of Germany.

European Space Research Institute (ESRIN): Via Sulpicio Galba, C.P.64, 100044 Frascati, Italy.

ACTIVITIES

SCIENTIFIC AND METEOROLOGICAL SATELLITE PROGRAMMES

Six programmes are being carried out: the GEOS satellite to study the magnetosphere was launched in April 1977; the Cos-B satellite to study extra-terrestrial gamma radiation was launched in August 1975; International Ultraviolet Explorer (IUE), a joint programme with NASA and U.K. (planned launch 1977); International Sun-Earth Explorer (ISEE-B), one of a pair of satellites of which NASA is developing the other (launched Oct. 1977); METEOSAT, the European contribution to the Global Atmosphere Research Programme and subsequently to the World Weather Watch of the World Meteorological Organization (see page 68); and EXOSAT (planned launch 1980).

TELECOMMUNICATIONS SATELLITE PROGRAMMES

The Orbital Test Satellite, the first European satellite and the forerunner of a satellite network, was destroyed after lift-off, September 1977; the first part of the AEROSAT programme to link aircraft and ground control stations in association with ICAO will launch two satellites in late 1978 and 1980; a second MAROTS (maritime communications) satellite is to be built and the first launched at the end of 1978.

SPACELAB

ESA is developing the space laboratory to be transported by the NASA space shuttle; delivery to NASA planned in 1979, launch in 1980.

ARIANE

A heavy launcher; planned qualification launches from Kourou Space Centre in 1979 and 1980.

KOUROU SPACE CENTRE

Two agreements signed in 1976 guaranteed ESA's rights of access to the station in French Guiana.

NEW PROGRAMMES

The Earthnet programme, a European network of ground stations to receive and process data from satellites on the earth's resources, was proposed in 1977; ESA was also party to an agreement to form a European Telecommunications Satellite Organization (Eutelsat) to provide a regional satellite system for telephone and broadcasting links between members of the European Conference of Posts and Telecommunications.

BUDGET

The Budget for 1977 amounted to 495 million accounting units (one AU = $1.1) of which three-quarters was devoted to the above programmes and one-quarter to general and scientific budgets, participation in the former being optional. It was suggested that a decrease in the budget to 350 million AU by 1980 should be achieved by staggering certain programmes.

FEDERATION OF ARAB REPUBLICS

Created in April 1971 to increase political unity of three Arab states, under a declaration signed by the three Presidents at Benghazi. The Federation was proclaimed in October 1971 and formally inaugurated on January 1st, 1972.

Minister of State, Chairman, Council of Educational and Cultural Affairs: Dr. ALI FAHMY KHESHIM (Libya).

FEDERAL NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Twenty members elected from each Republic by its People's Assembly. The Federal Assembly has a four-year term, with two ordinary sessions a year, and met for the first time in March 1972. The most recent session of the Assembly was held in October 1975; the session for March 1976 was postponed indefinitely.

Speaker: BASHIR RABITI (Libya).

CONSTITUTIONAL COURT

A Federal Constitutional Court was the fourth and last major institution provided for in the Statutes; it should be appointed by the Presidential Council and consist of two members representing each republic. It should be concerned with deciding on the constitutionality of laws and with settling disputes between the institutions and the authorities of the Federation and the Republics.

FUNCTIONS

(From the Declaration on the setting up of the Federation, signed by the three Presidents, Benghazi, April 1971.)

The Federation of Arab Republics shall be concerned with the following:

- (a) Working out the bases of foreign policy.
- (b) Questions of peace and war.
- (c) Regulating and commanding the defence of the Federation of Arab Republics in the presence of a military command responsible for training and operations. Forces shall be transferred between the Republics by decision of the Presidential Council or such quarters as it will invest with this power during operations.
- (d) Defending national security, and the formulation of bases whereby to regulate measures to safeguard the Federation. In the event of disorders from within or without, in any Republic, which endangers its security, or threatens the safety of the Federation, the government of such Republic shall immediately advise the Federal Government to take the necessary measures within the limits of its powers to preserve peace and order. In cases where the government of any member Republic is in no position to apply for aid from the Federal Government, or where the security of the Federation is jeopardized, the Federal authorities concerned may intervene without request to restore order.

- (e) Planning the national economy, the formulation of joint general development plans, and the direction of the economic institutions of federal character.
- (f) The introduction of an educational policy aimed at the building of a loyal Arab national socialist generation.
- (g) The institution of a federal information policy serving the targets and the strategy of the Federal State in peace and war.
- (h) The establishment of a unified policy of scientific research, and to co-ordinate its agencies in the Republics.
- (i) The admission of new members to the Federation by a unanimous vote of the Federation's Presidential Council.

FINANCE

The Ministerial Council approved a budget of £E30.7 million (about $15 million) for 1976.

THE FRANC ZONE

MEMBERS

Benin	Comoros	Ivory Coast	Senegal
Cameroon	Congo	Mali	Togo
Central African Empire	*French Republic	Niger	Upper Volta
Chad	Gabon

* Metropolitan France, Mayotte and the Overseas Departments and Territories.

The Franc Zone embraces all those countries and groups of countries whose currencies are linked with the French franc at a fixed rate of exchange and who agree to hold their reserves mainly in the form of French francs and to effect their exchange on the Paris market. Each of these countries or groups of countries has its own central issuing bank and its currency is freely convertible into French francs. This monetary union is based on agreements concluded between France and each country or group of countries.

Apart from Guinea and Mauritania, all of the countries that formerly comprised French West and Equatorial Africa are members of the Franc Zone. Besides these, Cameroon, Togo and the Comoros are members. The former West and Equatorial African territories are still grouped within the currency areas that existed before independence, each group having its own currency issued by a central bank.

West African Monetary Union (Union monétaire ouest-africaine): Benin, Ivory Coast, Niger, Senegal, Upper Volta (all parts of former French West Africa) and Togo, which joined in 1963. Established by Treaty of November 1973, entered into force 1974; the Central Bank (Banque Centrale des États de l'Afrique de l'Ouest, see below) is directed by an African governor and a fourteen-member Administrative Council; twelve members are nominated by the African states and two by the French Government.

Central African Countries: Central African Empire, Chad, Congo, Gabon (countries of the former French Equatorial Africa) and Cameroon. A Convention of Monetary Co-operation was signed with France in 1972; the French Government nominates three of the twelve members of the Administrative Council of the zone's issuing bank (Banque des États de l'Afrique Centrale, see below), one-third is nominated by Cameroon and the remainder are nominated by the other countries.

Mali withdrew from the Franc Zone in 1962, setting up her own currency, the Mali franc, and her own issuing Bank. The Mali franc returned to full convertibility with the French franc in March 1968, and agreement was reached on the establishment of a central issuing bank, to be jointly administered by France and Mali.

A number of states left the Franc Zone during the period 1958-73: Guinea, Tunisia, Morocco, Algeria, Mauritania and Madagascar.

CURRENCIES OF THE FRANC ZONE

French franc (= 100 centimes): used in Metropolitan France, in the Overseas Departments of Guadeloupe, French Guiana, Martinique, Réunion, and in Mayotte.

1 CFA franc=2 French centimes. CFA stands for Communauté financière africaine in the West African area and for Coopération financière en Afrique centrale in the Central African area. Used in the monetary areas of West and Central Africa. It is also used in the Comoros.

1 Mali franc=1 French centime. Used in Mali, where it replaced the CFA franc in 1962.

1 CFP (Comptoirs français du Pacifique) franc=5.5 French centimes. Used in New Caledonia, French Polynesia and the Wallis and Futuna Islands.

CENTRAL ISSUING BANKS

Banque des États de l'Afrique Centrale: B P. 1917, Yaoundé, Cameroon; f. 1955; present title 1973; issuing house for the five states of central Africa; Pres. HENRI LOPÉS; Dir.-Gen. CHRISTIAN JOUDIOU (France); Deputy Dir.-Gen. JEAN-EDOUARD SATHOUD; Asst. Dir.-Gen. CASIMIR OYE M'BA.

Banque Centrale des États de l'Afrique de l'Ouest: 29 rue du Colisée, 75008 Paris, France; f. 1955 under the title

"Institut d'émission de l'AOF et du Togo" and recreated under present title by a treaty between the West African states and a convention with France in 1962, both of which were modified in 1973; central issuing bank for the members of the West African Monetary Union; Pres. KONAN BEDIE (Ivory Coast); Gov. ABDOULAYE FADIGA (Ivory Coast); Deputy Gov. CHARLES BILA KAHORE (Upper Volta).

EXCHANGE REGULATIONS

The CFA franc is freely convertible into the French franc at a fixed rate, through "Operations Accounts" established by agreements concluded between the French Treasury and the individual issuing Banks. It is backed fully by the French Treasury, which also provides the Banks with overdraft facilities.

The monetary reserves of the CFA countries are normally held in French francs in the French Treasury. However, in certain circumstances, the Banque Centrale des Etats de l'Afrique de l'Ouest and the Banque des Etats de l'Afrique Centrale are authorized to hold up to 35 per cent of their foreign exchange holdings in currencies other than the franc. Exchange is effected on the Paris market. Part of the reserves earned by richer members can be used to offset the deficits incurred by poorer countries. Member countries negotiate each year their import programme with the French authorities.

New regulations drawn up in 1967 provided for the free convertibility of currency with that of countries outside the Franc Zone. Restrictions are to be removed on the import and export of CFA banknotes, although some capital transfers will still be subject to approval by the governments concerned.

When the French Government instituted exchange control to protect the French franc following the May 1968 crisis, other Franc Zone countries were obliged to take similar action in order to maintain free convertibility within the Franc Zone. The CFA franc was devalued following devaluation of the French franc in August 1969.

ECONOMIC AID

France's ties with the African Franc Zone countries involve not only monetary arrangements, but also include comprehensive French assistance in the forms of budget support, foreign aid, technical assistance and subsidies on commodity exports.

Official French financial aid and technical assistance to developing countries is administered by the following agencies:

Fonds d'Aide et de Coopération (FAC): 20 rue Monsieur, 75700 Paris. In 1959 FAC took over from FIDES (Fonds d'Investissement pour le Développement Economique et Social) the administration of subsidies and loans from the French Government to the former French African States. FAC is administered by the Ministry of Co-operation, which allocates budgetary funds to it.

Caisse Centrale de Coopération Economique—CCCE: 233 boulevard Saint-Germain, 75007 Paris. Founded in 1941, and given present name in 1958. French Development Bank which lends money to member states and former member states of the Franc Zone and several other states. Executes the financial operations of the FAC. Dir.-Gen. CLAUDE PANOUILLOT.

Bureau de Liaison des Agents de Coopération Technique: 66ter rue Saint-Didier, 75116 Paris.

FRENCH COMMUNITY

The Community was created by the 1958 Constitution, adopted by referendum by the countries of French West Africa (with the exception of Guinea, which opted for total and immediate independence), French Equatorial Africa and Madagascar, which all chose to become member states of the Community. The field of the Community's competence included foreign policy, defence, currency, economic and financial policy, strategic materials and higher education. Between October and December 1958 all the States of the Community were granted internal autonomy.

A Constitutional Act of June 1960 introduced the possibility of concluding agreements whereby a member state could become independent without ceasing to belong to the Community. Six states—Central African Empire, Chad, Congo People's Republic, Gabon, Madagascar and Senegal—decided to become independent within the Community which was then called the "renewed Community", while all the other states preferred total independence. France has concluded co-operation agreements in international law with all these states (including Togo and Cameroon which included territories entrusted to France by international mandate and therefore could not be members of the Community).

The Articles of the Constitution dealing with the Community have not been expressly abolished but are no longer applied today and the various organs of the Community have fallen into abeyance. Liaison between France and the African states is conducted largely by the French Ministries of Foreign Affairs and Co-operation.

Ministry of Foreign Affairs: 37 Quai d'Orsay, 75007 Paris;
Minister LOUIS DE GUINGAUD.

Ministry of Co-operation: 20 rue Monsieur, 75007 Paris;
Minister ROBERT GALLEY.

INTER-AMERICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK—IDB

808 17th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20577, U.S.A.

Founded in 1959 to promote the individual and collective development of member countries through the financing of economic and social development projects and the provision of technical assistance; helps to implement the objectives of the Inter-American system. Membership was increased in 1976 and 1977 to include countries in other world regions.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

All the powers of the Bank are vested in a Board of Governors, consisting of one Governor and one alternate appointed by each member country.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Consists of eleven Directors responsible for the conduct of operations and answerable to the Board of Governors. Seven are elected by Latin American countries, two by the member countries not in the region, one by Canada and one is designated by the U.S.A.

ACTIVITIES

ORDINARY CAPITAL RESOURCES

Loans are made to governments, and to public and private bodies for specific economic projects. They are repayable in the currencies lent and their terms range from 10 to 25 years.

The authorized capital stock totals $10,719 million, consisting of $9,128 million in ordinary capital ($1,231 million paid-in and $7,897 million callable) and $1,591 million in inter-regional capital ($253 million paid-in and $1,338 million callable). The callable capital constitutes, in effect, a guarantee of the securities which the Bank issues in the capital markets in order to increase its resources available for lending.

FUND FOR SPECIAL OPERATIONS

The Fund enables the Bank to make loans for economic and social projects where circumstances call for special treatment, such as lower interest rates and longer repayment terms than those applied to loans from the ordinary resources, and possibility of repayments in whole or in part in local currency.

Authorized subscribed resources at June 30th, 1977: $5,886,488,000.

OTHER FUNDS

Several donor countries have placed sums under the Bank's administration for assistance to Latin America, outside the framework of the Ordinary Resources and the Bank's Special Operations.

The largest of these was the Social Progress Trust Fund of the United States, set up in 1961 under the Alliance for Progress programme. This amounted to $525 million.

In the same year a fund of nearly DM33 million was given by the Federal Republic of Germany, to improve Bolivia's tin mines.

In 1964 the Bank began administering a fund created by the Canadian government in the amount of 74 million Canadian dollars. Canada has been contributing the repayments of loans made under this fund to the Fund for Special Operations since 1972.

Britain set up a fund with the Bank in 1966, which now amounts to more than £4 million, and in 1971 and 1972 a further $4 million was contributed. Also in 1966 the government of Sweden placed a fund under Bank administration in the amount of $5 million. The Vatican City donated a Populorum Progressio fund of $1 million in 1969, for land reform and assistance to the poorest areas.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Norway gave a fund of $2 million in the following year, and in 1973 Switzerland gave 30 million Swiss francs. The Canadians began a new fund of 9 million Canadian dollars in 1974, for project preparation.

In 1975 the Venezuelan Investment Fund established a fund to be administered by the Bank in the amount of $500 million dollars ($400 million and 430 million Venezuelan bolivars).

Inter-American Development Bank

Argentinian aid for its neighbouring countries is also transferred by this method with a fund equivalent to $1.8 million.

The equivalent of $809.3 million had been lent from all these other funds at June 30th, 1977.

BOND ISSUES AND LOANS

To increase its lendable ordinary resources the Bank has borrowed in the markets of 16 countries and has sold short-term bonds to Central Banks in Latin America and Israel.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

Co-operation may be provided in conjunction with a development loan, or arranged independently. The Bank pays for a certain number of trained personnel who may be needed in various phases of a project and provides professional training enabling local people to carry out the development of their own countries.

The Bank has spent a total of $412.6 million on technical co-operation up to December 31st, 1976, $286 million in loans and $126.6 million in grants or on a contingent recovery basis. Most of the loans have been to set up pre-investment funds in the national development institutions.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL COMMITTEE FOR EUROPEAN MIGRATION—ICEM

16 ave. Jean Trembley, 1211 Geneva 19, Switzerland

Telephone: 34 22 00.

ICEM was established in 1951 to achieve the orderly migration of those Europeans who could not migrate without international assistance, to help resettlement of refugees in countries of permanent asylum, to sponsor immigration into the less developed countries in accordance with their economic needs. World membership: 33 nations and 9 observer nations.

COUNCIL

In the Council each member country has one representative and one vote. Meetings are normally held once a year in Geneva. Membership is open to any country subscribing to the principle of free movement of peoples and prepared to contribute to the Committee's administrative budget. The Council determines policy, reviews the activities of the Executive Committee, and approves the budget. A chairman is elected at each session.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Composed of representatives of nine member governments, elected annually, and eligible for re-election. The Committee meets twice a year, in spring and before the autumn Council session. Special sessions may be called if necessary.

SUB-COMMITTEE ON BUDGET AND FINANCE

Composed of representatives of five member governments elected annually by the Council. It is responsible for studying financial questions and making appropriate recommendations to the Executive Committee and Council.

SUB-COMMITTEE ON CO-ORDINATION OF TRANSPORT

Membership is open to any member government. It meets once a year, studies matters concerning transport and makes recommendations to the Council.

SECRETARIAT

Director: JOHN F. THOMAS (U.S.A.).

Deputy Director: G. MASELLI (Italy).

ACTIVITIES

ICEM's objectives are threefold: to effect the movement of refugees to countries offering final resettlement; to meet the specific needs of overseas countries by providing migration from Europe in the sectors of their economies where government-sponsored migration is required; and to promote, through selective migration, the socio-economic advancement of Latin American countries as a vital form of development aid.

The tasks of ICEM range from helping an individual refugee or a national migrant to assisting member governments in the development of their migration programmes.

Upon request from member governments, ICEM also provides essential services such as counselling, orientation, medical examination, vocational and language training, placement and the organization of adaptation courses. Furthermore, ICEM arranges transport at a moderate cost, finances the movement of those refugees and migrants who are unable to meet their own expenses.

The movement of refugees to countries offering them opportunity and security is a major function of ICEM. To assure the efficient resettlement of 60,000 to 70,000 uprooted people each year, ICEM closely co-ordinates its refugee activities with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the United States Refugee Program and with other governmental and non-governmental organizations. ICEM implemented the processing and movements of 2,197,942 refugees from 1952 until December 1976.

ICEM's programmes for Latin America aim at making a contribution to the solution of development problems by providing skilled workers and technicians through immigration.

Immigrants with experience and professional knowledge of modern techniques form an important stepping-stone in the process of speeding up economic and social development. Through its selective migration programme ICEM is transferring qualified Europeans to vital sectors of industry, agriculture and education for which sufficient man-power cannot be found on the national labour markets. Training centres and demonstration projects have been established with immigrant instructors to teach local labourers and farmers improved methods.

FINANCE

The administrative budget is made up of mandatory contributions from member governments. The operational budget is made up of voluntary contributions; contributors may stipulate use to which their contributions are put.

Telephones: (Montreal) 844-6311; (Geneva) 98-33-66.

Founded 1945 to promote safe, regular and economical air transport, to foster air commerce and to provide a means of international air transport collaboration. Membership: 91 international airlines (active members), 19 domestic airlines (associate members). See also International Civil Aviation Organization, p. 42, and EUROCONTROL, p. 201.

ORGANIZATION

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

The basic source of IATA authority: All active members have an equal vote and decisions are by majority. The A.G.M. elects the President and the Executive Committee. It designates committees to be organized by the Executive Committee.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Consists of twenty-one elected members. Carries out policy between Annual General Meetings, and is assisted by Financial, Legal, Technical and Traffic Committees.

TRAFFIC CONFERENCES

Negotiation of fares and rates is carried out through the IATA Traffic Conferences, with separate meetings considering passenger and cargo matters. Decisions cannot become effective without the approval of interested governments. The conferences are held in various world cities, usually at yearly intervals, in the autumn for passenger operations and the following spring for matters involving cargo. The IATA Traffic Conferences have their central office in Geneva, with three Traffic Services Offices located in Montreal, New York and Singapore.

SECRETARIAT

Carries out the day-to-day administration of IATA.

Director-General: KNUT HAMMARSKJÖLD (Sweden).

Corporate Secretary: A. M. BLACK.

TRAFFIC SERVICE OFFICES

Montreal: P.O.B. 550, Place Aviation Internationale, Montreal, P.Q. H3A 2R4, Canada.

Middle East: P.O.B. 160, 26 Chemin de Joinville, 1216 Cointrin-Geneva, Switzerland.

North Atlantic/North America: Bewlay House, 2 Swallow Place, London, W1R 7AA, England.

South America/Caribbean: Avenida Rio Branca 156, Sala 2816, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

South East Asia/Pacific: G.P.O. Box 1196, 9th Floor, Kasemkij Bldg., 120 Silom Rd., Bangkok, Thailand.

OFFICES OF REGIONAL DIRECTORS

Asia/South Pacific: Suite 701, Cathay Bldg., Mount Sophia, Killiney Rd., P.O.B. 84, Singapore 9.

Latin America: Marcelo T. Alvear 590, Buenos Aires, Argentina.

PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES

Finance: Member airlines may settle their international accounts through the IATA Clearing House in Geneva, enabling a single cash settlement of all debts in dollars or convertible sterling.

Technical Problems: There is a full and free exchange of experience and information between airlines, and experts study such problems as minimum noise procedures for take-off and landing, linking of airline telecommunications systems and the application of production planning and control techniques to maintenance. Other groups are concerned with problems of navigation aids, turbine fuels, helicopter operations and supersonic transport.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Air Traffic: Subject to the approval of governments, agreements are reached on international fares and rates through the Traffic Conferences. IATA also furthers the standardization of documentation and all phases of passenger, baggage and cargo handling.

International Law: IATA formulates and represents airlines' views on international conventions affecting the legal position of air carriers in various fields including liability and armed aggression. Standardized Conditions of Contract governing carriage of passengers and cargo have been drawn up, and Conditions of Carriage for all aspects of transport are in preparation.

Information and Documentation: IATA acts as a documentation centre, collecting and issuing statistics, internal manuals, technical surveys, reports and publicity material.

International Co-operation: IATA works closely with the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) and also co-operates with other bodies such as the International

International Air Transport Association

Telecommunication Union (ITU), The World Meteorological Organization (WMO) and the International Standards Organization.

FINANCE

Financed from dues paid by member airlines in proportion to the amount of international air traffic carried.

1977 budget: U.S. $11,853,000. Traffic conferences have separate budgets.

INTERNATIONAL CO-OPERATIVE ALLIANCE—ICA

11 Upper Grosvenor St., London, W1X 9PA, England

Telephone: 01-4995991.

Founded by the International Co-operative Congress in 1895. The Alliance links individual members and affiliated organizations in the pursuit of Co-operative aims.

MEMBERS

332,355,000 individual members of 663,510 societies.

ORGANIZATION

President: ROGER KERINEC (France).

Vice-Presidents: A. P. KLIMOV (U.S.S.R.), P. SØILAND (Norway).

CONGRESS

The highest authority of the ICA. Congress meets every four years.

Each national organization sends delegates. Their number is according to the organization's size.

Functions: to elect the Central Committee, to establish general policy and the future programme, to approve reports and to decide on motions and resolutions.

CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Meets once a year at least.

There are 170 members, nominated by the national organizations and the Committee is elected by Congress.

Functions: to elect the President, two Vice-Presidents and the Executive, to appoint the Director, to confirm the budget, and to carry out the programme established by Congress.

EXECUTIVE

Meets two or three times a year.

Members: the President, Vice-Presidents, and thirteen members elected by the Central Committee.

Functions: to admit new members, to appoint staff, to draw up the budget and control finance, to conduct any collaboration with other international organizations, and to direct ICA policy between Central Committee meetings. The Co-operative Development Committee, a sub-committee of the Executive directs ICA activities in promoting co-operation in the developing countries and controls the expenditure of the development fund financing the activities. The Executive has designated the years 1971-80 as the Co-operative Development Decade during which special efforts will be made to stimulate and co-ordinate the work of all agencies involved in the promotion of co-operatives in developing countries.

SECRETARIAT

Director: Dr. SUREN K. SAXENA (India).

The Director is responsible for executing the decisions of the Alliance's authorities, for representing it at international organizations, for finance, organization of meetings and the running of the Secretariat. He is assisted by the heads of departments for Administration, Education, Agriculture, Press and Public Relations, Research and Statistics and Women and Youth Activities.

REGIONAL OFFICE AND EDUCATIONAL CENTRE FOR SOUTH-EAST ASIA

Bonow House, P.O.B. 3312, 43 Friends' Colony, New Delhi, India.

Founded 1960 to develop ICA activity in South-East Asia, to act as a link with affiliated national movements, and to represent ICA at international organizations in the region.

The Regional Office includes the Education Centre, which facilitates the interchange of knowledge and experience between Co-operative organizations in the region. It arranges courses, seminars and conferences, undertakes surveys, and supports and supplements the educational activities of national Co-operative Movements.

Regional Director: R. B. RAJAGURU.

OFFICE FOR EAST AND CENTRAL AFRICA

P.O.B. 946, Moshi, Tanzania

The Office of the ICA for East and Central Africa was founded in 1968 to develop ICA activity in East Africa and to carry out a similar programme of work as the Regional Office in South-East Asia.

Regional Director: D. NYANJOM.

FINANCE

The ICA works on an annual budget of slightly over £100,000. Its income is obtained almost entirely from the annual subscriptions paid by its members. Costs of about £80,000 per annum for the work of the Education Centre in South East Asia are borne by the members of the Swedish co-operatives. Technical Assistance expenditure is met from the ICA Development Fund to which contributions are made by member organizations on a voluntary basis.

ORGANIZATION

(as at August 1977)

COUNCIL

The Council of the Bank is the highest authority and consists of representatives of all the member countries. Each member country, irrespective of the amount of its quota, has one vote in the Council. Major decisions require a unanimous vote. The Council meets as often as necessary but not less than twice a year.

BOARD

The Board is the executive body of the Bank and consists of a Chairman and three Deputies appointed by the Council. Its task is to supervise the Bank's activities in accordance with the Agreement, the Statutes of the Bank and the decisions of the Council.

Chairman: ALBERT N. BELICHENKO (U.S.S.R.).

FUNCTIONS

1. Under Article II of the Agreement on the Establishment of the International Investment Bank the fundamental task of the Bank is to grant long-term and medium-term credits for projects connected with the international socialist division of labour, specialization and co-operation of production, for expenditure on raw materials and fuels in the members' collective interest, for the construction of enterprises of mutual concern to member countries in other branches of the economy, for the construction of projects for the development of the national economies of member countries and for other purposes established by the Council.

2. Credits may be granted to:

- (a) banks, economic organizations and enterprises of member countries;
- (b) international economic organizations and enterprises of member countries;
- (c) banks and economic organizations of other countries.

3. The Bank may:

- (i) form reserve capital and create its own special funds;
- (ii) attract funds in collective currency (transferable roubles), in national currencies of interested countries and in convertible currency;
- (iii) issue interest-bearing bond loans placed on international capital markets;

(iv) place surplus funds with other banks, buy and sell currency, gold and securities, grant guarantees and conduct other banking operations;

(v) co-operate with bodies of the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, the International Bank for Economic Co-operation and other economic organizations of the member countries of the Bank;

(vi) make contact and establish business relations with international and other financial and credit institutions as well as with banks.

(vii) conclude international agreements and the like, as well as making business transactions within its competence.

The Bank signed a co-operation agreement with the International Bank for Economic Co-operation (see page 216) in July 1971, under which it may place deposits with the latter. The banks co-operate in planning credit operations.

In 1974, a Special Fund was formed for financing programmes of economic and technical assistance to developing countries.

The amount of the Special Fund is determined at 1,000 million transferable roubles.

The Bank's credits finance projects in industry and transport. By the end of 1976 48 projects had been approved for credits; the cost of these projects was estimated at 7,000 million transferable roubles.

INTERNATIONAL PRESS INSTITUTE—IPI

Lindenplatz 6, 8048 Zurich, Switzerland

London Secretariat: c/o City University, 280 John St., London, EC1V 4PB, England

Founded in 1951. A non-governmental association of editors, publishers and news broadcasters who support the principles of a free and responsible Press.

MEMBERS

1,800 publishers and journalists of press, radio and TV systems from 62 countries.

ORGANIZATION

ANNUAL ASSEMBLY

Composed of participants from all member countries. The Assembly elects the Executive Board and lays down Institute policy.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

The governing body of the Institute. The Board consists of 24 editors, publishers and broadcasters, who are elected by the Annual Assembly. It meets when necessary, but must do so at least once a year. It appoints the Director.

Chairman: OLOF WAHLGREN (Sweden).

Vice-Chairmen: WILLIAM BLOCK (U.S.A.), TOMOO HIROOKA (Japan), RANALD MACDONALD (Australia).

SECRETARIAT

Director: PETER GALLINER (United Kingdom).

NATIONAL COMMITTEES

Established in every country where there are at least five full members formally committed to the principle of the present IPI Constitution.

Composed of the leading editors of these countries, the Committees recruit the membership, report to the Secretariat on developments affecting the press and conduct the business of the Institute in their countries.

MEMBERSHIP

Comprises three categories: full members, associate members and institutional members.

Full membership of the Institute is open to persons with responsibilities for editorial or news policy in newspapers, weekly or monthly journals, news agencies or broadcasting systems, who support the principle of freedom of the Press and desire to co-operate in achieving the Institute's objectives and who, in seeking membership, declare formally and by written statement their willingness to work for the achievement of Press freedom.

Associate membership is open to persons whose work is associated with journalism in its editorial aspects but who cannot qualify for full membership because they are not executives of newspapers or agencies, for example newspaper correspondents and commentators, members of journalism faculties, etc.

Institutional membership is open under the same conditions as for full and associate membership to communications departments of universities and colleges, schools and centres of journalism, press institutes and journalists' organizations in the press and broadcasting fields.

ACTIVITIES

Defence of Press Freedom

IPI takes the following action: publication of the facts in the monthly IPI Report; protests to governments; public protests spread over the world through news agencies, newspapers, radio and television; direct pressure on governments and direct intervention.

Meetings

Regional meetings have been a regular feature of the Institute's programme. These are held between newspapermen from pairs of countries to discuss mutual problems and misunderstandings and ways to improve relations through the press.

Seminars are arranged on subjects of practical use to editors and journalists.

Training

A programme to train staff of Asian newspapers was launched in 1960. The Press Institute of India was launched as a result of collaboration between IPI and a group of leading Indian newspaper publishers and editors. Other institutes followed in the Republic of Korea, the Philippines, Hong Kong and Malaysia, providing newspapers with their own bodies to study professional problems and train journalists.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

In March 1963, the first IPI training course for African journalists opened in Nairobi, Kenya. Since then over 200 journalists from a dozen African countries, who have studied at IPI residential courses in Nairobi and in Lagos, Nigeria, have moved on to responsible posts and the IPI certificate of training has become recognized as the mark of a qualified journalist. Instruction has also been given to African newspaper cameramen and IPI has given the first course for African women journalists.

Meanwhile, these journalism courses have been taken over and continued by the University of Nairobi and the Nigerian Institute of Journalism.

New projects in the form of seminars and training programmes are being carried out in developing countries.

Research

A Research Section prepares studies on problems of International Press Institute

international journalism. Information is frequently supplied on such questions as legislation affecting the press, professional standards and training in journalism.

Library and Press Centre

This Centre is maintained at the secretariat of IPI in London. Material on a wide range of press subjects, including news coverage, legislation and freedom of the press, is at the disposal of members.

BUDGET

The Institute is supported by members' subscriptions and publishers' donations. It began with the aid of the United States Carnegie and Rockefeller Foundations and receives continuous support from various foundations for specific projects.

INTERVISION

The Intervision network was set up in 1960 under OIRT to link the television services of Czechoslovakia, the German Democratic Republic, Hungary and Poland. Links were extended to the U.S.S.R. in 1961 (the Soviet Central Television and TV services of the Ukraine, Estonia and Latvia). Bulgaria and Romania joined in 1963. In 1965 Finnish Television and TV services of Byelorussia and Lithuania joined. The TV service of Moldavia joined in 1967, and that of Mongolia in 1972.

Intervision is controlled by the OIRT Administrative Council and decisions about programmes are made by the Intervision Council. Programme details are settled by the Intervision International Programme Centre.

There is a regular exchange with the Eurovision network.

THE INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE OF THE RED CROSS—ICRC*

LEAGUE OF RED CROSS SOCIETIES—LORCS*

COMMON ORGANS

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF THE RED CROSS

The supreme deliberative body of the International Red Cross. Composed of delegations of National Red Cross, Red Crescent and Red Lion and Sun Societies, of the States parties to the Geneva Conventions and of the International Committee of the Red Cross and of the League of Red Cross Societies. The Conference's function is to secure unity of effort between the National Societies, the International Committee and the League. It usually meets every four years. (Last Conference: Bucharest, October 1977.)

STANDING COMMISSION

Chairman: Sir EVELYN SHUCKBURGH (United Kingdom).

The Commission meets twice a year in ordinary session. Its functions are to prepare the International Conference and to settle any differences that may arise between the International Committee and the League. It consists of two members each from the ICRC and the League, and five members elected by the Conference.

MEETINGS OF THE THREE PRESIDENTS

The Chairman of the Standing Commission, the President of the International Committee of the Red Cross and the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the League meet once between Standing Commission meetings and whenever one of them shall so request. They present a report at the following session of the Standing Commission.

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE OF THE RED CROSS—ICRC

17 avenue de la Paix, 1211 Geneva, Switzerland

Founded in 1863; assumed present title in 1876. It serves as a neutral intermediary between parties to armed conflicts. It is the guardian of the principles of the Red Cross and promotes international humanitarian law.

PRINCIPLES OF THE RED CROSS

Humanity.

Impartiality.

Neutrality.

Independence.

Voluntary Service. The Red Cross is a voluntary organization not prompted in any way by desire for gain.

Unity. There can be only one Red Cross Society in any one country. It must be open to all. It must carry out its work throughout the whole territory.

Universality.

GENEVA CONVENTIONS

The first Geneva Convention (Geneva Convention for the Amelioration of the Condition of the Wounded and Sick) was signed in 1864 by twelve countries. In 1929 a Convention concerning the treatment of prisoners of war was approved.

Under the following 4 Conventions agreed in 1949, protection is bestowed upon:

1. The wounded and sick in the armed forces, doctors and medical personnel, chaplains.
2. The wounded and sick and medical personnel at sea; the shipwrecked.
3. Prisoners of war.
4. Civilians.

In 1977 two protocols additional to the Geneva Conventions were approved by the States, in order to improve the protection of civilians during armed conflicts.

* ICRC was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1917 and 1944 and jointly with the League of Red Cross Societies in 1963.

ORGANIZATION

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE

President: ALEXANDRE HAY.

Vice-Presidents: JEAN PICTET, HARALD HUBER.

The ICRC is an independent institution of a private character, neutral as regards politics, ideology and religion. It is exclusively composed of Swiss nationals. Members are co-opted, and their total number may not exceed 25. The international character of the ICRC is based on its mission and not on its composition.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

President: ALEXANDRE HAY.

Vice-President: VICTOR H. UMBRIGHT.

Members: DENISE BINDSCHIEDLER-ROBERT, THOMAS FLEINER, RICHARD PESTALOZZI, JEAN PICTET.

FINANCE

The ICRC's work is financed by a voluntary annual grant from governments parties to the Geneva Conventions, voluntary contributions from National Red Cross Societies and by gifts and legacies from private people.

PERIODICALS AND PUBLICATIONS

International Review of the Red Cross (monthly): French, English and Spanish editions.

ICRC Bulletin (monthly): French, English, Spanish and German editions.

Annual Reports.

The Geneva Conventions: texts and commentaries.

Various publications on humanitarian law and subjects of Red Cross interest.

THE LEAGUE OF RED CROSS SOCIETIES—
LORCS

17 Chemin des Grêts, Petit-Saconnex, Case Postale 276, 1211 Geneva 19, Switzerland

Founded in 1919, by the American, British, French, Italian and Japanese Red Cross Societies to be a permanent organ of liaison between national societies.

MEMBERS

National Red Cross, Red Crescent, Red Lion and Sun Societies in 122 countries at the end of 1975, with an aggregate youth and adult membership of over 230 million.

FUNCTIONS

1. To facilitate, as the International Federation of the National Societies, their humanitarian action at all times and carry out the responsibilities devolving on it in this capacity, being a permanent organ of liaison, co-ordination and study among the various National Societies, and having the duty of assisting them in organizing and carrying out their work on both national and international level.

2. To promote the establishment and development of an independent and duly authorized National Society in each country.
3. To be the official representative of the Member Societies in the international field.
4. To accept the mandates entrusted to it by the International Conference of the Red Cross and the Board of Governors.

FINANCE

The League of Red Cross Societies is financed by the contributions of Member Societies on a pro-rata basis. Each relief action is financed by contributions specified for that action and the development programme is also financed on a voluntary basis by National Societies.

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Chairman: JOSÉ BARROSO CHÁVEZ (Mexico).

The Board is the highest authority of the League and meets every two years. It is composed of representatives from all National Societies Members of the League.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Meets every two years, alternately with the Board of Governors. It is composed of representatives from the Societies to which the Chairman and nine Vice-Chairmen of the Board of Governors belong and from nineteen other Societies appointed by the Board of Governors for a four-year term. It directs the League between sessions of the Board of Governors.

ADVISORY COMMITTEES AND STANDING FINANCE COMMISSION

Development Programme Advisory Committee.
Disaster Relief Advisory Committee.
Health and Social Service Advisory Committee.

Youth Advisory Committee.
Nursing Advisory Committee.
Standing Finance Commission.

These Committees meet, in principle, once every two years. Members are elected by the Board of Governors and number between 10 and 16 except the Standing Finance Commission which numbers 14.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: HENRIK BEER (Sweden).

Deputy Secretary-General: BERTIL PETTERSON (Mexico).

Under Secretaries-General:

BENGT BERGMAN (Sweden), Administration and Control Sector.

ENSO V. BIGMINATTI (U.S.A.), Relief Sector.

DR. GRANT AKOPOV (U.S.S.R.), Technical Services Section.

Treasurer-General: EUSTASIO VILLANUEVA VADILLO (Spain).

ACTIVITIES

Relief Sector: Assumes the statutory responsibilities of the League in the field of relief to victims of natural disasters, refugees and civilian populations who may be displaced or exposed to abnormal hardship. This activity has three main aspects under the responsibility of three Bureaux:

- (i) Relief Operations: for the co-ordination of relief operations on the international level and execution by the National Society of the stricken country or by the League itself;
- (ii) Supply, Logistics and Warehouses: for the co-ordination and purchase, transport and warehousing of relief supplies;
- (iii) Relief Preparedness: for co-ordination of assistance to National Societies situated in disaster-prone areas in the study and execution of practical measures calculated to prevent disasters and diminish their effects.

Services to National Societies Sector: Promotes and co-ordinates assistance to National Societies in developing their basic structure and their services to the community. Three Bureaux are included in this sector:

- (i) Regional Services: for the implementation of the League's Red Cross Development Programme aiming at co-ordinating assistance to National Societies, with the advice and co-operation of the Technical Services Section, in the fields of health, social welfare, nursing, first aid and training;
- (ii) Youth: Promotes the establishment and development of educational and service programmes for children and youth;
- (iii) Public Information.

The League is recognized by the United Nations as the main co-ordinating agency in emergency stages of international disaster relief and maintains close relations with many inter-governmental organizations, the United Nations and its Specialized Agencies, as well as with non-governmental organizations.

INTERNATIONAL SECRETARIAT FOR VOLUNTEER SERVICE—ISVS

10 Chemin de Surville, Petit Lancy, 1213 Geneva, Switzerland

Established 1962, the ISVS supports national programmes for voluntary and obligatory development service. These may be either overseas programmes or services within national borders. Members: 68 governments.

ORGANIZATION

ASSEMBLY

The ultimate authority on the policies, objectives and scope of the organization. The Assembly now numbers 68 governments. Membership is open to all member governments of the United Nations or its Specialized Agencies and imposes no financial obligations.

COUNCIL

Composed of 28 governments which contribute support to ISVS, either in the form of cash or in the assignment of personnel, or both, on a voluntary basis. It determines questions of policy, programme and budget.

SECRETARIAT

Responsible for the executive functions of the organization.

Secretary-General: MAXIME-LEOPOLD ZOLLNER (Benin).

REGIONAL REPRESENTATION

Asia: ISVS Asian Office, 503 Jalandoni Bldg., 1444a Mabini St., Ermita Manila, Philippines. Telephone 58 41 03.

Latin America: ISVS Representative in Chile, Casilla 21.101, Santiago 21, Chile. Telephone 71 77 38.

Africa: ISVS Representative in Senegal, Délégation général à la Promotion humaine, Bldg. administrative, 2e. étage, Dakar, Senegal.

ACTIVITIES

1. An information and technical services centre is maintained; publications on volunteer service and technical material are distributed.

2. International and regional conferences and seminars are held, teaching generally about volunteer service.

3. Technical assistance takes the form of:
seminars and workshops;
staff exchange among the national volunteer and obligatory services;
regional directors' conferences; consultancies, on request.

FINANCE

The Secretariat is financed by contributions of member governments, principally those of the Council.

INTERNATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS SATELLITE ORGANIZATION—INTELSAT

490 L'Enfant Plaza, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20024, U.S.A.

Founded in August 1964 for the establishment of a global commercial communications satellite system.

MEMBERSHIP

Under the Definitive Agreements all states members of the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) and all states which were members of INTELSAT under the Interim Agreement may join the Organization. As of August 1977 there were 98 members of INTELSAT.

ORGANIZATION

ASSEMBLY OF PARTIES

Attended by representatives of governments which are parties to the Agreement. The Assembly has the power to consider general policy and long-term objectives. It may authorize the use of the INTELSAT space segment, or the provision of separate satellites by INTELSAT for specialized telecommunications services; take decisions on proposed amendments to the Intergovernmental Agreement and propose amendments to the Operating Agreement; consider complaints from the governments party to the Intergovernmental Agreement; select legal experts for arbitration tribunals; and confirm the appointment of the Director-General.

Meetings are generally held every two years.

MEETING OF SIGNATORIES

Composed of signatories to the Operating Agreement. Considers resolutions, recommendations and views addressed to it by the Assembly and the Board. Its main functions are to comment on the Board's annual report, and to consider reports on future programmes, proposals for the amendment of the Operating Agreement and the establishment of rules for the use of the space segment.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

As of August 1977, the Board consisted of 26 members.

representing 78 signatories either singly or in combination. Any five or more signatories from the same ITU administrative region may under certain circumstances appoint a joint representative.

A weighted majority of votes is required for important decisions, a simple majority of governors for matters of procedure.

Meetings are generally held five or six times a year.

EXECUTIVE

The Executive headquarters consists of the following main units: Office of the Director-General, Administration, Finance and Operations and Development. The Director-General is responsible to the Board of Governors for all management functions.

Certain technical, operational and management functions are currently provided by the communications Satellite Corporation (Comsat), of Washington, D.C., under the terms of a contract which will expire in February 1979.

Director-General: SANTIAGO ASTRAIN.

ACTIVITIES

SATELLITES

As of August 1977, five INTELSAT satellites, in synchronous orbit, were providing a global communications service. Three satellites (two INTELSAT IV-A and one INTELSAT IV) were positioned over the Atlantic Ocean Region. One INTELSAT IV satellite was in service over the Indian Ocean Region and one INTELSAT IV satellite was in service over the Pacific Ocean Region. In addition, spare satellites are available in orbit to provide immediate restoration of service. The INTELSAT IV-A has a capacity of 6,000 telephone circuits plus two colour television channels; while the INTELSAT IV satellite has a capacity of approximately 4,000 telephone circuits plus two colour television channels.

EARTH STATIONS

Earth stations which work with the INTELSAT satellites are the property of organizations in the countries in which they are located. INTELSAT sets compulsory standards for these stations.

As of August 1977, 122 standard A and 55 standard B earth station antennae carried international commercial traffic via the INTELSAT system.

TRACKING, TELEMETRY, COMMAND AND MONITORING FACILITIES

INTELSAT presently operates, through Signatories acting in a contracting capacity, six facilities for performing specialized tracking, telemetry, command and monitoring (TTC & M) functions. Special antennae are arranged with standard A earth stations at Carnarvon, Australia; Tangua, Brazil; Zamengoe, Cameroon; Fucino, Italy; Paumalu, Hawaii, and Andover, Maine, U.S.A.

SATELLITE CHARGES AND USE

INTELSAT establishes the charges for use of the space segment to cover estimated operating, maintenance and administrative costs and a return on capital.

The INTELSAT space segment charge was initially set in 1965 at U.S. $32,000 per year per defined unit of utilization. This charge has been reduced progressively and, from January 1977, it has been set at U.S. $7,380 per year per unit of utilization.

INTELSAT provides over half of the world's overseas international traffic. As of August 1977 about 18,000 units were in full-time service in the INTELSAT system, and the continuity of service from January to mid-1977 is indicated by the following figures: 99.99 per cent for the total global satellite system, and 99.95 per cent for the average INTELSAT earth station.

DOMESTIC SERVICES

Where this would not affect the ability of INTELSAT to meet its prime objective of providing capacity for international public telecommunication services, the space segment may be used by signatory states for their own interior communications.

Domestic services, based on long-term lease of transponder capacity, are being provided, or soon will be, through the INTELSAT system to Algeria, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, France (Réunion), Malaysia, Nigeria, Norway, Saudi Arabia, Spain, Sudan and Uganda. Other countries actively considering this type of service include: Australia, Denmark (Greenland), India, Iran, Iraq, Libya, Oman, Peru, Thailand and Zaire.

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY UNION

Place du Petit-Saconnex, 1209 Geneva, Switzerland

Founded in 1889 to promote personal contacts among the members of the world's Parliaments.
World membership: 72 Inter-Parliamentary Groups.

ORGANIZATION

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY CONFERENCE

Meets once a year. National Groups are represented by Delegations consisting of Members of Parliament. Conference adopts resolutions on subjects referred to it by the Inter-Parliamentary Council.

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY COUNCIL

The directing organ of the Union. Composed of two members from each affiliated National Group. The Council convenes Inter-Parliamentary Conferences, fixes their agenda, approves the annual budget of the Union and appoints the Secretary General.

President: Sir THOMAS WILLIAMS (United Kingdom).

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The administrative organ of the Union. It supervises the work of the Inter-Parliamentary Bureau. The President of the Council is ex officio a member and President of the Committee.

Vice-President: M. ZIAI (Iran).

Members:

M. O. BA (Senegal)	R. G. L. FAIRWEATHER
J. BAUMEL (France)	(Canada)
C. ABORJA (Brazil)	J. FINAT (Spain)
E. CUVELIER (Belgium)	M. TARABANOV (Bulgaria)
P. DAPCEVIC (Yugoslavia)	H. YOUNG (Australia)

SECRETARIAT OF THE UNION

Maintains contacts with the National Inter-Parliamentary Groups, organizes meetings held under the auspices of the Union, carries out study programmes and issues publications.

Secretary-General: PIO-CARLO TERENCE (Italy).

Deputy Secretary-General: PIERRE CORNILLON (France).

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

The Union promotes personal contacts among members of all Parliaments constituted into National Groups with a view to establishing and developing firm democratic institutions and to advancing international peace and co-operation.

The Union organizes conferences bringing together parliamentarians of different nationalities and ideologies to study objectively political, economic, social and cultural problems of international significance.

The Union operates an International Centre for Parliamentary Documentation (CIDP) which collects and circulates material on the structure and functioning of legislative assemblies throughout the world, and also organizes symposia on questions of parliamentary interest.

The Union has general consultative status, Category 1, with the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations (ECOSOC). It has entered into consultative arrangements with UNESCO and also maintains regular contacts with other UN specialized agencies. Co-operation also exists with various regional organizations of a parliamentary nature.

BUDGET

Contributions from National Groups are the main source of revenue. These are paid annually on a scale fixed by the Council. The Union's budget for 1977 was about 2,400,000 Swiss francs.

ORGANIZATION

(as at August 1977)

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

In operation since September 1975 as the supreme organ of LAFTA, the Council is composed of the Foreign Ministers of all member countries and is responsible for important policy decisions relating to regional integration. It meets in ordinary session once a year and in extraordinary session when convened by the Permanent Executive Committee.

CONFERENCE OF CONTRACTING PARTIES

The Conference of Contracting Parties is composed of delegations from each member country and makes decisions on matters that require a joint resolution of the Contracting Parties. Its functions are to take steps towards the implementation of the Treaty, to approve the annual Budget, to fix contributions, to elect a President and two Vice-Presidents and to appoint the Executive Secretary of the Permanent Executive Committee. It meets in regular session once a year, when trade negotiations are carried out, and in extraordinary session when convened by the Permanent Executive Committee.

PERMANENT EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The Committee, consisting of one representative of each contracting party, is the Permanent body of the Association and is responsible for supervising the implementation of the provisions of the Treaty. Its regular duties are to convene the Council of Ministers and the Conference of Contracting Parties, to represent the Association, to carry out studies, suggest measures and submit recommendations to the Council and Conference, as well as to submit an annual Progress report to them, and to apply for technical assistance and collaboration.

President (1977): CARLOS GARCÍA MARTÍNEZ (Argentina).

SECRETARIAT

The technical and administrative functions of LAFTA are carried out by the Secretariat, which is directed by an Executive Secretary elected by the Conference for a term of three years. The appointment is renewable. The Executive Secretary participates in the work of the Council of Ministers, the Conference and the Committee.

The Secretariat is composed of the Departments of Trade Policy, Industrial Affairs, Economic Affairs, Agricultural Affairs, and Administration, and a number of specialized services.

Executive Secretary (ad interim): DANIEL MESA BERNAL (Colombia).

FUNCTIONS

The Latin American Free Trade Association is an inter-governmental organization, created by the Treaty of Montevideo in February 1960 with the object of increasing trade between the Contracting Parties and of promoting regional integration, thus contributing to the economic and social development of the member countries.

System of Tariff Reductions. The Treaty of Montevideo provides for the gradual establishment of a free trade area, which would form the basis for a Latin American Common Market. Reduction of tariff and other trade barriers is to be carried out gradually up to 1980 by two means, the National Lists and a Common List.

The National Lists form the basis for reductions of tariff and trade barriers between the member countries. Each country presents annually a list of those commodities on which it is prepared to grant reductions and agreement between the members shall be reached by negotiation. Reductions agreed in National Lists come into force on January 1st of the year following agreement.

The Common List includes those products on which complete exemption from all duties and charges shall be granted within the Free Trade Zone. The products on this list shall represent at least 25 per cent of the total trade of the area during the first three years, 50 per cent during the second three-year period, 75 per cent during the third three-year period, and the greater part of the intrazonal trade during the final three-year period.

The Treaty includes provisions for Special Lists for more favourable terms for less developed countries. Bolivia, Ecuador, Paraguay and Uruguay have obtained benefits under this clause.

Subregional Agreements. The Association approves in principle the drawing up of subregional agreements between its members, in accordance with the Declaration of the Presidents of America, signed at Punta del Este in Latin American Free Trade Association

April 1967, as being a means of encouraging the realization of a Latin American Common Market.

In accordance with this policy, the Andean group of countries signed the Cartagena Agreement in May 1969, forming an association which is described in the chapter on pages 109-110.

A River Plate Basin Treaty (Tratado de la Cuenca de la Plata) was signed in Brasilia in April 1969, by Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay, to co-operate in joint development schemes in the area irrigated by the rivers which flow into the Plate estuary.

ACTIVITIES

Trade Liberalization Programme. The annual rounds of negotiations have given rise to 11,175 tariff reductions incorporated in the National Lists. A total of 7,549 preferential tariff reductions in favour of less developed member countries have been included in Special Lists. These concessions cover 55 per cent of trade between countries of the region.

Negotiations for a second Common List were begun in December 1967 and continued July-November 1968, but no agreement was reached. In October 1969, when negotiations for the Common List were resumed, the Contracting Parties adopted a protocol, drawn up in June 1969 by the Permanent Executive Committee, modifying the Treaty of Montevideo. The amendments provide for prolongation of the strict time limits set for the introduction of free trade in the area, and the transition period is to terminate in 1980 instead of in 1973.

Growth of Trade. By 1975 intraregional trade of the eleven countries had increased 760 per cent since the Treaty of Montevideo came into effect in 1961. Intra-regional exports went up from U.S. $488 million in 1961 to $4,059 million in 1975, while intrazonal imports rose from $586 million in 1961 to $4,110 million in 1975. Despite the rise in trade between members, total LAFTA exports rose by 340 per cent and total imports by 500 per cent during the same period. LAFTA countries conduct about 87 per cent of their trade with non-member countries.

Co-operation and Development. A number of industrial agreements have been completed in relation to electronics, chemicals, petro-chemicals, electrical appliances, pharmaceuticals, dyes and pigments, glass, electric generation, office equipment, photographic and phonographic supplies. The Permanent Executive Committee agreed in September 1969 on proposals for a regional policy for industrial development, integration of industry by sector, widening of markets, investment policy, and measures to be taken to assist the less developed countries of the region.

LAFTA has established a System of Payments and Credits to facilitate commercial operations between member countries. This functions by a network of reciprocal credit agreements between central banks, and a procedure of multilateral compensation, which is administered by the Central Reserve Bank of Peru. Operations channelled through this system have increased from $106 million in 1966, the first year of functioning, to over $2,924 million in 1976. LAFTA has also established a credit mechanism, the Santo Domingo Agreement, to cover temporary balance-of-payments deficiencies of LAFTA partners in their regional trade. Ordinary and extraordinary credit lines contributed by all the central banks of the region to this fund now amount to $150 million.

LAFTA has adopted a policy of co-ordination and harmonization of legislation, principally through special intergovernmental agreements, such as the Agreement on Maritime Transport, the Protocol on Transit of Persons, and the Protocol on the Settlement of Disputes. A number of studies have been carried out on matters relating to integration, such as industrial property, harmonization of fiscal laws, customs legislation and the adoption by Contracting Parties of common positions with regard to third parties.

THE MAGHREB PERMANENT CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

(COMITÉ PERMANENT CONSULTATIF DU MAGHREB)

14 Rue Yahia Ibn Omar, Mutuelleville, Tunis, Tunisia

A permanent committee for economic co-ordination, established at Tunis in October 1964 by the Economic Ministers of the member countries. The permanent headquarters were opened in Tunis in February 1966.

MEMBERS

Algeria

Mauritania

Morocco

Tunisia

Libya withdrew from all Maghreb institutions in 1970. Mauritania joined in 1975.

AIMS

The Maghreb Committee is a forum for inter-governmental consultation and the exchange of technical information. Its purpose is to investigate all problems relating to economic co-operation in the member countries.

At the request of the Conference of Ministers of Economy or as part of the programme agreed by the Ministers, it proposes measures designed to reinforce co-operation and to bring into being a Maghreb Economic Community.

ORGANIZATION

(as at October 1977)

CONFERENCE OF MINISTERS OF ECONOMY

The highest authority of the organization. It is attended by Ministers of Economy with their delegations of senior officials.

PERMANENT COMMITTEE

The Committee consists of a President with the rank of Minister, and four delegates who represent the member states. It supervises the commissions and specialized groups, co-ordinating and directing their activities.

PRESIDENT

Each member state in turn appoints the President for a term of two years. He chairs the meetings of the Committee and is responsible for the implementation of projects given to the Committee by the Conference of Ministers of Economy. He also represents the Committee to the governments of the member states and to international organizations.

The Vice-President, who is the delegate from the country of the President, assumes some of his prerogatives in case of his absence.

SECRETARIAT

The Secretary is responsible for staff management, financial affairs of the Committee, and for the administration of the Secretariat. He provides secretarial services for the Conference of Ministers of Economy, the meetings of the Permanent Committee and for meetings of the specialized groups.

Secretary: (interim) MUSTAPHA FILALI (Tunisia).

SPECIALIZED GROUPS

Maghreb Centre for Industrial Studies: Tangier, Morocco; f. 1968.

Maghreb Committee for Tourism: Tunis, Tunisia; f. 1966.

Maghreb Committee for Co-ordination of Posts and Telecommunications: location varies; f. 1964.

Maghreb Commission for Transport and Communications: Tunis, Tunisia; f. 1965; has four subsidiary committees: Maghreb Committee for Air Transport, Rabat, Morocco. Committee for Maghreb Railways, Algiers, Algeria.

Maghreb Committee for Shipping.

Maghreb Committee for Road Transport.

Maghreb Committee for Co-ordination of National Accounts and Statistics: location varies; f. 1973.

Maghreb Committee for Administrative Studies and Research: f. 1970.

Maghreb Committee for Employment and Labour: Rabat, Morocco; f. 1970.

Maghreb Committee on Normalization: Tangier, Morocco; f. 1970.

Maghreb Committee for Insurance and Reinsurance: Rabat, Morocco; f. 1970.

Maghreb Committee for Electric Energy: Algiers, Algeria; f. 1974.

Maghreb Committee for Development of Stockbreeding: Rabat, Morocco; f. 1975.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCES

1. Tunis, September-October 1964; the principal decision was for the formation of the Permanent Committee. Recommendations were made for a system of regional trade preferences. The principle of co-ordinating policies on exports and on industrialization was affirmed.

2. Tangier, November 1964; founding of the organization. Opening of the Centre for Industrial Studies. Recommendations for regional co-ordination in tourism, transport, posts and telecommunications, manpower and development finance.

3. Tripoli, May 1965; Protocol of Agreement requested the Permanent Committee to investigate co-ordination in respect of trade fairs and insurance. The Maghreb Committee of Posts and Telecommunications was formed. Decision to create the Maghreb Alfa Bureau, to co-ordinate marketing of alfalfa grass. The Permanent Committee was asked to investigate possible policies in respect of the steel industry.

4. Algiers, February 1966; decision to set up the Headquarters of the Permanent Committee and the Secretariat at Tunis, for permanent activities of the organization. The Ministers asked the Committee to examine all obstacles to the development of trade between the member countries. Three reports, drawn up by the Permanent Committee, were adopted: on tourism, on statistics and national accounts and on transport and communications.

Maghreb Permanent Consultative Committee

5. Tunis, November 1967; Ministerial Declaration initiating a new method of procedure. The Permanent Committee was asked to draft an intergovernmental agreement covering a transitional period of no longer than five years. The agreement should entail a programme of economic co-operation based mainly on the reduction of trade barriers, harmonization of customs policies towards third countries and an agreed list of industries whose products would benefit from freedom of movement and a common external tariff.

6. Rabat, July 1970; the Ministers agreed to open fresh consultations at every level to re-examine, amend and widen the scope of the agreement. They decided to form new committees and specialized groups under the Permanent Committee: the Maghreb Committee on Normalization, the Maghreb Committee for Employment and Labour, the Maghreb Committee for Insurance and Reinsurance, the Maghreb Central Office of Compensation. Also a number of studies were entrusted to the Permanent Committee, as part of the Maghreb Agreement on Economic Co-operation.

7. Algiers, May 1975; the Ministers authorized the Permanent Committee to collaborate with the national administrations in an analysis of sectors and enterprises in industry, agriculture and small crafts, identifying suitable products for trading between member countries on a preferential basis. The plan is to cover the six-year period 1976-81, and will include projected new industries as well as existing ones.

STATUTES

Signed at Tunis, October 1st, 1964, by the Economic Ministers of the four member states.

Article 1. The Permanent Consultative Committee is an organism in which representatives of the four countries of the Maghreb are brought together. It is composed of a President and eight members, of whom four are titular representatives and four are deputies.

Article 2. The President of the Permanent Consultative Committee must have the rank of Minister. The Presidency is entrusted to each of the member states in turn for the duration of one year.

Article 3. The Presidency may arrange to be assisted by a Vice-President who will be the titular representative of the country which is holding the Presidency.

Article 4. The Government of each of the countries of the Maghreb will appoint a deputy titular member with the rank of Director of Central Administration.

The representatives of each country will be able to command the help of these experts in case of need.

Article 5. The Permanent Consultative Committee is provided with a Permanent Secretariat headed by an Administrative Secretary appointed by the President.

The location of the Secretariat will vary according to the location of the Presidency.

Article 6. The Permanent Consultative Committee will have correspondents in each member state appointed by the government concerned. These correspondents must establish a Central Administration, and preferably some organizations and services with the object of planning economic programmes.

Article 7. Meetings of the Permanent Consultative Committee will be held at least once every three months when called by the President. At the same time as the President calls members of the Committee to meetings, he will present them with a programme embodying the proposals which he has received from the member countries.

Article 8. The proceedings of every session of the Permanent Consultative Committee must be recorded in Minutes drawn up by the President in office. These minutes must receive the unanimous approbation of the members of the Committee.

Article 9. The President will supply each of the members of the Committee with a copy of all documents brought to his attention, as well as any document likely to be of value to the Committee.

Article 10. The President will submit the budget planned to cover the expenses of the Permanent Consultative Committee for the approbation of the Maghreb Council of Economic Ministers.

CO-ORDINATION COMMITTEE

Committee for Co-ordination of Investigations of the Lower Mekong Basin: meets three or more times annually, chairmanship rotating between the four member (riparian) states (1977, Viet-Nam).

The three countries agreed to form an Interim Committee under which water resources development activities would be resumed, and project work in Viet-Nam began shortly afterwards.

The Interim Committee would replace the Co-ordination Committee pending resumption of participation by Cambodia (Kampuchea).

PARTICIPATION OF THE NEW GOVERNMENTS

Long-term planning work covering all four riparian countries continued at the Secretariat as before 1975, but short-term and medium-term project execution was confined to Laos and Thailand. Viet-Nam attended the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) session in April 1977, having announced its readiness to resume participation.

EXECUTIVE AGENT

Responsible for day-to-day management and co-ordination between sessions of the Committee. Assisted by a staff provided by the riparian member countries and the United Nations (ESCAP and UNDP).

Executive Agent: W. J. VAN DER OORD.

MAIN ACTIVITIES

Data Collection

In such fields as hydrology, meteorology, mapping and levelling, agriculture and industry. An indicative development plan for the water resources of the Basin was published in 1972.

Mainstream Projects

Feasibility reports have been completed for the Pa Mong project by the U.S.A. and for the Sambor project by Japan. A project on the Tonle Sap is also being investigated.

Two bridges across the Mekong are planned, at My Thuan in the Viet-Nam delta, and between Laos and Thailand in the area of Vientiane and Nong Khai.

Tributary Projects

Thirteen dams have been built on tributaries of the Mekong, mostly with bilateral help from the donor countries.

The Committee has undertaken three multilateral schemes: these are the two phases of the Nam Ngum project in Laos, the first of which was completed in 1971; and the Prek Thnot project in Cambodia, on which work remained suspended since 1975. The second phase of the Nam Ngum project, to provide 80 MW of hydro-electric power, is scheduled for completion in 1978.

The total hydro-electric generating capacity of the dams in 1977 was approximately 150 megawatts, and irrigation was provided for a total of nearly 300,000 hectares.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Agricultural Projects

Pre-investment preparation for 10 pioneer agricultural projects has been completed for the committee by the World Bank, FAO and the Asian Development Bank, with multilateral financial support.

Three pioneer projects and part of another have been started; the total current financial commitment for these is $23 million.

The Committee also sponsors eight experimental and demonstration farms in the basin.

Mekong River Development Project

Navigation Improvement

Hydrographic surveys, rock-blasting, channel marking and dredging, improvement in cargo-handling facilities and craft construction.

Other Projects

Experimental farms, mineral surveys, fisheries and forestry, power market surveys, economic studies and professional training.

ORGANIZATION

(as at October 1977)

COUNCIL

Consists of 78 delegates elected annually from the Parliament of each country (18 each from Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden, and 6 from Iceland) and of non-voting government representatives. Representation of political parties in each delegation reflects the composition of its national parliament.

Recommendations adopted at the annual sessions are sent to the Nordic Council of Ministers.

Twenty-fifth session, Helsinki, March-April 1977.

PRESIDIUM

Takes charge of the Council's work between sessions. Elected by the Council each year at its plenary assembly, and consists of five members. The President is a member, normally the chairman, of the delegation of the host country.

President: V. J. SUKSELAINEN (Finland).

Vice-Presidents:

JON SKAFFASON (Iceland).
POUL HARTLING (Denmark).
TRYGGVE BRATTELI (Norway).
OLOF PALME (Sweden).

STANDING COMMITTEES

The Council members are distributed on five standing committees which meet during and between the Council sessions, and also hold discussions with the Nordic Council of Ministers.

The chairmen are as follows:

Economic Committee: KJELL-OLOF FELDT (Sweden).
Cultural Committee: GYLFI GISLASON (Iceland).
Legal Committee: CHRISTIAN ALBERTSEN (Denmark).
Social and Environment Committee: ASBJØRN HAUGSVEDT (Norway).
Communications Committee: (to be announced).

SPECIAL COMMITTEES

Information Committee, Budget Committee.

SECRETARIATS

Each delegation to the Nordic Council has a secretariat at its national parliament.

The Presidium has a secretariat in Stockholm, to which the secretaries of the five standing committees are attached.

Presidium Secretariat: Fack, S-10310 Stockholm 2; Sec. GUDMUND SAXRUD.

SECRETARIATS OF DELEGATIONS

Denmark: Christiansborg Ridebane 10, DK-1218 Copenhagen K; Sec.-Gen. AXEL GORMSEN.

Finland: Eduskuntatalo, SF-00102 Helsinki 10; Sec.-Gen. HÅKAN BRANDERS.

Iceland: Altinget, Reykjavík; Sec.-Gen. FRÍÐJON SIGURDSSON.

Norway: Stortinget, N-Oslo 1; Sec.-Gen. GUDVIN LÅDER VÆ.

Sweden: Fack, S-103 10 Stockholm 2; Sec.-Gen. CHRISTER JACOBSEN.

NORDIC COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

Established 1971; holds both formal and informal meetings; attended by ministers with responsibility for the subject under discussion. Each member state also appoints a minister to its own cabinet as a Minister for Nordic Co-operation.

Formal decisions must be taken unanimously, and are binding on the member governments, except in certain cases where ratification in the parliaments is required.

Meetings are concerned with: agreements and treaties, guidelines for national legislation, recommendations from the Nordic Council, financing joint studies, setting up Nordic institutions.

The Council of Ministers reports each year to the Nordic Council on progress in all co-operation between member states as well as on future plans

SECRETARIATS OF THE COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

NORDIC CO-OPERATION

ECONOMIC

Nordic Investment Bank: founded under an agreement of December 1975 to provide loans and guarantees for investment projects of common interest to Nordic countries; inaugural meeting of management committee, June 1976, Helsinki; initial capital 400 million Special Drawing Rights of the IMF; the shares of the member countries are: Sweden 45 per cent; Denmark 22 per cent; Norway and Finland 16 per cent each; Iceland one per cent.

The initial activities of the Bank are expected to be in the following sectors: energy supply, data processing, transport, food, textiles and services. A loan of 75 million Finnish marks was made in 1977 for power transmission between Sweden and Finland.

Chair. HERMOD SKANLAND (Norway); Man. Dir. BERT LINDSTROM (Sweden).

Nordic Industrial Fund: f. 1973 with a capital of 10 million Swedish kronor, to be increased in stages to 50 million. Makes grants and loans for industrial research and development projects of interest to more than one member country.

NORDTEST: f. 1973 as an inter-Nordic agency for technical testing and standardization; collaborates with the Nordic Committee on Building Regulations.

NORDEL: f. 1963; common authority for electricity supply.

Energy: a common energy policy is under discussion; a special study was made in 1974. There is a special committee for atomic energy.

Foreign aid: the national administrations for overseas development have carried out several projects as a group, and consult with one another frequently.

Regional policy: in May 1973 a draft convention on co-operation between local authorities across frontiers was opened for signature. A special regional fund for the Nordkalotten area is planned. Nordrefo is an institute for regional policy research.

Nordic Statistical Secretariat: Copenhagen.

Trade: Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden are

Joint expenses are divided according to an agreed scale in proportion to the relative national product of the member countries. The following budgets were in force for 1977:

Council of Ministers: 26.1 million Norwegian kroner.

Cultural budget: 52.0 million Danish kroner.

Nordic Industrial Fund: 10.0 million Swedish kronor.

A budget of 23.0 million Norwegian kroner was allocated for Nordic development assistance projects in 1976.

Various other forms of co-operation are financed directly from the national budgets.

PUBLICATIONS

members of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA), which encourages further economic co-operation.

The same countries each have separate treaties with the European Economic Community, providing free trade; Denmark alone is a full member.

CULTURAL

Nordic Cultural Treaty: entered into force 1972; education, research and other cultural activities are systematically encouraged by common planning. Long term guidelines were worked out in 1974.

Education: the countries aim to harmonize the educational systems of the region. The emphasis has been on the comprehensive school system but the priorities now are adult education, vocational education and the education of 18 and 19 year-olds. The Council has approved various programmes in these respects.

Research: priority is given to improving contacts between research institutions through exchange of scientists; conferences and symposia; exchange of scientific information and documentation. There has also been some research on the conservation of Nordic languages and on the mass media.

Cultural activities: In 1976 a working group produced a television programme on satellite broadcasting. Translation of literature from the neighbour countries; youth co-operation; support to exchange projects and contests in music and visual arts; joint activities and training in theatre and film; children and culture, sport and co-operation.

The Nordic Council Literature Prize has been awarded each year since 1961 and the Nordic Council Music Prize since 1965.

LEGAL

The five countries have similar legal systems and tend towards uniformity in legislation and interpretation of law. Much of the preparatory committee work within the national administrations on new legislation is carried out through consultation with the neighbour countries.

Citizens of one Nordic country working in another are in many respects given the status of nationals. In some Nordic countries they already have the right to vote in local elections in the country of residence. The changing of citizenship from one Nordic country to another has been simplified.

There are special extradition facilities between the countries and further stages towards co-operation between the police and the courts have been recommended.

There is a permanent Council for Criminology, a Nordic Institute for Maritime Law in Oslo and a permanent committee for Penalty Law.

SOCIAL WELFARE AND HEALTH

Under the Convention on Social Security, 1955, Nordic citizens have the same rights, benefits and obligations in each Nordic country. A review of the Convention is being made. In 1974 a new agreement was made on arrangements for sickness, pregnancy and childbirth when temporarily in another Nordic country. A further review was to be made concerning old age pensions.

Since 1954 a free labour market has been in force between four of the member countries. Up to 1977 nearly one million people have moved across the frontiers in Scandinavia. In Iceland, work permits are required but generally given to Nordic citizens.

Special agreements have been concluded for doctors, dentists, nurses and pharmacists on the standards of competence required for obtaining work in other Nordic countries.

Nordic School for Public Health, Gothenburg;
Joint centre for labour market training, Övertorneå.

ENVIRONMENT

The Nordic Convention on the protection of the environment was signed in 1974, entering into force in October 1976. The member states undertake to harmonize regulations for protecting the environment, and to carry out certain measures affecting neighbouring countries.

The coastal states have also signed a Convention on the Marine Environment of the Baltic and a special agreement has been concluded between Denmark and Sweden on pollution in the Öresund.

NORDFORSK (Scandinavian Council for Applied Research) has a special secretariat for environmental research in Helsinki.

COMMUNICATIONS AND TRANSPORT

A Nordic agreement for transport and communications entered into force in 1973. Earlier agreements cover co-operation in post and telecommunications. Passports are not required for travel within the Nordic region.

Nordkolt: a project on future systems of transport in densely populated areas.

Stina: a project on traffic volume and surface wear of roads.

Institutions:

Advisory joint body for road safety;
Committee for road safety research;
Committee for road traffic legislation;
Committee for research on the economics of transport;

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANIZATION— NATO

1110 Brussels, Belgium

Founded in 1949 as an international collective defence organization linking a group of European states with the U.S.A. and Canada. France withdrew from the military side of NATO in 1966 although remaining a member of the Atlantic Alliance; following the Turkish invasion of Cyprus in 1974, Greece also announced a partial withdrawal from the integrated military structure of NATO.

MEMBERS

Belgium	Federal Republic of Germany	Luxembourg	Turkey
Canada	Greece	Netherlands	United Kingdom
Denmark	Iceland	Norway	U.S.A.
France	Italy	Portugal

ORGANIZATION

(as at October 1977)

NORTH ATLANTIC COUNCIL

The highest authority of the alliance, composed of representatives of the fifteen member states. It meets at the level of Ministers or Permanent Representatives. Ministerial meetings, attended by Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Defence, Finance or Economic Affairs, are held at least twice a year. At the level of Permanent Representatives it meets at least once a week.

The Secretary-General of NATO is chairman of the Council. Annually, the Foreign Minister of a member state is nominated honorary President, following the English alphabetical order of countries.

The Council also gives political guidance to the military authorities.

Decisions are taken by common consent and not by majority vote. The Council is a forum for wide consultation between member governments on major issues, including political, military, economic and other subjects.

FINANCE

As NATO is an international, not a supra-national organization, its member countries decide themselves the amount to be devoted to their defence effort and the form which the latter will assume. Thus, the aim of NATO's defence planning is to develop realistic military plans for the defence of the alliance at reasonable cost.

Under the annual Defence Planning Review, the political, military and economic factors are considered in relation to strategy, force requirements and available resources. The procedure for the co-ordination of military plans and defence expenditures rests on the detailed and comparative analysis of the capabilities of member countries.

ORGANISATION COMMUNE AFRICAINE ET MAURICIENNE—OCAM

B.P. 965, Bangui, Central African Empire

Founded February 1965 in succession to the Union africaine et malgache de coopération économique (UAMCE), to accelerate the economic, social, technical and cultural development of member states within the framework of the OAU.

MEMBERS

Benin	Niger	Seychelles
Central African Empire	Rwanda	Togo
Ivory Coast	Senegal	Upper Volta
Mauritius

Gabon withdrew from OCAM with effect from September 1977.

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE OF HEADS OF STATE AND OF GOVERNMENT

The supreme authority of OCAM; the latest session took place in Kigali, Rwanda, in February 1977. The Conference is to take place every two years.

Chairman (1974-77): Maj.-Gen. JUVÉNAL HABYALIMANA (Rwanda).

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

Composed of Foreign Ministers of member states. Meets once a year in ordinary session. Responsible for implementing certain decisions concerning technical co-operation between OCAM countries and for the supervision of the Secretariat-General as directed by the Conference of Heads of State.

SECRETARIAT-GENERAL

Responsible for the administration of OCAM. The Secretary-General is appointed by the Conference of Heads of State, upon the proposal of the Council of Ministers, for a renewable term of two years. His function is to implement the decisions taken by the Conference of Heads of State and the Council of Ministers.

Secretary-General: Dr. SYDNEY MOUTIA (Mauritius).

Directeur de Cabinet, Conseiller Juridique: EMMANUEL SALAMBERE (Upper Volta).

Département des affaires économiques, financières et des transports: Dir. KOUANVI TIGOUÉ (Togo).

Département des affaires culturelles et sociales: Dir. (vacant).

AIMS

The objectives proposed in 1965 included customs reform, possibly leading to the establishment of an African Common Market, and common economic policies covering investment, insurance of trade and restrictions on double taxation. A stabilization fund was projected, to support commodity prices.

Since the 1974 summit at Bangui, the aims of the organization have been expressed in a new form. Instead of an all-African Common Market, the aim is more practicably to bring the economic communities of Africa within a single confederation. A solidarity and guarantee fund has been established to encourage credit from overseas and give assistance to the poorest member countries.

It was decided to leave political matters to other bodies and concentrate on strengthening African co-operation in economic, technical, cultural and social development.

ORGANISATION FOR ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION AND DEVELOPMENT—OECD

2 rue André-Pascal, 75775 Paris, Cedex 16, France

Founded September 1961; replaced the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC), established in 1948.

MEMBERS

Australia	France	Japan	Spain
Austria	Federal Republic of Germany	Luxembourg	Sweden
Belgium	Greece	Netherlands	Switzerland
Canada	Iceland	New Zealand	Turkey
Denmark	Ireland	Norway	United Kingdom
Finland	Italy	Portugal	U.S.A.

Yugoslavia and the EEC Commission participate in the work of the OECD with a special status.

AIMS

To promote economic and social welfare throughout the OECD area by assisting member governments in the formulation of policies designed to this end and by co-ordinating these policies; and to stimulate and harmonize its members' aid efforts in favour of developing countries.

ORGANIZATION

(as of October 1977)

COUNCIL

The governing body of the OECD is the Council on which each member country is represented. The Council meets regularly at official level (heads of national delegations with rank of ambassador) and from time to time (usually once a year) at ministerial level. The Council is responsible for all questions of general policy and may establish subsidiary bodies as required to achieve the aims of the Organisation. Decisions and recommendations of the Council are adopted by mutual agreement of all its members.

Chairman of Council at Ministerial level: elected annually.

Chairman of Council at Official level: The Secretary-General.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Each year the Council designates 14 of its members to form the Executive Committee which prepares the work of the Council. It is also called upon to carry out specific tasks where necessary. Apart from its regular meetings, the Committee meets occasionally in special sessions attended by high government officials.

Chairman: TSUYOSHI HIRAHARA (Japan).

AUXILIARY BODIES

The greater part of the work of the OECD is prepared and carried out in its specialized committees and working parties, which number more than a hundred. The main committees are:

Ad-hoc High-Level Group on Economic Relations between Member Countries and Developing Countries
 Economic Policy Committee
 Economic and Development Review Committee
 Environment Committee
 Development Assistance Committee
 Technical Co-operation Committee
 Trade Committee
 Payments Committee
 Committee for Invisible Transactions
 Committee on International Investment and Multinational Enterprises
 Committee on Financial Markets

Committee on Fiscal Affairs Committee on Restrictive Business Practices
 Tourism Committee
 Maritime Transport Committee
 Consumer Policies Committee
 Committee on Agriculture
 Fisheries Committee
 Committee for Scientific and Technological Policy Education Committee
 Industry Committee
 Committee for Energy Policy
 Manpower and Social Affairs Committee
 Steering Committee of the Programme of Co-operation in the Field of Road Research Steering Committee of the Programme on Educational Building
 High-Level Group on Commodities

AUTONOMOUS AND SEMI-AUTONOMOUS BODIES

The Nuclear Energy Agency (NEA) (see p. 263).

The International Energy Agency (see p. 263).

Interfutures (Research Project on Future Development of Advanced Industrial Societies in Harmony with that of Developing Countries): established in 1976 to help governments of industrialized countries to prepare their long-term policies in the context of international relations.

Director: JACQUES LESOURNE (France).

The Development Centre was set up in 1962. Its purpose is to bring together the knowledge and experience available in member countries of both economic development and the formulation and execution of general policies of economic aid; to adopt such knowledge and experience to the actual needs of countries in the process of development and to put the results at the disposal of these countries by appropriate means. Members: all members of the OECD except New Zealand.

President: (vacant).

Centre of Educational Research and Innovation (CERI): set up in 1968 to facilitate the introduction of reforms in the educational systems of member countries. Members: all members of the OECD and Yugoslavia.

Director: J. R. GASS (United Kingdom).

SECRETARIAT

The Council, the committees and other bodies in the Organization are assisted by an international secretariat headed by the Secretary-General.

Secretary-General: EMILE VAN LENNEP (Netherlands).

Deputy Secretaries-General: CHARLES G. WOOTTON (U.S.A.), GÉRARD ÉLDIN (France).

Special Counsellor to the Secretary-General on Energy Matters: Dr. ULF LANTZKE (Federal Republic of Germany).

Economic Advisor to the Secretary-General: STEPHEN MARRIS (United Kingdom).

Special Counsellor to the Secretary-General on Development Questions: ENRICO MACCHIA (Italy).

PUBLICATIONS

The OECD Economic Outlook (twice-yearly).
Economic Surveys by the OECD (annually for each country).
Development Assistance Efforts and Policies (annually).
Foreign Trade Statistics Bulletin (monthly).
Main Economic Indicators (monthly).
OECD Convention and Report of Preparatory Committee.
OECD at a Glance.

News from OECD (monthly).
The OECD Observer (every two months).

Numerous specialized reports, books and statistics on economic and social subjects are also published. Besides the services of local sales agents, there are two Publications Centres, in Tokyo, Japan, and in Washington, D.C., U.S.A.

INTERNATIONAL ENERGY AGENCY

2 rue Andre Pascal, 75775 Paris, Cedex 16, France

Set up by the Council of the OECD in November 1974 to develop co-operation on energy questions among participating countries.

MEMBERS

Austria	Italy	Sweden
Belgium	Japan	Switzerland
Canada	Luxembourg	Turkey
Denmark	Netherlands	United Kingdom
Federal Republic of Germany	New Zealand	U.S.A.
Greece	Norway
Ireland	Spain

The EEC Commission is represented.

FUNCTIONS

The Agreement on an International Energy Programme was signed in November 1974 and formally entered into force in January 1976. The Programme commits the participating countries of the International Energy Agency to share oil in emergencies, to strengthen their long-term co-operation in order to reduce dependence on oil imports, to increase the availability of information on the oil market and to develop relations with the oil-producing and other oil-consuming countries.

The emergency oil-sharing plan has been established and the IEA ensures that the necessary technical information and facilities are in place so that it can be readily used in the event of a reduction in oil supplies.

The IEA Long-Term Co-operation Programme is designed to strengthen the security of energy supplies and promote stability in world energy markets. It provides for co-operative efforts to conserve energy, to accelerate the development of alternative energy sources by means of both specific and general measures, to step up research and development of new energy technologies and to remove legislative and administrative obstacles to increased energy supplies. Regular reviews of member countries' efforts in the fields of energy conservation and accelerated development of alternative energy sources assess the effectiveness of national programmes in relation to the objectives of the Agency.

The Agency has developed an extensive system of information and consultation on the oil market with a view to obtaining a better idea of probable future developments in the oil market. Another function of the Agency is to develop a long-term co-operative relationship among oil producing and consuming countries. It had observer status on the Energy Commission of the Conference on International Economic Co-operation, providing energy statistics and other technical information to the Commission.

GOVERNING BOARD

Composed of ministers or senior officials of the member governments. Decisions may be taken by a weighted majority on a number of specified subjects, which include aspects of stockpiling, oil-sharing contingency plans and relations with the oil companies; a simple weighted majority is required for procedural decisions and decisions implementing specific obligations in the agreement. Unanimity is required only if new obligations, not already specified in the agreement, are to be undertaken.

The Governing Board is assisted by four standing groups, on:

- Energy questions;
- Long-term co-operation;
- Oil market;
- Relations with producer and other consumer countries.

SECRETARIAT

Chairman: D. K. ROHWEDDER (Federal Republic of Germany).

Executive Director: Dr. ULF LANTZKE (Federal Republic of Germany).

Deputy Executive Director: J. WALLACE HOPKINS (U.S.A.)

OECD NUCLEAR ENERGY AGENCY—NEA

38 Boulevard Suchet, Paris 16e, France

Tel.: 524-8200.

Set up in February 1958, its functions are confined to the peaceful uses of nuclear energy. Originally a European agency, the Nuclear Energy Agency has since admitted four of the five OECD members outside Europe. See also International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), p. 79; EURATOM, p. 178; CERN, p. 100; Joint Institute for Nuclear Research, p. 241; Inter-American Nuclear Energy Commission (IANEC), p. 274.

MEMBERS

All members of OECD except New Zealand

FUNCTIONS

The main purpose of the Agency is to promote international co-operation within the OECD area for the development and application of nuclear power for peaceful purposes through international research and development projects and exchange of scientific and technical experience and information. The Agency also maintains a continual survey with the co-operation of other organizations, notably the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), of world uranium resources, production and demand, and of economic and technical aspects of the nuclear fuel cycle.

An expanding part of the Agency's work is devoted to safety and regulatory aspects of nuclear energy, including the development of uniform standards governing safety and health protection, and a uniform legislative regime for nuclear liability and insurance.

ORGANIZATION

(as at August 1977)

STEERING COMMITTEE FOR NUCLEAR ENERGY

Chairman: BO ALER (Sweden).

Vice-Chairmen: O. J. C. RUNNALLS (Canada); B. GOLDSCHMIDT (France).

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: IAN G. K. WILLIAMS (United Kingdom).

Deputy Director-General: WILLIAM H. HANNUM (U.S.A.).

OTHER MAIN COMMITTEES

Study Group on the Long-Term Role of Nuclear Energy;
Committee on the Safety of Nuclear Installations;
Committee on Radiation Protection and Public Health;
Radioactive Waste Management Committee;
Group of Governmental Experts on Third Party Liability in the Field of Nuclear Energy;

Co-ordinating Group on Gas-Cooled Fast Reactor Development;

Study Group on Isotopic Batteries;

Working Group on Nuclear Energy Information;

NEA Nuclear Data Committee (NEANDC);

NEA Committee on Reactor Physics (NEACRP).

JOINT PROJECTS

Eurochemic (European Company for Chemical Processing of Irradiated Fuels): Mol, Belgium; international company f. 1959 to build and operate an experimental plant for reprocessing used uranium fuels from nuclear reactors. Since 1966 it has treated well over 200 tons of irradiated fuels from more than 30 reactors.

With the coming into service of large commercial reprocessing plants, the Company has now ceased operation and a waste management programme has been developed for the solidification, conditioning and storage of medium and high level wastes produced during operation.

Present shareholders in Eurochemic are governments, public authorities and industrial bodies in 12 European countries. Chair. of Board Dr. W. SCHMIDT-KÜSTER (Federal Republic of Germany); Man. Dir. Dr. E. DETILLEUX (Belgium).

Halden Project: Halden, Norway; experimental boiling heavy water reactor, which became an OECD project in 1958. From 1964, under successive agreements with participating countries, the reactor has been used for long-term testing of water reactor fuels and for research into automatic computer-based control of nuclear power stations. Nuclear energy research institutions and authorities in ten countries are supporting the project, which has been extended until December 1978. Chair. R. NILSON (Sweden); Project Man. T. VIK (Norway).

International Project on Food Irradiation: Karlsruhe, Federal Republic of Germany; began in 1971; the project runs a joint programme of wholesomeness testing with laboratory animals of a range of irradiated food items and conducts systematic reviews of all available data from national institutes. The scheme is jointly sponsored by three international agencies—NEA, IAEA and FAO, and 23 countries are participating; Chair. P. BALLIGAND (France); Project Leader P. S. ELIAS (Federal Republic of Germany).

COMMON SERVICES

NEA Computer Programme Library: in the EURATOM Joint Research Establishment at Ispra, Italy. The Library and the Neutron Data Compilation Centre (see below) are linked with the equivalent services in the U.S.A. and, through the IAEA, with services in the rest of the world.

Neutron Data Compilation Centre: in the Centre d'Etudes Nucléaires at Saclay, France.

PUBLICATIONS

Annual activity reports of NEA and joint projects, specialized series publications (e.g., Nuclear Law Bulletin, reports on uranium resources, production and demand, and proceedings of Agency-sponsored conferences and symposia).

PRINCIPAL EVENTS

- 1963
- May Conference of Independent African States at Addis Ababa agreed to set up OAU. Co-ordinating Committee for Liberation Movements set up in Addis Ababa.
- Aug. First meeting of Council of Ministers, Dakar. Recognition of the Angolan government-in-exile of Roberto Holden.
- Dec. Meeting of the OAU ad hoc Commission in Abidjan. Idrissa Diarra (Mali) appointed President.
- 1964
- July First meeting of Assembly of Heads of State, Cairo. Permanent Secretariat and Headquarters established at Addis Ababa; Diallo Telli to be Secretary-General. Decision to incorporate the Commission for Technical Co-operation in Africa (CCTA) as an organ of OAU (see above).
- Sept. Third extraordinary meeting of Council of Ministers, Addis Ababa, to discuss the Congolese situation. Nine-nation committee set up under Jomo Kenyatta to assist reconciliation in the area.
- 1968
- Sept. Fifth Assembly of Heads of State, Algiers. Twenty-two Heads of State attended. Resolution passed supporting Nigerian Federal Government's efforts to reunify the country.
- Dec. Conference of African nationalist organizations called by the OAU Liberation Committee was held at Morogoro, Tanzania.
- 1970
- Feb.- 14th Session of Council of Ministers passed resolution on decolonization which included an appeal to all nations not to collaborate on the Cabora Bassa dam project.
- March
- Sept. Seventh Assembly of Heads of State. Resolution demanding the withdrawal of Israeli forces from territories occupied in the June 1967 war.
- Nov. OAU Middle East Peace Mission visits Egypt and Israel.
- 1973
- Jan. Liberation Committee issued the Accra Declaration on African Liberation stating that decolonization could be achieved only through armed struggle.
- May Tenth Assembly of Heads of State, on tenth anniversary of OAU, Addis Ababa. Approval of African Declaration on Co-operation, Development and Economic Independence. Attempts to mediate in disputes between Somalia and Ethiopia and between Tanzania and Uganda.
- 1974
- Jan. OAU meeting with OAPEC on oil supplies and the future formation of the Arab Bank for the Economic Development of Africa.
- June Loan of $200 million for oil purchases accepted from Arab countries, to be placed in the African Development Bank.
- 1975
- Jan. Liberation Committee issued the Dar-es-Salaam Declaration supporting the attempts of Botswana, Mozambique, Tanzania and Zambia, together with the reorganized ANC, to seek a negotiated settlement with the Rhodesian government.
- July Twelfth Assembly of Heads of State, preceded by 25th Session of Council of Ministers, Kampala. Mediation Commission to be sent to Angola. A proposal to call for the expulsion of Israel from the UN was rejected in favour of increased diplomatic pressure. Endorsement of the Dar-es-Salaam Declaration on Southern Africa.
- Oct. Mediation Commission visited Angola and published a report calling for Portuguese help in the formation of a government of national unity composed of the three rival liberation movements.
- 1976
- Jan. Emergency Conference of Heads of State, Addis Ababa, to discuss the situation in Angola. Support was divided evenly between recognition of the MPLA Government in Luanda and an appeal for a government of national unity. 26th Session of the Liberation Committee, Maputo (Lourenço Marques). Debate on the future of the French Territory of the Afars and the Issas (TFAI); decision to send a fact-finding commission to the territory. Patriotic Front in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) as opposed to the other leaders of the formerly unified ANC.
- Feb. 28th session of Council of Ministers, Lomé, Togo, concentrating mainly on Southern Africa and the invasion of Benin in January. The Conference called for a general mobilization of African countries for the liberation of the south, but did not endorse the Liberation Committee's support for the Patriotic Front as the sole party in Zimbabwe to be supported by the OAU. Morocco, protesting at the presence of a representative of the Algerian-backed Saharan Arab Democratic Republic, announced that it would suspend all participation in the work of the OAU.
- March Summit conference of member states of Arab

Organization of African Unity

- League and OAU held in Cairo, Egypt. Decision on increased aid to African states.
- July Fourteenth Assembly of Heads of State, Libreville, Gabon. Assembly gave its recognition to the Secretary-General: ALEJANDRO ORRILA (Argentina).

Assistant Secretary-General: JORGE LUIS ZELAYA CORONADO (Guatemala).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Meets annually and can also hold special sessions when convoked by the Permanent Council. Supreme organ of the OAS, it decides general action and policy.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

MEETINGS OF CONSULTATION OF MINISTERS OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Held to consider problems of an urgent nature and of common interest to member states. May be held at the request of any member state.

PERMANENT COUNCIL

Composed of one representative of each member state with the rank of ambassador; each government may accredit alternate representatives and advisers and when necessary appoint an interim representative. The office of Chairman is held in turn by each of the representatives, following alphabetical order according to the names of the countries in Spanish. The Vice-Chairman is determined in the same way, following reverse alphabetical order. Their terms of office are three months.

The Council acts as an Organ of Consultation and oversees the maintenance of friendly relations between members. The Council supervises the work of OAS and promotes co-operation with a variety of other international bodies including the United Nations. It is responsible to the General Assembly.

INTER-AMERICAN COUNCIL FOR EDUCATION, SCIENCE AND CULTURE

Composed in the same manner as the Inter-American Economic and Social Council. Both are responsible to the General Assembly.

Organization of American States

INTER-AMERICAN COMMISSION ON HUMAN RIGHTS

Composed of seven members elected for four years. Holds two regular meetings each year and may hold special meetings.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

The central and permanent organ of the Organization, carries out the duties entrusted to it by the General Assembly; Meeting of Consultation of Ministers of Foreign Affairs; or the Councils.

SPECIALIZED CONFERENCES

Meet to deal with technical matters and Inter-American co-operation.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

- 1960 Committee established to co-ordinate the activities of OAS, the Inter-American Development Bank and the Economic Commission for Latin America (ECLA).
(cont).
- 1961 Special meeting of the Inter-American Economic and Social Council at Punta del Este, Uruguay, at which the Alliance for Progress was established. Nicaraguan/Honduras border dispute settled.
- 1962 Cuba suspended from OAS at meeting of Foreign Ministers.
OAS Council supported the U.S.A. to bring about removal of missile bases in Cuba.
- 1963 Special Investigating Committee sent to Hispaniola to report on Haiti/Dominican Republic crisis.
- 1964 Mediation in dispute between U.S.A. and Panama. OAS Council voted for sanctions against Cuba by 15 votes to 4 (Bolivia, Chile, Mexico and Uruguay).
- 1965 Tenth Meeting of Consultation to consider the Dominican crisis. An Inter-American Peace Force created.
- 1966 Withdrawal of Inter-American Peace Force from Dominican Republic.
- 1967 Treaty for the establishment of a Latin American nuclear-free zone signed in Mexico City.
Summit Conference held at Punta del Este in April. Declaration signed on the necessity for social and economic progress in Latin American countries; plan to create a Latin American Common Market based on existing integration systems LAFTA and CACM.
- 1969 El Salvador and Honduras called on OAS to investigate alleged violation of human rights of Salvadorians in Honduras. Seven-man committee sent to investigate after fighting broke out. Observers from OAS member nations supervised cease-fire and exchange of prisoners. A small observer force stationed permanently.
- 1970 Entry into force of the Protocol of Buenos Aires, establishing the General Assembly as the highest body, replacing the Inter-American Conferences, and the three Councils as its main organs. The General Assembly held two special sessions to establish the new system and to discuss other current problems, in particular kidnapping and extortion.
- 1971 First regular Session of the General Assembly of OAS at San José, Costa Rica, in April.

Organization of American States

- 1972 First specialized Conference on the Application of Science and Technology to the Development of Latin America at Brasília, Brazil, in May.
- 1973 The General Assembly set up a Special Committee to study the Inter-American Treaty on Reciprocal Assistance of 1947 and to propose measures for restructuring it.
- 1974 Fourth General Assembly in April. The objectives of the Special Committee on the Inter-American Treaty were defined more specifically to promote co-operation for development and collective economic security. Resolutions were adopted calling for studies on international enterprises, on energy problems and on food production.
- 1975 Fifth General Assembly in May; Alejandro Orfila elected Secretary-General.
Sixteenth Meeting of Consultation in San José, Costa Rica, agreed that signatory states of the Rio Treaty should be free to normalize relations with Cuba.
Protocol of Amendment to the Rio Treaty signed at conference of Plenipotentiaries, San José, Costa Rica.
- 1976 Sixth General Assembly; chief resolutions concerned human rights, the U.S. Trade Act of 1974 and transnational enterprises. It also resolved to hold a Special Assembly to review matters concerning inter-American co-operation for development. The Assembly proclaimed a Decade of Women 1976-85: Equality, Development and Peace. Honduras and El Salvador signed the Act of Managua to end a series of border incidents between them.
- 1977 The Seventh General Assembly was held in Grenada, a new member state. The delegations devoted attention to the question of human rights, adopting four resolutions on the subject and a strong resolution condemning terrorist activities in the hemisphere and in the world. The financial problems of many of the countries, caused by the energy crisis and their less-than-satisfactory positions in international trade, was a matter of continuing concern. 1978 was declared Inter-American Rural Youth Year. Surinam became the twenty-sixth OAS member state in 1977.

INTER-AMERICAN ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL—IA-ECOSOCGeneral Secretariat, Washington, D.C. 20006, U.S.A.

INTER-AMERICAN JURIDICAL COMMITTEE

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil

Founded 1948 as the Inter-American Council of Jurists, an organ of the Council of the Organization of American States.

MEMBERS

All members of OAS.

ORGANIZATION

Replaces the Inter-American Council of Jurists under the amendments to the Charter ratified in 1970. Composed of eleven jurists, nationals of different member states, elected for a period of four years with the possibility of re-election once. Equitable geographical distribution is sought as far as possible, and a proportion of members are replaced each year. Meetings are held at least annually for a period of up to three months. Special meetings can also be called.

Chairman: (vacant).

SECRETARIAT

The General Secretariat provides full services for the Committee.

FUNCTIONS

To serve as an advisory body to the Organization on juridical matters; to promote the progressive development and codification of international law, and to study juridical problems related to the integration of the developing countries in the hemisphere, and in so far as may appear desirable the possibility of attaining uniformity in legislation.

INTER-AMERICAN COUNCIL FOR EDUCATION, SCIENCE AND CULTURE

General Secretariat, Washington, D.C. 20006, U.S.A.

Established in 1970 as an organ of the Council of the Organization of American States

MEMBERS

All members of OAS.

ORGANIZATION COUNCIL

Composed of one representative of the highest rank from each member state, appointed by their respective governments. The Secretary-General of OAS and the Executive Secretary of the Council participate without voting rights. The Council meets once a year with special meetings when necessary.

Secretariat: The General Secretariat of OAS acts as the Secretariat of the Inter-American Council for Education, Science and Culture. The Executive Secretary is appointed by the Secretary-General of the OAS.

Executive Secretary: EDUARDO GONZALEZ REYES.

ACTIVITIES

The principal purpose of the Inter-American Council for Education, Science, and Culture is to promote friendly relations and mutual understanding between the peoples of the Americas through educational, scientific and cultural co-operation and exchange between member states, in order to raise the cultural level of the peoples.

The Council has a permanent executive committee and three committees in charge of carrying out regional development programmes in the fields of education, science and technology, and culture.

INTER-AMERICAN NUCLEAR ENERGY COMMISSION— IANEC

Organization of American States, Washington, D.C. 20006, U.S.A.

IANEC was established in 1959 as a Technical Commission of the Organization of American States. It makes recommendations to member governments and to OAS.

MEMBERS

All members of OAS.

ORGANIZATION

COMMISSION

The Commission is made up of one delegate from each of the member states, and the Secretary-General of OAS (who may speak but not vote). Regular meetings are held every two years.

The Chairman and Vice-Chairman are elected by and from the members and hold office until the next regular meeting.

COMMITTEES

The Commission may set up such working committees as it considers necessary. The committees elect their own Chairman and Rapporteur from among their members. Currently there are two standing committees: the Technical Advisory Committee and the Juridical Committee.

SECRETARIAT

Executive-Secretary: (vacant).

The Secretary-General of OAS appoints all IANEC Secretariat staff, who form a part of OAS.

ACTIVITIES

IANEC advises and assists member states in developing and co-ordinating research and training in nuclear energy. In addition to providing direct aid to Latin American institutions for work in development and research, IANEC also sends professors and researchers, finances the development of courses and defrays the expenses of Fellows in the training centres. It also distributes information and recommends public health measures.

Since 1959 the Commission has undertaken a survey of facilities available in Latin American universities and has established an Advisory Committee to make recommendations on scientific and engineering training. In 1963 studies were undertaken on nuclear power in Latin America and on Civil Liability in the field of nuclear energy.

In December 1960 an agreement for co-operation was signed between IANEC and the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna and in 1963 a memorandum was exchanged between the secretariats of IANEC and EURATOM establishing co-operation. Several meetings, workshops and symposia have been co-sponsored by IANEC and IAEA.

Since 1968 IANEC has organized periodic Latin American Conferences on radiochemistry, agricultural production, the use of radio-isotopes, hydrology and food irradiation. It has held a number of meetings and study groups on other topics related to nuclear energy.

PAN AMERICAN HIGHWAY CONGRESSES

Inaugurated 1925 to promote the construction of a highway to link the U.S.A. with South and Central America.

MEMBERS

All members of OAS.

ORGANIZATION

PAN AMERICAN HIGHWAY CONGRESS

Held every four years to promote road building and inform member governments, the Organization of American States and the Inter-American Economic and Social Council on matters relating to Highway planning and construction and maintenance. Made up of representatives of member states (who may speak and vote), the Permanent Executive Committee, Chairmen of the Technical Committees and the Secretary-General of OAS (who have no vote), and observers and special observers (who may speak but not vote).

The Chairman is elected by the delegates.

PERMANENT EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Attached to the Inter-American Economic and Social Council. Composed of specialists representing eleven of the member countries, nine elected by Congress. Functions are to implement the resolutions of Congress. It meets at least once a year.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

TECHNICAL COMMITTEES OF EXPERTS

Set up by Congress, as necessary. There are three Permanent Committees: Planning, Highway Studies and Construction and Maintenance, Highway Operations, and seven subcommittees as follows:

Darien Subcommittee: Created in 1954 to promote interest in the construction of a road to connect the existing highway systems of North and South America through the Darien region of Panama and adjacent area of Colombia. This Committee administers the work of the survey teams now working on the project.

Subcommittee on the Pan American Transversal Highway in South America: Created in 1963 to promote the construction of a highway to connect Paranaguá, Brazil, with Asunción, La Paz and Lima.

Subcommittee on the Bolivarian Forest Edge Highway (Carretera Bolivariana Marginal de la Selva): Created in 1965 to encourage the construction of a continuous highway along the lower eastern edge of the Andes in Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia and Paraguay. This will extend and interconnect penetration roads leading from the Andean highlands to points in Brazil and Argentina.

Each country is responsible for the financing of the sections of Highway within its own frontiers, except in Central America and Panama, where two-thirds of construction costs have been borne by the United States, and in the Darien region of Panama and adjacent area of

Organization of American States

Co-ordinating and Study Group on the Caribbean Circuit: Established to determine the possibility of constructing a highway which, by crossing the Atrato River, would connect a point on the Panama-Colombian border with points along the coast to Venezuela as part of the Caribbean Circuit.

Lima-Brasilia Highway, via Pucallpa, Peru: Bolivia-Brazil-Peru Subcommittee established for a highway to link Lima with the Brazilian capital, now including a spur to La Paz and Bolivia.

Pan-Amazonic Subcommittee: Subcommittee created 1965 for the construction of a highway to establish a connection between the Pacific Ocean and the Amazon basin, so as to take advantage of river transportation throughout the length of the Amazon River and its principal tributaries. First meeting of Subcommittee held in Bogotá in March 1967.

PERMANENT SECRETARIAT

The services are provided by the General Secretariat of the OAS, Washington D.C.

HIGHWAY SYSTEM

By 1977 the total mileage of the Pan American Highway System, including alternative routes, was 80,000 km., of which 62,000 km. were paved or all-weather.

FINANCE

Colombia, where the studies now under way are being financed by all member countries of the OAS. Expenses of Congress and Committees are borne by the host countries.

ORGANIZATION OF CENTRAL AMERICAN STATES —ODECA

(ORGANIZACIÓN DE ESTADOS CENTROAMERICANOS—ODECA)

Oficina Centroamericana, Pino Alto, Paseo Escalón, San Salvador, El Salvador

Founded in 1951 by the Charter of San Salvador, ODECA seeks to re-establish the unity of Central America. A new Charter became effective in 1965. See also Central American Common Market (p. 131).

MEMBERS

Costa Rica

El Salvador

Guatemala

Honduras

Nicaragua

AIMS

To strengthen unity in Central America; to establish mutual consultation in order to guarantee and maintain fraternal relations; to forestall and prevent misunderstanding and to ensure the peaceful settlement of disputes; to offer mutual assistance and to seek common solutions to common problems; to promote economic, social and cultural development through joint action.

ORGANIZATION

(as at October 1976)

THE MEETING OF HEADS OF GOVERNMENT

The Heads of Government of the five member states in conference form the supreme organ of ODECA.

THE CONFERENCE OF FOREIGN MINISTERS

The highest authority of the Organization. Meetings normally take place every year.

THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Composed of Foreign Ministers of the member states or their appointed representatives. It is responsible for the policy of the organization, and the election of the president each year. Meets as often as once a week.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

Composed of three members of the parliaments of each member state. To give advice, and to study the possibilities of harmonizing legislation.

CENTRAL AMERICAN COURT OF JUSTICE

Composed of the Presidents of the Supreme Courts of each member state. Meetings are held whenever necessary, or when convened by the Executive Council.

THE ECONOMIC COUNCIL

The Economic Council is composed of the Ministers of Economy of the member countries and meets at least once a year. Responsible for the planning, co-ordination and execution of Central American economic integration.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN BUREAU

The General Secretariat of the organization; assists and co-ordinates all activities.

Secretary-General: ALVARO ESCALANTE (Costa Rica).

POLITICAL AND PEACE-KEEPING ACTIVITIES

The main internal problem of the Organization in recent years has been the dispute between Honduras and El Salvador. At a meeting in San José, Costa Rica, in June 1970 a plan was agreed under which a zone of pacification would be established on the border between the two countries.

The Heads of State of the two countries met at the border post of El Amarillo in June 1976 and agreed to put the plan into effect. This was done the following August and a ceasefire supervision unit moved into position in the border zone.

Another issue which occupied ODECA in 1975-76 was the Guatemalan claim to sovereignty over Belize. At a meeting of Heads of Government in Guatemala City in October and November 1975 a declaration was issued in support of the Guatemalan position.

Statistics Unit: Collects, edits, collates and analyses statistical information from both primary and secondary sources.

Office of the Secretary-General: Assists him in matters of protocol and implementation of the recommendations and decisions of the Conference calling for action by member countries.

ACTIVITIES

Technical and economic guidance for member countries and co-ordination of their petroleum policies.

RECORD OF EVENTS

- 1960 First OPEC conference held in Baghdad, September; meetings to be held twice yearly.
- 1961 Board of Governors formed and statutes agreed, January.
- 1964 OPEC Economic Commission established, November.
- 1967 Embargo on oil exports to U.S.A. and United Kingdom imposed by Arab states, and shortly afterwards lifted, August.

- 1970 Conference decided to raise tax on the income of oil companies to 55 per cent.
- 1971 Threat of embargo on oil companies in dispute over Gulf oil prices; agreement reached before ultimatum expired.
- 1973 General price increase of 11 per cent, May. Posted price for Gulf oil raised in October to $5.11 a barrel, and generally to $11.65 a barrel in December.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

1975 OPEC's first summit conference was held in Algiers in March. Meeting in Gabon in June, Conference proposed that OPEC oil prices should be quoted in Special Drawing Rights (SDRs) of the IMF, instead of U.S. dollars. It was also proposed that prices should be indexed to world inflation rates.

A ministerial meeting in September agreed to raise prices by 10 per cent for the period until June 1976. It referred the question of pricing oil in SDRs to the committee of Finance Ministers, which had taken no further measures on this subject as of October 1977.

The year's second meeting of Conference, in Vienna in December, was intended to discuss the problem of regulating price differentials which various member states were applying and which were threatening the effectiveness of the price policy of OPEC. The meeting ended prematurely when a terrorist gang kidnapped some of the participants.

1976 The OPEC Special Fund was created in May.

Meeting in Bali, Indonesia, in May, Conference allowed the prices agreed in September 1975 to continue. It was reported that a compromise had been reached which would reconcile opposing interests on the use of differentials and regularize the situation.

Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries

At the year's second meeting of Conference, in Doha, Qatar, December, a general 15 per cent rise in basic prices was proposed and supported by eleven member states. This was to take place in two stages: an immediate 10 per cent rise and a further 5 per cent rise in June 1977.

However, this was opposed by Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, who not only insisted on limiting their price increase to 5 per cent, but also proposed to increase their production and export capacity by up to 20 per cent, weakening demand for the higher-priced exports of the other 11 members.

The effect of this was that not all the 11 members observed the first stage of the price rise exactly as proposed.

1977 The year's first meeting of Conference was held at Saltsjöbaden, near Stockholm, Sweden, in July. Following an earlier waiver by 9 members of the 5 per cent second stage of the price rise agreed at Doha, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates announced that they would both raise their prices by 5 per cent. As a result, a single level of prices throughout the organization was restored.

FINANCE

1977 budget: 180 million Austrian schillings, contributed in equal parts by members.

RULES OF MEMBERSHIP

(Summary from the Statute)

Founder members are those countries which were represented at the first conference, in Baghdad in September 1960, and which signed the agreement establishing OPEC. These are Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Venezuela.

Full members are the founder members as well as those countries whose application has been accepted by the Conference.

Any other country with a substantial net export of crude petroleum and which has interests fundamentally similar to those of member countries may become a full member of the organization, if accepted by a majority of three-quarters of the full members, including the concurrent vote of all founder members.

A net petroleum-exporting country which does not qualify in this way for membership may nevertheless be admitted as an associate member by the Conference under such special conditions as may be prescribed by the Conference, if accepted by a majority as described above.

No country which does not have interests and aims fundamentally similar to those of member countries may be admitted to associate membership.

Associate members may be invited to attend meetings of OPEC and to participate without voting rights. They are entitled to benefit from all general facilities of the Secretariat.

OPEC SPECIAL FUND

P.O.B. 995, 1011 Vienna, Austria

Established by virtue of an agreement signed by all OPEC member countries in Paris on January 28th, 1976.

MEMBERS

Member countries of OPEC (see page 279)

AIMS

The Fund is established to provide financial assistance to developing countries (other than OPEC members) on concessional terms.

In particular, the Fund's resources may be utilized in the following operations:

(a) Providing loans to finance balance of payments deficits.

(b) Providing loans to finance development projects and programmes.

(c) Covering contributions which the Contributing Parties may make to international development agencies whose operations are directed to benefit developing countries.

ORGANIZATION

GOVERNING COMMITTEE

The Fund is administered by a Governing Committee composed of one representative of each Contributing Party to the Fund.

Chairman: Dr. MOHAMMED YEGANEH (Iran).

Director-General of the Fund: Dr. IBRAHIM SHIHATA (Iraq).

Executing National Agencies

Each Contributing Party to the Agreement designates, by a written notice to the Governing Committee, its Executing National Agency (ENA). Each ENA establishes in its records a special account in the name of the Fund separate from its own accounts. The ENA disburses to Borrowers from such an account the amounts designated by the Governing Committee.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The U.S. dollar is the unit of account of the Fund and the means of payment of its loans. The initial resources of the Fund were set at $800 million. In October 1976, the OPEC Ministerial Committee on Monetary and Financial Matters recommended the donation by eight OPEC Member Countries of their profits in the IMF gold sales to the OPEC Special Fund. In March 1977, the same Committee decided to increase the resources of the Fund by an additional amount of $800 million.

ORGANIZATION

(as at October 1977)

MINISTERIAL COUNCIL

Established 1964 as the highest decision-making body of the RCD; composed of the Foreign Ministers of the three countries; considers and decides on measures for regional co-operation among the three countries.

REGIONAL PLANNING COUNCIL

Established 1964; composed of the Heads of the three Planning Organizations; makes recommendations to the Ministerial Council on measures for regional co-operation among the three countries.

Working Committees: Industry and Standardization, Petroleum and Petrochemicals, Trade, Transport and Communications, Technical Co-operation and Public Administration, Cultural and Information Co-operation; Co-ordination Committee.

SECRETARIAT

Permanently established in Teheran in 1965; staff consists of Secretary-General, three Deputy Secretaries-General, six Directors and supporting staff, drawn from nationals of the member countries.

Secretary-General: Dr. AHMAD MINAI (Iran).

ACTIVITIES

INDUSTRY AND STANDARDIZATION

In an agreement of November 1967 the three members agreed to collaborate in joint-purpose enterprises, and guidelines were laid down.

Materials, skills and, if possible, capital were to be pooled; national markets would be shared and industrial specialization encouraged; long-term agreements (off-take guarantees) were to be negotiated for the specific enterprises, ensuring that the partner countries provide a market for the products, and through fiscal arrangements the products would be protected against imports from outside the region.

About forty-three enterprises were identified of which ten were in production by April 1976. Three of these have equity participation by the member countries:

- (a) Iranian Aluminium Company, Takht-e-Jamshid Avenue, Teheran.
- (b) Bank note and Security Paper, Pakistan Security Printing Corporation Limited, Karachi.
- (c) Ball Bearings Aizad Industries Limited, Palace Cinema Building, Civil Lines, Karachi.

Those without equity participation include the Ultra-marine Blue Project and the Shock Absorbers Project in Pakistan, and the following Projects in Turkey: Tungsten Carbide, Borax and Boric Acid, Centrifugal and Special Filters for Chemical Industries, High Tension Insulators and Tetracycline.

To identify further areas for collaboration, a survey of four selected industries was undertaken by a team of experts from the three RCD countries. Their report was under consideration by the member governments during 1977.

There is also provision for common RCD Standards, twenty-four of which have been so far established in the region.

PETROLEUM AND PETROCHEMICALS

Projects include the Glycerine Plant in Pakistan, which exports its products to Turkey, the Polystyrene project in Turkey and the Carbon Black Project in Iran.

There have been other joint activities in this field: a chain of filling stations has been formed. Iran Air has a contract with Turkey for all the airline's fuel supplies, and there is a special programme for the exchange of trainees and experts.

TRADE

RCD hopes to introduce a system of regional trade preferences. The Ministers of Commerce met in April 1976 and laid down a schedule for the introduction of such a scheme, and in the same month the Heads of State and Government met in Izmir, agreeing to establish a free trade area within ten years.

Two agreements had already been signed, on RCD trade and on a multilateral payments arrangement.

It is also hoped to revive the traditional trade route from Europe to Asia through Trabzon in Turkey, which could substantially assist regional transit trade.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

The RCD Chamber of Commerce and Industry has been in operation since 1966. Its secretarial work was taken over by the Secretariat in 1973.

INSURANCE

Five re-insurance pools have been created by RCD, for Accident, Engineering, Marine, Aviation and Fire. Forty-four companies had joined the Pools by 1973, with a total annual premium income of $1.5 to $2.0 million. Since the beginning of 1975, they have been merged into a single agency which is designed ultimately to form an RCD re-insurance company. An RCD International School of Insurance has also been active in Teheran since 1970.

The RCD Insurance Centre has its headquarters in Karachi; it undertakes research and disseminates information on insurance activities in the region.

TRANSPORT

RCD Shipping Services began operation in 1966, both within the region and to the United States. The organization has its office in Istanbul.

The RCD Highway is now nearing completion, linking the three member countries along a 5,180 km. route.

The rail link between Pakistan and Iran is to be completed by 1980. Iran and Turkey were linked by rail in 1971.

COMMUNICATIONS

Postal, telephone and telegraph rates within the reg-

Regional Co-operation for Development ion have been reduced and Operator Trunk Dialling has been introduced between Teheran, Ankara and Karachi.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

Up to 1976, 1,600 trainees, 1,000 students and over 70 experts have visited the region under RCD programmes. Also, forty-three seminars and eight joint courses on public administration have been held under the tripartite arrangement.

CULTURAL AND INFORMATION

The RCD Cultural Institute in Teheran is engaged in research into the common historical and cultural heritage of the member countries. It has a library housing over 4,500 books. The Institute brings out a quarterly journal and has published fifty-three books, including original works and translations.

The Cultural Exchange Programme for 1976 included exchange visits of artists, painters and eminent personalities. There was also a Sports Calendar. A seminar was held on the status of women, and six scholarships were awarded to women's organizations.

Study tours were arranged for journalists, as well as the Fourth RCD Seminar of Journalists, held in Turkey.

The three national Radio/Television and News Agencies also co-operate under RCD programmes.

SISTEMA ECONÓMICA LATINO AMERICANA—SELA

(Latin American Economic System)

Permanent Secretariat in Caracas, Venezuela

Created in October 1975 in Panama as a permanent system of inter-regional consultation and co-operation in economic and social progress.

MEMBERS

Argentina	Cuba	Guyana	Panama
Barbados	Dominican Republic	Haiti	Paraguay
Bolivia	Ecuador	Honduras	Peru
Brazil	El Salvador	Jamaica	Trinidad and Tobago
Chile	Grenada	Mexico	Uruguay
Colombia	Guatemala	Nicaragua	Venezuela
Costa Rica

AIMS

To increase Latin American economic unity, while respecting the system of regional arrangements already in force; to finance and develop national enterprises; to encourage exports and establish fair commodity prices; to form a common economic policy towards organizations and groups of countries outside Latin America; to encourage the formation of Latin-American multinational companies.

ORGANIZATION

LATIN AMERICAN COUNCIL

The supreme body of the organization; establishes general policies of SELA. Consists of one representative from each member country, each with one vote. One ordinary session is to be held each year; elects its own chairman and officers, and elects the Permanent Secretary of SELA. The Council is not empowered to adopt decisions that affect the national policies of member states.

The second meeting of the Council was held in March 1977 in Caracas, Venezuela.

ACTION COMMITTEES

Composed of representatives of interested member states; to make studies and carry out specific programmes and projects; and to prepare and adopt joint negotiating positions of interest to member states in international forums. Financed by participating member states.

Three action committees were set up by the Council in March 1977. These were for:

- (a) Cereals, oil-seeds and fruit, at Buenos Aires, Argentina;
- (b) fish products, at Lima, Peru;
- (c) meat, meat products and dairy products, at Montevideo, Uruguay.

The Council also approved an agreement with the UNDP, under which SELA Council projects would be eligible for UNDP assistance.

PERMANENT SECRETARIAT

The technical and administrative centre of SELA; may represent the organization with the concurrence of the Council; elects the Permanent Secretary for a four-year term. The Permanent Secretariat is to carry out functions entrusted to it by the Council, and implement the Council's decisions; organize studies and prepare for projects, assist in formation of Action Committees; prepare draft budgets and provide services for meetings.

Secretary: JAIME MONCAYO.

SOUTH PACIFIC COMMISSION

Post Box D5, Nouméa, New Caledonia

The Commission's purpose is to promote the economic and social welfare and advancement of the peoples of the South Pacific region. The region contains approximately $4\frac{1}{2}$ million people, scattered over some 30 million square kilometres.

MEMBERS AND THEIR TERRITORIES

Australia: Norfolk Island	Nauru	United Kingdom: Gilbert Islands Pitcairn Islands Solomon Islands Tuvalu *New Hebrides	U.S.A.: American Samoa Guam Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands
Fiji	New Zealand: Cook Islands Niue Tokelau Islands
France: French Polynesia New Caledonia Wallis and Futuna Islands *New Hebrides	Papua New Guinea		Western Samoa

Associate: Tonga.

* The New Hebrides is a Condominium jointly administered by France and the United Kingdom.

ORGANIZATION

SOUTH PACIFIC CONFERENCE

The Conference is held annually and since 1974 combines the former South Pacific Conference, attended by delegates from the countries and territories within the Commission's area of action, and the former Commission Session, attended by representatives of the participating governments. Each government and territorial administration has the right to send a representative and alternates to the Conference, and each representative (or in his absence an alternate) has the right to cast one vote on behalf of the government or territorial administration which he represents.

The Conference examines and adopts the Commission's work programme and budget for the coming year, and discusses any other matters within the competence of the Commission.

The sixteenth meeting of the Conference took place in Nouméa in October 1976.

Planning and Evaluation Committee: meets in April or May each year to evaluate the preceding year's work programme, and to draft the programme and budget for the coming year; it decides on two themes of regional interest to be discussed by the Conference.

Committee of Representatives of Participating Governments: approves the Commission's administrative budget and nominates the Commission's principal officers.

SECRETARIAT

Since November 1976 the Secretariat has had a Management Committee which has a supervisory and advisory role over all Commission activities. Committee members are the Principal Officers of the Commission.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS (1977)

Secretary-General: Dr. ESIKA MACU SALATO, C.B.E. (Fiji).

Director of Programmes: Dr. G. MOTHA (Australia).

Director of Administration: Dr. FRANK MAHONY (U.S.A.).

SIXTEENTH CONFERENCE

The 16th South Pacific Conference gave priority to the following items, projects and programmes for 1977:

AWARDS AND GRANTS

Short-Term Experts and Specialist Services.

Assistance to applied research, experiments and fieldwork: provision for general assistance; fish poisoning project; weaning foods.

Pacific Board for Educational Co-operation: psychological assessment officer; grants-in-aid of curriculum development; consultant and other support services; teacher college principals—workshop.

Cultural conservation and exchange: grants-in-aid—South Pacific Arts Festival; grants-in-aid for cultural development; South Pacific Games.

Inter-territorial study visits and travel grants: inter-territorial study visits; travel grants—SPC meetings; funds for regional travel—student training.

AIMS

Each territory has its own programme of development activities. The Commission assists these programmes by bringing people together for discussion and study, by research into some of the problems common to the region, by providing expert advice and assistance and by disseminating technical information.

ACTIVITIES

The 16th South Pacific Conference adopted a recommendation by the 1976 Review Committee that the Commission should carry out the following specific activities:

- (a) rural development
- (b) youth and community development
- (c) ad hoc expert consultancies
- (d) cultural exchanges (in arts, sports and education)
- (e) training facilitation
- (f) assessment and development of marine resources and research; and that special consideration should be given to projects and grants-in-aid which do not necessarily fall within these specific activities, but which respond to pressing regional or sub-regional needs or to the expressed needs of the smaller Pacific countries.

The Review Committee also recommended that the three main sectors (health, social development, economic development) into which the Commission's work programme was formerly divided be abolished, and an integrated work programme, incorporating all activities, be established.

L'UNION DOUANIÈRE ET ÉCONOMIQUE DE L'AFRIQUE CENTRALE—UDEAC

(Customs and Economic Union of Central Africa)

B.P. 969, Bangui, Central African Empire

Established by the Brazzaville Treaty in December 1964, the Union came into force in January 1966, replacing the Union douanière équatoriale (f. 1959).

MEMBERS

Cameroon

Central African Empire

Congo

Gabon

The Central African Republic (now Empire) and Chad withdrew from the Union in April 1968 to form the Union des états de l'Afrique centrale (UEAC, see page 334) together with the Congo (Kinshasa), now Zaire. The Central African Republic subsequently rejoined UDEAC in December 1968, and Chad was given observer status at the Council of Heads of State in December 1975.

ORGANIZATION

COUNCIL OF HEADS OF STATE

Meets at least once a year to determine general policy; the supreme organ of the Union. The presidency of the Council is by annual alphabetical rotation.

President (1977): ALBERT-BERNARD (OMAR) BONGO (Gabon).

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Permanent deliberative body of the Union; comprises the Finance Ministers and Ministers concerned with economic development from each of the participating countries, and meets at least twice a year. Twelfth session, Brazzaville, Congo People's Republic, December 1976.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

In charge of the executive functions of the Union; composed of a Customs and Fiscal division and a division of economic development. The latter has four departments: industrial harmonization; transport, post and telecommunications; rural economy; and statistics; it also deals with tourism and labour market questions.

Secretary-General: PIERRE TCHANQUE (Cameroon).

FUNCTIONS

Customs union: trade between the member countries is duty free. A common external tariff applies to imports from third countries; this is the principal import tariff, to which the member governments may if necessary add supplementary duties.

Industrial policy: a number of essential projects are planned for the whole region so as to rationalize investment and take advantage of economies of scale.

Investment: member states apply a common code for investment policy.

Taxation: a single tax system is in force in all member states, although the rates of taxation are determined by member governments separately.

Solidarity Fund: to counteract regional disparities of wealth and economic development; contributions are agreed by the Council of Heads of State.

Freedom of movement: a convention which also included the right of establishment within the union for nationals of member states was signed in 1972.

New Provisions: the Brazzaville Treaty was revised in 1974 to increase economic integration. The main amendments were connected with the new Development Bank of States of Central Africa, and the promotion of multinational companies within the union.

CENTRAL BANK

Banque des Etats de l'Afrique Centrale: B.P. 1917, Yaoundé, Cameroon; f. 1973 as the central bank of issue of the member states and Chad; Pres. ALPHONSE POATY; Dir.-Gen. CHRISTIAN JOUDIOU (France); Asst. Dir.-Gen. JEAN-EDOUARD SATHOUD, CASIMIR OYEMBA.

DEVELOPMENT BANK

Development Bank of States of Central Africa: Brazzaville, Congo People's Republic; f. April 1976; capital CFA Frs. 16,000 million.

THE WARSAW TREATY OF FRIENDSHIP, CO-OPERATION AND MUTUAL ASSISTANCE— THE WARSAW PACT

Headquarters of the Joint Command: Moscow, U.S.S.R.

The Warsaw Treaty of Friendship, Co-operation and Mutual Assistance (The Warsaw Pact) was signed in Warsaw in May 1955. It was automatically extended for a further ten years in June 1975. The Treaty supplemented agreements already in existence between the U.S.S.R. and Czechoslovakia (1943), Poland (1945), and Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania (1948). Albania ceased to participate in 1961 and formally withdrew from the Treaty in 1968.

ORGANIZATION

POLITICAL CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (PCC)

The Committee was intended to meet not less than twice a year, but in fact there have been fewer meetings. The venue rotates among the member countries and the Chairmanship is held by each member country in turn for one year. Delegations of member states are normally led by the First Secretary of the Party supported by the Head of Government, Foreign Minister and others. Meetings are normally attended by the Commander-in-Chief, Warsaw Pact Joint Armed Forces.

MILITARY COUNCIL

Set up by the PCC in 1969. Consultative Committee of national Chiefs of Staff or Deputy Ministers of Defence, with status of Deputy Commanders in Chief of the Warsaw Pact Joint Armed Forces. Meets normally twice a year, in each member country in turn, under the Chairmanship of the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces. The autumn meeting of the Military Council is usually combined with a general conference of national Force Commanders.

TECHNICAL COMMITTEE OF THE JOINT ARMED FORCES

Set up March 17th, 1969.

COMMITTEE OF DEFENCE MINISTERS

Set up by the PCC in 1969, as part of a reorganization of the Treaty's military structure. Acts as a permanent organ, meeting annually. Each member country provides the Chairman and the venue in turn. Meetings receive a report from the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces.

COMMITTEE OF FOREIGN MINISTERS

Set up by the PCC in 1976 as a permanent organ parallel to Committee of Defence Ministers. First met in Moscow, May 1977.

JOINT SECRETARIAT

Established in January 1956 in Moscow; given higher status by the PCC in 1976; Sec.-Gen. NIKOLAY P. FIRYUBIN (U.S.S.R.).

JOINT COMMAND OF THE ARMED FORCES

Set up in 1955 under the general supervision of the PCC.

Commander-in-Chief: Marshal VIKTOR G. KULIKOV (U.S.S.R.).

Chief of Staff and First Deputy Commander-in-Chief: Army Gen. ANATOLY I. GRIBKOV (U.S.S.R.).

Deputy Commanders-in-Chief: The members of the Military Council.

COMBINED GENERAL STAFF

Composed of representatives of the seven member states with headquarters in Moscow. Services meetings of the Committee of Defence Ministers and of the Military Council. Plans and evaluates manoeuvres and exercises of Warsaw Pact Joint Armed Forces.

WESTERN EUROPEAN UNION—WEU

9 Grosvenor Place, London, SW1X 7HL, England

Based on the Brussels Treaty of 1948, Western European Union was set up in 1955. Member States seek to co-ordinate their defence policy and equipment and to co-operate in political, social, legal and cultural affairs.

MEMBERS

Belgium	Italy	Netherlands
France	Luxembourg	United Kingdom
Federal Republic of Germany

ORGANIZATION

(as at October 1977)

THE COUNCIL

The Council of Western European Union consists of the Foreign Ministers, or the Ambassadors resident in London and an Under-Secretary of the British Foreign Office, under the chairmanship of the Secretary-General. It is responsible for formulating policy and issuing directives to the Secretary-General and the agencies and commissions of the organization.

The Council is charged with ensuring the closest co-operation with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, especially with regard to the Agency for the Control of Armaments and the Standing Armaments Committee.

PERMANENT REPRESENTATIVES

Belgium: ROBERT VAES.
France: JEAN SAUVAGNARGUES.
Federal Republic of Germany: HANS HELMUTH RUETE
Italy: ROBERTO DUCCI.
Luxembourg: ANDRÉ PHILIPPE.
Netherlands: ROBERT FACK.
United Kingdom: Sir ANTONY DUFF.

THE AGENCY FOR THE CONTROL OF ARMAMENTS

Director: Gen. V. LEONELLI (Italy), 43 ave. du Président Wilson, 75775 Paris, Cedex 16, France.

The Agency is responsible to the Council for ensuring that the undertakings not to manufacture certain types of armaments are being observed and for the control of the level of stocks of armaments held by each member state on the mainland of Europe.

THE STANDING ARMAMENTS COMMITTEE

Chairman: ALAIN PLANTEY (France), 43 ave. du Président Wilson, 75775 Paris Cedex 16, France.

The Committee is responsible for developing the closest possible co-operation between the member countries in the field of armaments.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: EDOUARD LONGERSTAEY (Belgium).

Assistant Secretary-General: P. B. FRASER (United Kingdom).

Legal Adviser: J. WESTHOF (Belgium).

THE ASSEMBLY

President: KAI-UWE VON HASSEL (Federal Republic of Germany).

Clerk: FRANCIS HUMBLET, 43 Avenue du Président Wilson, 75775 Paris, Cedex 16, France.

The Assembly of Western European Union consists of the delegates of the member countries to the Consultative Assembly of the Council of Europe and meets twice a year in Paris. The Assembly considers defence policy in Western Europe, besides other matters concerning Member States in common, and may make recommendations or transmit opinions to the Council, to national parliaments, governments and international organizations. An annual report, with special reference to the Agency for the Control of Armaments, is presented to the Assembly by the Council.

PERMANENT COMMITTEES OF THE ASSEMBLY
Defence Questions and Armaments: Chairman J. ROPER (U.K.).

General Affairs: Chairman Mrs. A. VON BOTHMER (Federal Republic of Germany).

Scientific Questions: Chairman K. WARREN (U.K.).

Budgetary Affairs and Administration: Chairman A. DEQUAE (Belgium).

Rules of Procedure and Privileges: Chairman F. PIKET (Netherlands).

Relations with Parliaments: Chairman R. RADIUS (France).

HISTORY

The Brussels Treaty was signed in 1948 by Belgium, France, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom. It foresaw the potential for international co-operation in Western Europe and provided for collective defence and collaboration in economic, social and cultural activities. Within this framework, NATO and the Council of Europe (see chapters) were formed in 1949.

On the collapse in 1954 of plans for a European Defence Community, a nine-power conference was convened in London to try to reach a new agreement. This conference's decisions were embodied in a series of formal agreements drawn up by a ministerial conference held in Paris in October 1954. The agreements entailed: arrangements for the Brussels Treaty to be strengthened and modified to include the Federal Republic of Germany and Italy, the ending of the occupation regime in the Federal Republic of Germany, and the invitation to the latter to join NATO. These agreements were ratified on May 6th, 1955, on which date the seven-power Western European Union came into being.

The new organization was given the task of settling the future of the Saar. Under a Franco-German agreement of October 1954, the Saar was to have a European statute within the framework of WEU, subject to approval by referendum. In October 1955 the Saar population voted against the statute and expressed the wish for incorporation in the Federal Republic of Germany. Political and economic incorporation were achieved in January 1957 and July 1959 respectively.

The modified Brussels Treaty provided for a system of co-operation in social and cultural affairs, and these activities were transferred in June 1960 to the Council of Europe.

Between 1963 and 1970, while negotiations for the United Kingdom's accession to the EEC were suspended, the WEU Council invited the Commission of the EEC to participate in meetings on European economic affairs. These were discontinued in 1970 on the re-opening of negotiations which led to the Treaty of Accession in January 1972. The Council has since devoted its meetings to consultations on political questions.

WORLD COUNCIL OF CHURCHES—WCC

150 route de Ferney, P.O.B. 66, 1211 Geneva 20, Switzerland

Founded 1948 to promote co-operation between Christian Churches and to prepare for a clearer manifestation of the unity of the Church.

MEMBERS

There are 293 Churches in over 90 countries, of which 26 are associated Churches. Chief denominations: Anglican, Baptist, Congregational, Lutheran, Methodist, Moravian, Old Catholic, Orthodox, Presbyterian, Reformed and Society of Friends. The Roman Catholic Church is not a member but sends official observers to meetings.

ORGANIZATION

Hon. President: Dr. W. A. VISSER 'T HOOFT (Netherlands).

Presidium: Justice A. R. JIAGGE (Ghana), Prof. JOSÉ MIGUEZ-BONINO (Argentina), His Eminence NIKODIM, Metropolitan of Leningrad and Novgorod (U.S.S.R.) Dr. T. B. SIMATUPANG (Indonesia), OLOF SUNDBY, Archbishop of Uppsala (Sweden), Dr. CYNTHIA WEDEL (U.S.A.).

ASSEMBLY

The governing body of the World Council, consisting of delegates of the member Churches, meets every six or seven years to frame policy and consider some main theme. The fifth Assembly was held at Nairobi, Kenya in November and December 1975.

PRINCIPAL COMMITTEES

CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Appointed by the Assembly to carry out its policies and decisions. Consists of 140 members chosen from Assembly delegates and meets annually.

Moderator: EDWARD W. SCOTT, Primate, The Anglican Church of Canada.

Vice-Moderators: His Holiness KAREKIN II, Catholicos-Coadjutor, Armenian Apostolic Church, Catholicosate of Cilicia (Lebanon), JEAN SKUSE (Australia).

General Secretary: Dr. PHILIP A. POTTER (West Indies).

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Consists of twenty-six members chosen by the Central Committee from its membership to prepare its agenda, expedite its decisions and supervise the work of the Council between meetings of the Central Committee. Meets every six months.

SECRETARIAT

General Secretary: Dr. PHILIP A. POTTER (West Indies).

ACTIVITIES

Studies. Theological research work is undertaken, and conferences and commissions study the reunion of the Churches, evangelism and missionary work, the role of the Church in society, religious liberty, racial and cultural relations, and the place of the layman in the Church today.

Inter-Church Aid. Provides funds for Churches in need and considers each year a list of projects, allocating funds for those approved.

Refugee and World Service. Provision of financial and material relief in disaster areas and distribution of food, clothing, medical supplies and tents. Thousands of refugees have been re-settled by the Council, which also provides medical care, homes for aged refugees and educational facilities.

Education. The Office of Education was set up in 1971 when the integration with the World Council of Christian Education took place. The office is concerned with both religious and general education. The Council provides scholarships for theological students to continue their education in other countries, largely in places provided by member Churches in their theological schools. The Ecumenical Institute holds educational courses, study conferences and a graduate course in ecumenical studies in connection with the University of Geneva, at Bossey, Switzerland.

International Affairs. The Commission of the Churches on International Affairs represents the Council at conferences of international bodies such as the United Nations, and works for peace, justice and freedom.

Mission and Evangelism. The Council's Commission on World Mission and Evangelism (formerly the International Missionary Council) serves the Churches and missionary societies in the maintenance of missionary work and promotes co-operation in the common task of evangelism.

Youth Activities. The Council promotes world youth projects and ecumenical work camps as well as providing opportunities for voluntary service by young people.

Programme to Combat Racism. This was inaugurated in August 1969 by the Central Committee.

International Council of Scientific Unions—ICSU (Conseil international des unions scientifiques): 51 boulevard de Mortmorency, 75016 Paris P16, France (see page 223).

UNIONS FEDERATED TO THE ICSU

International Astronomical Union (Union astronomique internationale): c/o Observatoire de Genève, 1290 Sauverny, Switzerland; f. 1919. Object: to facilitate co-operation between the astronomers of various countries and to further the study of astronomy in all its branches; 48 countries are affiliated, there are 3,800 individual members. Its last General Assembly was held in 1976 in Grenoble, France.

Pres. Prof. A. BLAAUW (Netherlands); Gen. Sec. Prof. EDITH A. MÜLLER (Switzerland). Publs. Transactions of the International Astronomical Union and Symposia organised by the International Astronomical Union.

International Geographical Union (IGU) (Union géographique internationale): f. 1923. Objects: to encourage the study of problems relating to geography, to promote and co-ordinate research requiring international co-operation, and to organize international congresses and commissions; 81 mem. countries.

Pres. Prof. MICHAEL J. WISE (U.K.); Sec.-Treas. Prof. WALTHER MANSCHARD, United Nations University, 29th Floor, Toho Semei Bldg., 15-1, Shibuya 2-chome Shibuya-Ku, Tokyo 150, Japan. Publ. Bulletin (two a year).

International Mathematical Union: c/o Collège de France, 11 Place Marcelin-Berthelot, F-75231 Paris Cedex 05, France; f. 1952 by a convention of delegates of national committees representing 22 countries which met in

New York. Objects: to support and assist the International Congress of Mathematicians and other international scientific meetings or conferences; to encourage and support other international mathematical activities considered likely to contribute to the development of mathematical science—pure, applied or educational; 42 mem. countries.

Exec. Cttee.: Pres. K. CHANDRASEKHARAN (India); Vice-Pres. N. JACOBSON (U.S.A.), Prof. L. S. PONTYAGIN (U.S.S.R.); Sec.-Gen. Prof. J.-L. LIONS (France).

International Union for Pure and Applied Biophysics: Physiological Laboratory, Cambridge, CB2 3EG, U.K.; f. 1961. Aims: to organize international co-operation in biophysics and promote communication between biophysics and allied subjects, to encourage national co-operation between biophysical societies, and to contribute to the advancement of biophysical knowledge. Mems.: 35 adhering bodies.

Pres. Dr. B. CHANCE (U.S.A.); Vice-Pres. Prof. S. EBASHI (Japan), Prof. P. G. KOSTYUK (U.S.S.R.); Sec.-Gen. Prof. R. D. KEYNES (U.K.). Publ. Quarterly Reviews of Biophysics.

International Union of Biochemistry (Union internationale de biochimie): Biochemistry-UMED, P.O.B. 520875, Miami, Florida 33152, U.S.A.; f. 1955. Objects: (a) to sponsor the International Congresses of Biochemistry, (b) to co-ordinate research and discussion, (c) to organize co-operation between the societies of biochemistry, (d) to provide high standards of biochemistry throughout the world and (e) to contribute to the advancement of biochemistry in all its international aspects. 34 adhering bodies. The next meeting of the Union will be held in Toronto in July 1979.

Pres. Elect F. LYNEN (Federal Republic of Germany); Treas. Prof. E. C. SLATER (Netherlands); Sec.-Gen. Dr. W. J. WHELAN (U.S.A.).

International Union of Biological Sciences (Union internationale des sciences biologiques): 51, blvd. de Montmorency, 75016 Paris, France; f. 1919. 46 countries are represented and 74 scientific member bodies.

Pres. Prof. N. OKERBLOM (Finland); Sec.-Gen. and Treas. Dr. E. AYENSU (Ghana).

International Union of Crystallography (Union internationale de cristallographie): f. 1947. Objects: to facilitate international standardization of methods, of units, of nomenclature and of symbols used in crystallography; and to form a focus for the relations of crystallography to other sciences; members in 30 countries.

Pres. Prof. A. MAGNÉLI (Sweden); Gen. Sec. and Treas. Prof. S. E. RASMUSSEN, Dept. of Chemistry, Aarhus University, DK-8000 Aarhus C, Denmark; Exec. Sec. Dr. J. N. KING, 13 White Friars, Chester, CH1 1NZ, England. Publs. Acta Crystallographica: Section A (bi-monthly), Section B (monthly), Journal of Applied Crystallography (bi-monthly), Structure Reports (two volumes per annum), International Tables for X-ray Crystallography, Molecular Structures and Dimensions, World Directory of Crystallographers, Fifty Years of X-ray Diffraction, Early Papers on Diffraction of X-rays by Crystals, Symmetry Aspects of M. C. Escher's Periodic Drawings, Index of Crystallographic Supplies, Crystallographic Book List, Bibliographies on several topics of crystallographic interest, World List of Crystallographic Computer Programs.

International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics (Union géodésique et géophysique internationale): Observatoire Royale de Belgique, 3 ave. Circulaire, B1180 Brussels, Belgium; f. 1919; federation of 7 associations representing Geodesy, Seismology and Physics of the Earth's Interior, Physical Sciences of the Ocean, Volcanology and Chemistry of the Earth's Interior, Scientific Hydrology, Meteorology and Atmospheric Physics, Geomagnetism and Aeronomy, which meet at the General Assemblies of the Union. In addition, there are Joint Committees of the various associations either among themselves or with other unions. The Union organizes scientific meetings and also sponsors various permanent services, the object of which is to collect, analyse and publish geophysical data; 76 mem. countries.

Pres. Prof. A. A. ASHOUR (Egypt); Gen. Sec. Prof. P. MELCHIOR (Belgium). Publs. IUGG Chronicle (monthly), Geodetic Bulletin (quarterly), International Bibliography of Geodesy (irregular), International Seismological Summary (yearly), Bulletin Volcanologique (6 monthly), Bulletin mensuel du Bureau Central Sismologique (monthly), Bulletin de l'Association Internationale d'Hydrologie Scientifique (quarterly), International Bibliography of Hydrology, Catalogue des Volcans Actifs (both irregular), texts of communications, IUGG Monographs (irregular).

International Union of Geological Sciences (Union Internationale des sciences géologiques): Rijks Geologische Dienst, P.O.B. 379, Haarlem, Netherlands; f. 1961 as an offshoot of the International Geological Congress; mems. from 80 countries.

Pres. Dr. P. H. ABELSON (U.S.A.); Sec.-Gen. Dr. W. W. HUTCHINSON (Canada). Publs. Geological Newsletter, Reviews.

International Union of Physiological Sciences: Hogg Foundation for Mental Health, University of Texas, Austin, Texas, 78712, U.S.A.; f. 1951 to encourage the series of International Congresses of Physiological Sciences; to promote further congresses; to take all action which will contribute to the development of physiological sciences; mems. national or regional physiological societies of 40 countries.

Pres. J. NUTTIN (Belgium); Sec.-Gen. WAYNE HOLTZMANN (U.S.A.). Publ. International Journal of Psychology.

International Union of Pure and Applied Chemistry (IUPAC) (Union internationale de chimie pure et appliquée): c/o IUPAC Secretariat, Bank Court Chambers, 2-3 Pound Way, Cowley Centre, Oxford, OX4 3YF, England; f. 1919. Object: to organize permanent co-operation between chemical associations in the member countries, to study topics of international importance requiring regulation, standardization or codification, to co-operate with other international organizations in the field of chemistry and to contribute to the advancement of all aspects of chemistry. Biennial General Assembly. 41 member countries.

Pres. Prof. G. SMETS (Belgium); Gen. Sec. Prof. G. OURISSON (France); Treas. Prof. O. HORN (Federal Republic of Germany). Publs. Comptes Rendus (biennial), Information Bulletin (irregular), Pure and Applied Chemistry (monthly).

International Union of Pure and Applied Physics (Union internationale de physique pure et appliquée): Université Laval, Quebec P.Q., G1K 7P4, Canada; f. 1922. Object: to promote and encourage international co-operation in physics. 39 countries are affiliated.

Pres. C. C. BUTLER (U.K.); Sec.-Gen. LARKIN KERWIN (Canada).

International Union of Radio Science (Union radio-scientifique internationale): 81 rue de Nieuwenhove, 1180 Brussels, Belgium; f. 1919 to (a) encourage and organize scientific research in radio science, particularly where international co-operation is required, and to stimulate the discussion and publication of the results of such research; (b) to promote the development of uniform methods of measurement and standardized measuring instruments on an international basis, to stimulate and co-ordinate studies of the scientific aspects of telecommunications using electro-magnetic waves, guided and unguided. There are 37 national committees.

Pres. Prof. J. VOGÉ (France); Sec.-Gen. Dr. C. M. MINNIS (U.K.). Publs. Proceedings of General Assemblies of the URSI, URSI Information Bulletin, Review of Radio Science.

International Union of the History and Philosophy of Science: Division of the History of Science: Science Museum, London, S.W.7, England; Division of the History of Logic, Methodology and Philosophy of Science: Queen's College, Oxford, England; f. 1954 to assist UNESCO in the research into the history and philosophy of science.

D.H.S. Council (London): Pres. Prof. R. TATON (France); Sec.-Gen. Dr. F. GREENAWAY (U.K.). D.L.M.P.S. Council (Oxford): Pres. Prof. P. SUPPES (U.S.A.); Sec. Dr. L. J. COHEN (U.K.).

International Union of Theoretical and Applied Mechanics (Union internationale de mécanique théorique et appliquée): Chalmers University of Technology, Fack, 402 20 Gothenburg, Sweden; f. 1947 to form a link between persons and organizations engaged in scientific work (theoretical or experimental) in mechanics or in related sciences; to organize international congresses of theoretical and applied mechanics, through a standing Congress Committee, and to organize other international meetings for subjects falling within this field; and to engage in other activities meant to promote the development of mechanics as a science; 30 mem. countries. The Union is directed by its General Assembly, which is composed of representatives of the organizations adhering to and affiliated to the Union and of elected members.

Pres. Prof. F. NIORDSON (Denmark); Vice-Pres. Prof. H. GÖRTLER (Federal Republic of Germany); Sec. Prof. J. HULT (Sweden). Publ. Annual Report.

SCIENTIFIC ORGANIZATIONS NOT AFFILIATED TO ICSU

Association for the Taxonomic Study of the Tropical African Flora (Association pour l'Etude Taxonomique de la Flore d'Afrique Tropicale—AETFAT): Laboratorio de Botánica, Excmo. Cabildo Insular, Las Palmas de Gran Canaria, Canary Islands, Spain; f. 1950 to facilitate co-operation and liaison between botanists engaged in the study of the flora of Tropical Africa. Mems.: about 600 botanists in 70 countries; maintains a library in Brussels.

Sec.-Gen. Prof. GUNTHER KUNKEL (Germany/Spain). Pubs. AETFAT Index (annual), AETFAT Bulletin (annual).

Association of African Geological Surveys (Association des Services Géologiques Africains): 74 rue de la Fédération, Paris 15e, France; f. 1929. Aims: synthesis of the geological knowledge of Africa and neighbouring countries; encouragement of research in geological and allied sciences for the benefit of Africa; dissemination of scientific knowledge. Mems.: about 60 (Official Geological Surveys, public and private organizations).

Pres. J. E. CUDJOE (Ghana); Sec.-Gen. J. LOMBARD (France).

Association of Geoscientists for International Development (AGID): temporary headquarters: Geology Department, Memorial University of Newfoundland, St. John's Newfoundland A1C 5S7, Canada; f. 1974 to encourage communication between those interested in the application of the geosciences to international development; to give priority to the developing countries in these matters; to organize meetings and publish information; mems.: 950 individual and 35 organizational members in 85 countries.

Pres. Dr. DEBORAH ENILO AJAKAIYE (Nigeria); Sec.-Treas. Dr. ANTONY R. BERGER (Canada).

Biometric Society (Société internationale de biométrie, Internationale Biometrische Gesellschaft): Dept. of Statistics, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, Colorado 80532, U.S.A.; f. 1947 for the advancement of quantitative biological science through the development of quantitative theories and the application, development and dissemination of effective mathematical and statistical techniques; the Society has 12 regional organizations and 9 national groups, is affiliated with the International Statistical Institute and the World Health Organization, and constitutes the Section of Biometry of the International Union of Biological Sciences; over 3,000 members in more than 60 countries.

Pres. Prof. J. A. NELDER (U.K.); Sec. Prof. J. S. WILLIAMS (U.S.A.). Publ. Biometrics (quarterly).

Centre Séismologique européen-méditerranéen (Europro-Mediterranean Seismological Centre): 5 rue René Descartes, 67000 Strasbourg, France; f. 1976; replaces the Central International Bureau of Seismology; affil. to Federation of Astronomical and Geophysical Services (FAGS), q.v.

Dir. E. PETERSCHMITT. Publ. Diffusion de déterminations rapides d'épicentres.

Charles Darwin Foundation for the Galápagos Isles (Fundación Charles Darwin para las Islas Galápagos): Palais des Académies, 1 rue Ducale, Brussels 1, Belgium; f. 1959 to organize and maintain the "Charles Darwin" research station, established in the Galápagos Archipelago on the centenary of the publication of Darwin's Origin of Species; advises the Government on conservation and scientific research in the archipelago.

Pres. Dr. PETER KRAMER (Federal Republic of Germany). Secs. G. T. CORLEY SMITH (U.K.), Dr. D. CHALLINOR (U.S.A.), Dr. T. SIMKIN (U.S.A.). Publ. Noticias de Galápagos (twice a year).

European Association for the Exchange of Technical Literature in the Field of Metallurgy (Association Européenne pour l'Echange de la Littérature Technique dans le Domaine de la Sidérurgie): 7 rue Alcide de Gasperi, Kirchberg, Luxembourg; f. 1959 to promote translation and exchange of technical literature in metallurgy especially from the U.S.S.R. and the Far East for the benefit of industry, research institutes etc., in the European Community. Mem. institutes in 5 countries.

Pres. M. L. PEARL (U.K.); Vice-Pres. L. POMFILIO (Italy). Pubs. Lists of translations (monthly), bibliographical index-cards.

European Association of Exploration Geophysicists: 30 Carel van Bylandtlaan, The Hague, Netherlands; f. 1951 to facilitate contacts between exploration geophysicists, disseminate information to members, arrange regular meetings. 2,600 members in 86 countries throughout the world.

Treas. A. W. SMIT (Netherlands). Publ. Geophysical Prospecting (quarterly) in English.

European Association of Veterinary Anatomists: École Nationale Vétérinaire, Chemin des Capelles, 31300 Toulouse, France; f. 1964 to provide opportunities for meetings for the advancement of studies in veterinary anatomy. Mems.: 150 in 30 countries.

Pres. Prof. PAVAUX; Gen. Sec. Prof. DE Vos.

European Atomic Energy Society: c/o U.K. Atomic Energy Authority, 11 Charles II St., London, SW1Y 4QP, England; f. 1954 on the initiative of the Royal Society, to encourage co-operation in atomic energy research. Mems.: national atomic energy commissions in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom.

Pres. Dipl. Ing. R. POLACZEK (Austria); Exec. Vice-Pres. H. von BULOW (Denmark).

European Atomic Forum (FORATOM): 1 St. Alban's Street, London, SW1Y 4SL, England; f. 1960; holds periodical conferences; mems.: atomic "forums" in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Federal Hickory Corners, Mich. 49060, U.S.A.; f. 1922; study of physical, chemical and biological phenomena of lakes and rivers; about 3,200 mems.

Pres. JOHN R. VALLENTYNE (Canada); Gen. Sec. and Treas. ROBERT G. WETZEL (U.S.A.). Publs. Verhandlungen der internationalen Vereinigung für Limnologie, Mitteilungen.

International Association of Volcanology and Chemistry of the Earth's Interior (IAVGEI) (Association Internationale de Volcanologie et de Chimie de l'Intérieur de la Terre): c/o Dept. of Earth Sciences, the University, Leeds, LS2 9JT, England; f. 1919 to examine scientifically all aspects of volcanology.

Pres. R. W. DECKER (U.S.A.); Sec. P. E. BAKER (U.K.). Publs. Bulletin Volcanologique, Catalogue of the Active Volcanoes of the World, Newsletter.

International Association of Wood Anatomists (Association Internationale des Anatomistes du Bois): c/o Rijksherbarium, Leiden, The Netherlands; f. 1931 for the purpose of study, documentation, and exchange of information on the structure of wood. Mems.: 302 in 42 countries.

Exec. Sec. Dr. P. BAAS. Publ. IAWA Bulletin.

International Association on Water Pollution Research: Chichester House, 278 High Holborn, London WC1, England; f. 1965 to encourage international communication, co-operative effort, and a maximum exchange of information on water quality management; to sponsor regular international meetings; to provide a scientific medium for the publication of research reports and to shorten the time-lag between development of research and its application. Mems.: 24 national, 200 associates, 800 individuals; Last Conf., Sydney, October 17-22, 1976.

Pres. BERTIL HAWERMAN; Vice-Pres. Dr. E. KUNTZE, Dr. C. P. FISHER. Publ. Water Research (monthly).

International Astronautical Federation—IAF (Fédération internationale astronautique): 250 rue St. Jacques, Paris 5e, France; f. 1950 to foster the development of astronautics for peaceful purposes at national and international levels. Mems.: 56 national astronautical societies in 37 countries. The last Congress was held in California in 1976. The IAF has created the International Academy of Astronauts (IAA) and the International Institute of Space Law (IISL).

Pres. M. BARRÈRE (France); Exec. Sec. H. VAN GELDER. Publ. Proceeding of Annual Congresses and Symposia.

International Botanical Congress (Congrès International de Botanique): XII Congress, 1975, Komarov Botanical Institute, Academy of Sciences of the U.S.S.R., 2 Prof. Popov St., Leningrad, 197022, U.S.S.R.; f. 1864 to inform botanists of recent progress in the plant sciences; the Nomenclature Section of the Congress attempts to provide a uniform terminology and methodology for the naming of plants; other Sections deal with molecular, metabolic, structural, systematic and evolutionary, ecological botany; floristics and phytogeography; lower plants; cultivated plants and natural plant resources; conservation of the plant world, etc. Mems.: about 4,500 persons attended the XIth Congress at University of Washington in 1969.

Chair. of Organizing Cttee. for the XIIth Congress A. TAKHTAJAN; Sec.-Gen. O. ZALENSKY.

International Bureau of Differential Anthropology (Bureau international d'anthropologie différentielle): Institut d'Anatomie, Ecole de Médecine de l'Université, 20 rue de l'Ecole de Médecine, 1211 Geneva 4, Switzerland; f. 1950 to encourage scientific research on differential anthropology and gain a better knowledge of the possibilities of progress in this field; maintains a library and documentation centre. Members in 19 countries.

Gen. Sec. Prof. J. A. BAUMANN (Switzerland). Publ. Anthropologie différentielle et sciences des types constitutionnels humains (irregular).

International Bureau of Weights and Measures (Bureau International des Poids et Mesures): Pavillon de Breteuil, 92310 Sèvres, France; f. 1875. Objects: International unification of physical measures; establishment of fundamental standards and of scales of the principal physical dimensions; preservation of the international prototypes; determination of national standards; precision measurements in Physics. 45 member states.

Pres. J. V. DUNWORTH (U.K.); Sec. J. DE BOER (Netherlands); Dir. JEAN TERRIEN (France). Publs. Procès-Verbaux (annually), Proceedings of the seven Comités Consultatifs (every few years for each committee), Comptes Rendus de la Conférence Générale (every 6 years or less), Recueil de Travaux.

International Cartographic Association (Association Cartographique Internationale): Flottbrovägen 16, S-112 64 Stockholm, Sweden; f. 1959. Aims: the advancement, instigation and co-ordination of cartographic research involving co-operation between different nations. Particularly concerned with furtherance of training in cartography, study of source material, compilation, graphic design, drawing, scribing and reproduction techniques of maps; organizes international conferences, symposia, meetings, exhibitions. Mems.: 54 nations.

Pres. (1976-80) Prof. Dr. F. J. ORMELING (Netherlands); Sec. Treas. OLOF HEDBOM (Sweden). Publs. International Cartographic Yearbook, IGU Bulletin (bi-annually), Multilingual Dictionary of Technical Terms in Cartography, ICA Bibliography 1957-72, Oceanographic Cartography.

International Commission for Bee Botany (Commission Internationale pour l'étude des relations entre les abeilles et les plantes): c/o J. LOUVEAUX, F 91440 Bures-sur-Yvette, France; f. 1951 to promote research and its application in the field of bee botany, and collect and spread information; to organize meetings, etc., and collaborate with scientific organizations. Mems.: 175 in 34 countries.

Pres. J. LOUVEAUX; Sec. J. N. TASEI.

International Commission for Physics Education: f. 1960 to encourage and develop international collaboration in the improvement and extension of the methods and scope of physics education at all levels; collaborates with UNESCO and organizes international conferences. Mems.: appointed triennially by the International Union of Pure and Applied Physics.

Chair. Prof. A. P. FRENCH, Dept. of Physics, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass., U.S.A.; Sec. J. L. LEWIS, Malvern College, Malvern, Worcestershire, England.

International Commission for the Scientific Exploration of the Mediterranean Sea (Commission Internationale pour l'Exploration Scientifique de la mer Méditerranée—CIESM): Secrétariat Général, 16 blvd. de Suisse, Monaco; f. 1919 for scientific exploration of the Mediterranean Sea; includes 12 scientific committees; 1,200 scientists, 17 member countries.

Pres. S.A.S. The Prince RAINIER III of MONACO; Sec.-Gen. Cdt. J. Y. COUSTEAU (France). Publs. Rapports et Procès-Verbaux des réunions de la CIESM, Liaison des Laboratoires (annual).

view to rendering navigation easier and safer on all the seas of the world; to endeavour to obtain as far as possible uniformity in charts and hydrographic documents; to encourage the adoption of the best methods of conducting hydrographic surveys and improvements in the theory and practice of the science of hydrography; and to encourage surveying in those parts of the world where accurate charts are lacking; to extend and facilitate the application of oceanographic knowledge for the benefit of navigators and specialists in marine sciences; to render advice and assistance to developing countries upon request, facilitating their application for financial aid from the UNDP for creation or extension of their hydrographic capabilities; to fulfil the role of world data centre for bathymetry. Next Conference: 1982. 47 Member States.

Directing Committee: Pres. Rear Adml. G. S. RITCHIE, C.B., D.S.C., F.R.I.C.S. (U.K.); Dirs. Rear-Adml. D. C. KAPOOR, A.V.S.M. (India), Capt. J. E. AYRES (U.S.A.). Publs. International Hydrographic Review (twice yearly), International Hydrographic Bulletin (monthly), IHO Yearbook, Reports of Proceedings of I.H. Conferences, Repertory of Technical Resolutions, special publications on various technical subjects, all in English and French, General Bathymetric Chart of the Oceans (in 24 sheets).

International Institute of Refrigeration (Institut International du Froid): 177 blvd. Malesherbes, 75017 Paris, France; f. 1920 to further the development of the science and practice of refrigeration on a world-wide scale; to investigate, discuss and recommend any aspects leading to improvements in the field of refrigeration. Mems.: 53 countries and 950 associates.

Dir. M. ANQUEZ (France). Publs. Bulletin (bi-monthly), Proceedings of Meetings, International Codes and Recommendations, etc.

International Institute of Theoretical Sciences (Institut international des sciences théoriques): 221 avenue de Tervueren, Brussels, Belgium; f. 1944.

Dir. S. I. DOCKX. Publ. Archives (irregular).

International Mineralogical Association: f. 1958 to further international co-operation in the science of mineralogy. Mems.: national societies in Australia, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt, Finland, France, German Democratic Republic, Federal Republic of Germany, Hungary, India, Italy, Japan, Malaysia, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Portugal, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, U.S.A.

Pres. V. S. SOBOLEV (U.S.S.R.).

International Organisation of Legal Metrology (Organisation internationale de métrologie légale): 11 rue Turgot, Paris 9e, France; f. 1955 to serve as documentation and information centre on the verification, checking, construction and use of measuring instruments, to determine characteristics and standards to which measuring instruments must conform for their use to be recommended internationally, and to determine the general principles of legal metrology. Mems.: governments of 43 countries.

Pres. M. A. J. VAN MALE (Netherlands); Dir. B. ATHANÉ (France). Publ. Bulletin (quarterly).

International Ornithological Congress: c/o Zoologischer Garten, Hardenbergplatz 8, 30 Berlin, Federal Republic of Germany; f. 1884; congress of professional and amateur biologists studying birds. 600-800 members from over 50 countries.

Pres. Prof. D. S. FARNER; Sec.-Gen. R. NOHRING.

International Palaeontological Association (Association internationale de Paléontologie): Geological Institute, University of Göttingen, Göttingen, Federal Republic of Germany; f. 1933; affiliated to the International Union of Geological Sciences and the International Union of Biological Sciences.

Pres. Prof. C. TEICHAERT (U.S.A.); Sec.-Gen. Prof. O. WALLISER (Federal Republic of Germany).

International Phonetic Association—IPA (Association phonétique internationale): University College, Gower St., London, WC1E 6BT, England; f. 1886 to promote the scientific study of phonetics and its applications. Mems.: 750.

Pres. (vacant); Sec. J. C. WELLS (U.K.). Publ. Journal (twice yearly).

International Psychological Society: c/o California Academy of Sciences, Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, Calif. 94118, U.S.A.; f. 1961 to promote the study of seaweeds, the distribution of information and international co-operation in the field. Mems.: about 850.

Sec. SYLVIA A. EARLE (U.S.A.). Publ. Phycologia (quarterly).

International Polar Motion Service (Service international mouvement polaire): International Latitude Observatory of Mizusawa, Iwate-ken, Japan; f. 1962 to replace the International Latitude Service (f. 1899). Object: to make observations in latitude and time stations all over the world for the study of all problems relating to the polar motion; central bureau of the service collects astronomical observations, determines polar motion and distributes the data and results.

Dir. Dr. S. YUMI. Publs. Monthly Notes, Annual Reports.

International Primatological Society: c/o Dept. of Psychology, Brown University, Providence, R.I. 02912, U.S.A.; f. 1964 to promote primatological science in all fields; Mems.: about 750.

Pres. Dr. HANS KUMMER (Switzerland); Sec.-Gen. Dr. G. H. BOURNE (U.S.A.).

International Radiation Protection Association—IRPA: f. September, 1966, to unite in an international scientific society, individuals and societies throughout the world concerned with protection against ionizing radiations and allied effects, and to be representative of doctors, health physicists, radiological protection officers and others engaged in radiological protection, radiation safety, nuclear safety, legal, medical and veterinary aspects and in radiation research and other allied activities. Mems.: approx. 6,400 individual founding members and associates from 23 associate societies.

Pres. Dr. CARLO POLVANI (Italy); Exec. Officer Dr. JOHN R. HORAN, P.O.B. 2611, Idaho Falls, Idaho 83401, U.S.A.

International Scientific Film Association—ISFA (Association internationale du cinéma scientifique—AICS): 38 ave. des Ternes, Paris 17e, France; f. 1946. Aims: to raise the standard of the scientific film and related material throughout the world in order to achieve the widest possible understanding and appreciation of scientific method and outlook; to promote understanding and co-operation between members; to facilitate the exchange of films and information. Mems.: organizations representing 25 countries.

Pres. RANDALL M. WHALEY (U.S.A.); Vice-Pres. HANS-KARL GALLE (Federal Republic of Germany), ION BOSTAN (Romania), SOZO OKADA (Japan), ALEXANDER ZGURIDI (U.S.S.R.); Gen.-Sec. VIRGILIO TOSI (Italy); Exec. Sec. SUZANNE DUVAL; Publs. Science Film (quarterly), Research (two a year).

International Scientific Film Library (Cinématique Scientifique Internationale): 31 rue Vautier, B-1040 Brussels, Belgium; f. 1961; created under the patronage of the International Scientific Film Association and the Belgian Ministry of National Education and Culture; to preserve the most outstanding scientific and technical films and also to promote the knowledge, study, widest possible dissemination and the rationalization of the production of scientific films. Mems.: 49.

Pres. Prof. JAN JACOBY (Poland); Dir.-Curator P. BORMANS (Belgium). Pubs. Catalogue of Films Deposited, The Pioneers of the Scientific Cinema (series).

International Society for General Semantics: 509 Sansome St., San Francisco, Calif. 94111, U.S.A.; f. 1942 to advance knowledge and inquiry into non-Aristotelian systems and general semantics. Mems.: 2,500 individuals in 28 countries.

Pres. STANLEY DIAMOND (U.S.A.); Exec. Sec. RUSSELL JOYNER (U.S.A.).

International Society for Human and Animal Mycology (ISHAM) (Société Internationale de Mycologie Humaine et Animale): Gellerstrasse 11a, CH-4052 Basel, Switzerland; f. 1954; to pursue the study of fungi pathogenic for man and animals. Mems. 800 from 68 countries.

Pres. Dr. J. C. GENTLES (U.K.); Sec.-Gen. Dr. W. LOEFFLER (Switzerland). Pubs. Sabouraudia (1 vol. of 3 parts per year), Newsletter.

ALBANIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The People's Socialist Republic of Albania is bordered by Yugoslavia to the north and east, Greece to the south and the Adriatic and Ionian Seas to the west. The climate is Mediterranean throughout most of the country. The sea plays a moderating role, although frequent cyclones in the winter months make the weather unstable. The average temperature is 14°C in the north-east and 18°C in the south-west. The language is Albanian, the principal dialects being Gheg (north of the Shkumbini river) and Tosk (in the south). The literary language is being formed on the basis of a strong fusion of the two dialects with the phonetic and morphological structure of Tosk prevailing. The State recognizes no religion and supports atheist propaganda. All religious institutions have been closed. Before 1946 Islam had been the predominant faith, with very small numbers of Catholics in the north and Greek Orthodox in the south. The flag (proportions 7 by 5) is red, with a two-headed black eagle, above which is a gold-edged, five-pointed red star. The capital is Tiranë (Tirana).

Recent History

After more than 400 years of Turkish rule, Albania declared its independence in 1912. The country was occupied by Italy in April 1939, after which Albania was united with the Italian crown for four years. Italy's involvement in the Second World War ended in 1943, when Albania was occupied by German forces. The Germans withdrew after a year and a provisional government was established in October 1944.

The Communist-led National Liberation Front (NLF), established with help from Yugoslav Communists in 1941, was the most successful wartime resistance group and took power in November 1944. Elections held in 1945 were based on a single list of candidates, sponsored by the Communists. Government came under the control of Enver Hoxha, head of the Albanian Communist Party (now the Party of Labour) since 1943. The People's Republic of Albania was proclaimed in January 1946.

The NLF regime had close links with Yugoslavia, including a monetary and customs union, until the Stalin-Tito break in 1948. Albania's leaders, fearing Yugoslav expansionism, quickly turned against their former mentors. Albania became a Soviet satellite until Stalin's death in 1953.

Hoxha resigned as Head of Government in 1954 but retained effective national leadership as First Secretary of the Party of Labour. Albania joined the Warsaw Pact in 1955 but relations with the U.S.S.R. soon cooled when the Soviet leaders who succeeded Stalin attempted a rapprochement with Yugoslavia. Soviet-Albanian relations worsened in 1955-60 and Albania's leaders supported Peking in the Sino-Soviet ideological dispute. Soviet leaders denounced Albania and broke off relations in 1961. Albania turned increasingly to China for support, ended participation in COMECON in 1962 and withdrew from the Warsaw Pact in 1968.

By 1970, possibly fearing its extreme isolation, Albania relented enough to sign a trade agreement with "revisionist" Yugoslavia. Trade and diplomatic relations have also been established with other countries, including Greece.

In 1974 the Minister of Defence, a Vice-Premier and a long-standing member of the Party's Politburo, was dismissed for alleged pro-Soviet tendencies. The regime remains extremely hostile to both the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. A new constitution was adopted in December 1976, declaring Albania a People's Socialist Republic, and reaffirming its policy of self-reliance. Albania was not represented at the 1977 Belgrade Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe.

Although formal relations with China are maintained, Albania has indirectly criticized certain aspects of Chinese foreign policy. In 1977 Chinese technical advisers were reported to have been sent home, thus signalling the end of Albania's alliance with Peking.

From 1975 onwards, increasing economic difficulties led to political disputes. Hundreds of senior officials, including members of the Government, were dismissed. In 1976 the salaries of government officials, managers and intellectuals were reduced, and a series of decrees was adopted, including one requiring all officials to spend one month each year in production or farm work. In September 1977, as a result of the rift with Peking, thousands of pro-Chinese officials were believed to have been imprisoned.

Government

Nominally the supreme organ of government is the People's Assembly, a single-chamber legislature of 250 deputies. In practice the Assembly meets for only a few days each year to ratify actions taken in its name by the Presidium of the Assembly, whose President is Head of State. Executive authority is held by the Council of Ministers, whose Chairman is Head of Government. The Council is elected by the People's Assembly.

Real power is held by leaders of the (Communist) Albanian Party of Labour or Workers' Party, the only political party in the country. The Party has a political monopoly; it controls the entire functioning of government and all the country's leaders are members. The Party Congress, convened every five years, elects the Central Committee, which in turn elects the Political Bureau (Politburo). Party leadership is still in the hands of war-time resistance activists.

Elections to the People's Assembly, held every four years, are based on a single list of candidates standing for the Communist-led Democratic Front. Official declarations have given the Front list virtually 100 per cent of the votes.

For local government Albania is divided into 26 districts, each under a People's Council elected every three years.

Defence

Defence in Albania is conducted under the auspices of the People's Army which was founded in 1943. Military service lasts for two years in the Army, and three years in the Air Force, Navy and paramilitary units. According to western estimates, the total strength of the armed forces was 45,000 in 1977, comprising Army 34,000, Air Force 8,000 and Navy 3,000. The internal security forces number 5,000 and the frontier force 8,000. Defence expenditure in 1977 was estimated at 805 million lekë.

Economic Affairs

Before liberation in 1944 Albania was an extremely backward country. Its semi-feudal social system was dominated by Italy to the extent that the economy was half-feudal, half-colonial. Before liberation 80 per cent of the population was illiterate, and 87 per cent of the people worked in agriculture. By 1965 Albania had been turned into a socialist agrarian-industrial country. The Albanian economy operates on the principles of the public ownership of the means of production, planned management of the national economy and a certain level of financial autonomy for enterprises. Long-term planning began in 1951. The fifth Five-Year Plan (1971-75) aimed to develop production through extensive capital investments and large industrial building projects. During this period industrial production increased by 52 per cent and agricultural production by 33 per cent, but this fell short of proposed targets. The sixth Five-Year Plan (1976-80) envisages a growth in the national income of about 40 per cent. Industrial output is expected to increase by 41-44 per cent, and agricultural production by 37-40 per cent.

Industry now utilizes natural resources, and Albania refines its own oil. Albania is the world's fourth largest producer of chromium ore, production being estimated at 900,000 tons in 1975. Other important items in production include copper, nickel, coal, agricultural raw materials, machinery and equipment, chemical materials, fertilizers, building materials and textiles. An iron and steel plant opened at Elbasan in 1976. Industrial products account for about 80 per cent of Albania's exports. In 1970 industry accounted for 66.8 per cent of total production. Agricultural production has increased threefold since before the Second World War, and the area of cultivable land has doubled. During the post-war years there has been an extensive socialist transformation of the countryside: land reclamation, mechanization and complete collectivization of agriculture, utilization of chemicals, etc. Albania's principal exports include chrome and ferro-nickel ore, copper wire, bitumen, tobacco and cigarettes, timber and furniture, textiles, craftwork, canned foods, wine and other beverages, fruit and vegetables, etc.

Albania's breach with the Soviet Union in the years 1960-61 damaged the economy. About half of Albania's foreign trade is with China. A joint Sino-Albanian shipping company was formed and in 1965 an agreement was signed which, with subsequent trade protocols, provided Albania with financial, technical and material aid. This helped achieve the complete electrification of the country by 1970. In 1969 a special protocol was signed in Peking which allowed for Chinese participation in many new Albanian export industries. In 1970 Albania signed a long-term trade and economic agreement with China, in accordance with which China granted long-term interest-free loans. However, relations deteriorated upon the death of Mao Tse-tung, and in 1977 all Chinese aid was withdrawn.

Some 95 per cent of Albania's foreign trade is with the socialist countries, although trade with non-communist countries is growing annually. Total Albanian exports were estimated at U.S. $65.7 million in 1974, and imports at U.S. $98.6 million.

Transport and Communications

There are over 300 km. of railway track, all of it built since 1944. Rail transport accounts for 30 per cent of all land transport and 6,354,000 passengers travelled by rail in 1971. Roads now link the remotest regions of the country although smaller roads, particularly in the highlands, are mostly unsuitable for motor transport. There is a marked absence of private automobiles in Albania, and bicycles and mules are widely used. Albania has a developing merchant fleet. Ships use the main ports of Durrës, Vlorë and Sarandë. There is an airport at Rinas for international flights, and in 1977 Albania concluded an air agreement with Greece, thus opening its first air link with the West. There is no internal air service.

Social Welfare

In Albania all medical services are free of charge. There are now hospitals, clinics and maternity homes throughout the country which provide free treatment for the entire population. In 1976 there was one doctor for every 780 persons. The 1969 health budget amounted to 238,542,000 lekë, 5.3 per cent of the state budget, while in 1971 socio-cultural expenditure accounted for 25.8 per cent of the budget. Kindergartens and nursery schools receive subsidies of 68 and 66 per cent respectively. There is a non-contributory state social insurance system for all workers, and a pension system for the old and disabled. Income tax has been abolished, government expenditure being met by surpluses earned by state enterprises. A state social insurance law came into force in 1967, which provides many social benefits for the population, in addition to free medical attention.

Education

By 1956, illiteracy had been eradicated among persons under 40 years of age. About 20 per cent of children in the age group of three to six years attend nursery school (kopshte); children between the ages of seven and fifteen years attend an "eighth-grade school" which is compulsory. Secondary schools in Albania may be divided into three main categories, namely twelve-year schools (shkollat 12-vjeçare) giving four-year courses which complete the education of the eighth-grade school, secondary technical-professional schools (shkollat e mesme tekniko-profesionale) which combine vocational training with a general education, and lower vocational schools (shkollat e ulte profesionale) which train workers in the fields of agriculture and industry. The school-year in secondary schools lasts six and a half months. By a decree of 1976, all secondary-school graduates are required to spend a year working in factories or on collective farms before they can continue their education or seek other employment.

In the 1972-73 school year there were 699,000 students enrolled at eighth-grade, secondary and high schools. Approximately one in every three persons is undergoing education. In the same year 30,200 students were enrolled at higher education institutes in Albania; the State University of Tirana had 8,283 full-time and 7,800 night and correspondence students, with another 2,384 registered at its branches throughout the country. The university has 7 faculties, 5 scientific research institutes, and several annexes in the regions. Students at higher education institutes spend seven months of every year at the institute, two months in production work, one month in physical culture and military training, and two months on vacation. In 1976 plans for an extensive revision of the educational system were proposed.

Tourism

All aspects of tourism in Albania are handled by Albturist, the official state tourist department. The development of tourism began in 1956 but has been seriously encouraged by the state only since about 1968. There are about 10,000 foreign visitors to Albania each year. There are few recognized resorts apart from Durrës, although great potential exists in the beauty spots on the coast and in the scenery of the interior. Visas are essential for foreign visitors. A very favourable exchange rate of about 17 lekë to £1 sterling was in operation for tourists in 1977.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Adopted December 27th, 1976)

Summary

THE SOCIAL ORDER THE POLITICAL ORDER

Articles 1-15

Albania is a People's Socialist Republic, based on the dictatorship of the proletariat. The Albanian Party of Labour (Workers' Party) is the sole leading political force of the State and society. Marxism-Leninism is the ruling ideology.

The representative bodies are the People's Assembly and the People's Councils, elected by the people through universal suffrage by equal, direct and secret ballot. Officials serve the people and render account to them. They also participate directly in production work, in order to prevent the creation of a privileged stratum.

In the construction of socialism, Albania relies primarily on its own efforts.

THE ECONOMIC ORDER

Articles 16-31

The economy is a socialist economy, which relies on the socialist ownership of the means of production. Socialist property is inviolable and state property belongs to all the people. The State works to narrow the differences between the countryside and the cities. The personal property of the citizens is recognized and protected by the State.

Foreign trade is a state monopoly.

The granting of concessions to, and the creation of foreign or joint economic or financial institutions with, capitalist, bourgeois and revisionist monopolies and States, as well as the acceptance of credits from them, is prohibited.

Citizens pay no levies or taxes whatsoever.

EDUCATION, SCIENCE AND CULTURE

Articles 32-37

The State carries out broad ideological and cultural activity for the communist education of the working people. Education is organized by the State and is free of charge.

The State organizes the development of science and technology.

The State recognizes no religion and supports and carries out atheist propaganda.

THE FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF CITIZENS

Articles 38-65

The rights and duties of citizens are founded on the reconciliation of the interests of the individual with those of the socialist society.

All citizens are equal before the law. Women enjoy the same rights as men.

Citizens reaching the age of 18 have the right to take part in voting for, and to be elected to, all organs of state power.

Citizens enjoy the right to work and to recreation. Workers are guaranteed the necessary material means for life in old age and sickness.

Marriage and the family are under the care and protection of the State and society. Marriage is contracted before the competent state organs.

Citizens enjoy freedom of speech.

The creation of all organizations of a fascist, anti-democratic, religious or anti-socialist nature is prohibited.

SUPREME BODIES OF STATE POWER

THE PEOPLE'S ASSEMBLY

Articles 66-74

The People's Assembly is the supreme body of state power and sole law-making body. It defines the main directions of the domestic and foreign policy of the State. It elects, appoints and dismisses the Presidium of the People's Assembly, the Council of Ministers, the Supreme Court, the Attorney-General and his deputies.

The People's Assembly is composed of 250 deputies, elected for a period of four years, and meets in regular session twice a year.

THE PRESIDIUM OF THE PEOPLE'S ASSEMBLY

Articles 75-79

The Presidium of the People's Assembly is the supreme body of state power, with permanent activity, and is composed of a President, three Vice-Presidents, a Secretary and 10 members. It convenes the sessions of the People's Assembly and, between sessions, supervises the implementation of the laws and decisions of the People's Assembly, and controls all state organs.

The Presidium directs and controls the activity of the People's Councils.

THE SUPREME ORGANS OF STATE ADMINISTRATION

Articles 80-86

The Council of Ministers is the supreme executive and order-issuing body, and is composed of the Chairman, Vice-Chairmen and ministers. It directs activity for the realization of the domestic and foreign policies of the State. It directs and controls the activity of the ministries, other central organs of the state administration and the executive committees of the People's Councils.

The Chairman and Vice-Chairmen of the Council of Ministers constitute the Presidium of the Council of Ministers.

THE COUNTRY'S DEFENCE AND THE ARMED FORCES

Articles 87-91

The State protects the victories of the people's revolution and of socialist construction, and defends the freedom, national independence and territorial integrity of the country.

The armed forces are led by the Albanian Workers' Party. The First Secretary of the Central Committee of the

ALBANIA

Albanian Workers' Party is the Supreme Commander of the armed forces and Chairman of the Defence Council. The stationing of foreign bases and military forces in Albania is not permitted.

LOCAL ORGANS OF STATE POWER AND STATE ADMINISTRATION

Articles 92-100

The People's Councils are organs of state power, which carry out the administration in the respective administrative-territorial units with the broad participation of the working masses. The People's Councils are elected for a term of three years.

A Higher People's Council may dissolve a lower People's Council. Executive committees are an executive and order-issuing organ of the People's Councils.

THE PEOPLE'S COURTS

Articles 101-103

The People's Courts are bodies which administer justice. At the head of the organs of justice stands the Supreme Court, which directs and controls the activity of the courts. The Supreme Court is elected at the first session of the People's Assembly. The other People's Courts are elected by the people.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Justice is administered under the Constitution by the Supreme Court, and by District, Village, County and Township Courts created by a special law in October 1968 as links of the judicial system which functions within the ranks of the people. Military Tribunals are held at the Supreme and District Courts. Courts of Justice are independent in the exercise of their functions, and are separated from the administration.

Until March 1966 the judicial system was supervised by a Minister of Justice and his officials. This department now no longer exists and its principal responsibilities are discharged by the Supreme Court. The current Penal Code came into force in September 1952, while the Civil Code has gradually been adopted since 1954. Trials are normally held in public. The accused is assured the right of defence, and the principle of presumption of innocence is sanctioned by Article 13 of the Code of Penal Procedure. The Supreme Court and the District Courts are made up of a professional judge and two Assistant Judges, who are workers elected in the same way as the judges. Trials in the Village, County and Township Courts are held before an Assistant Judge from the District Court and two social activists. Second-degree cases are held in the Supreme Court before three judges, and in the District Courts before Assistant Judges. The verdicts of the lower courts may be altered, within the law, by the higher courts, and judges may be recalled before the expiration of their term by their electors or the organ which has elected them.

The Supreme Court is elected for a four-year term by the People's Assembly; between sessions of the Assembly, individual members of the Court are elected by the Presidium of the People's Assembly. The District Courts are elected for a three-year term by a secret ballot of all voting citizens.

President of the Supreme Court: ARANIT ÇELA.

The Attorney-General and his deputies are appointed by the People's Assembly.

Attorney-General: RRAPO MINO.

RELIGION

There is no formal practice of the previously predominant Muslim religion although certain social traditions persist. All religious institutions were closed by the government in 1967. Article 37 of the 1976 constitution states that Albania recognizes no religion and supports and carries out atheist propaganda. All of the old mosques have now been shut down and are preserved as centres of cultural interest. Formerly the population was approximately 70 per cent Muslim, 15 per cent Roman Catholic (in the north) and 15 per cent Greek Orthodox (in the south).

THE PRESS

The Albanian Press recognizes itself as a powerful medium of educational and organizational propaganda with a profound Marxist-Leninist ideological content, playing an important role in the Communist moulding of the people and in mobilizing them for the building of socialism and the defence of the country. It expresses Party doctrine probably more forcefully than any other European Communist press. A policy of decentralization is suggested by the development in recent years of numerous local newspapers, generally the organs of the regional Party committees.

In 1976 there were 25 newspapers, with a total circulation of 47 million copies. The most important publications are the Communist Party daily, Zëri i Popullit (average circulation 105,000), and Bashkimi (average circulation 30,000), the organ of the Democratic Front.

The Albanian news agency, ATA, has a monopoly of news distribution in Albania.

TRADE UNIONS

The Albanian Trade Unions were established on February 11th, 1945. Their principal function is to mobilize the working class to carry out the task of socialist construction. The leading principle of the organization is democratic centralism. The Trade Unions are organized by industries on a regional basis. The supreme organ of the Unions is the Congress which is usually convened every five years. The Congress elects the Central Council of the Albanian Trade Unions and the Auditors. The Central Council elects the presidency, secretariat, President and Secretary General. In every work and production centre there is a trade union grass-root organization which elects the trade union committee, while in each ward and district there is a ward committee and a district council. Voluntarism is a fundamental principle of the Albanian Trade Unions. There are only a small number of full-time officials, compared with more than 50,000 elected activists.

ANDORRA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Valleys of Andorra form an autonomous principality in the eastern Pyrenees, bounded by France and Spain, and lying about half way between Barcelona and Toulouse. The climate is alpine with much snow in winter and a warm summer. The official language is Catalan. The majority of the population is Roman Catholic. The flag (proportions 3 by 2) has equal vertical stripes of blue, yellow and red, with the state coat of arms in the centre of the yellow stripe. The capital is Andorra la Vella.

Recent History

As there is no clear line drawn between the competence of the General Council of Andorra and the co-princes who rule the country, the Andorrans have met with many difficulties in recent years in their struggle to gain international status for their country and control over its essential services. In the 1971 elections to the General Council there were three new categories of voters: women, who had been officially enfranchised in 1970; persons between the ages of 21 and 25; and second-generation Andorrans including sons of Andorran mothers. These new voters trebled the electorate and included certain French and Spanish immigrants, giving them the vote for the first time.

Since the 1975 election, the members of the General Council have adopted a more positive attitude towards the change in the political climate and institutions. The Council threatened to resign in 1976 if the co-princes would not agree to a meeting between their delegates and the Council to discuss the economic problems of Andorra. In April 1977, certain of the councillors refused to continue to attend meetings of the General Council, making the body inquorate and hence unable to function. The country has operated without a budget since 1976.

Although political parties and trade unions are banned, the formation of the Association démocratique andorrane was announced in 1976.

Government

Andorra has no proper constitution, and its peculiar autonomy is a legacy of feudal conditions; the country, although administratively independent, has no clear international status. Andorra is a co-principality, under the suzerainty of the President of France and the Spanish Bishop of Urgel. The valleys pay a nominal bi-annual tax, the questia, to France and to the Bishop of Urgel. France is represented in Andorra by the Viguier de France, and the Bishop by the Viguier Episcopal. Each co-ruler has set up a permanent delegation for Andorran Affairs. The Prefect of the East Pyrenees is the Permanent Delegate of the French Co-Prince.

The General Council of the Valleys submits motions and proposals to the permanent delegation. The 24 members (four from each of the six parishes) are elected for four years, half the Council being renewed every two years. The Council nominates the First Syndic (Syndic Procureur Général) and the Second Syndic, who cease to be members of the Council on their election. Proposals have been made for a reform of the electoral system, including the direct election of syndics, the use of referenda to decide major issues and a fairer representation of the capital on the General Council.

Economic Affairs

Andorra's products are mainly agricultural, cereals, potatoes and tobacco being the principal crops. Livestock is raised and there are approximately 12,000 sheep, 3,600 cattle and 180 horses. Iron, lead, alum, stone and timber are produced. Andorra la Vella is a great market for all European goods owing to favourable excise conditions; many foreigners trade in the principality. Smuggling has reputedly flourished in the past, and customs controls at the border are stringent.

French and Spanish currencies are in use. There is no income tax and property taxes are low. Ninety per cent of revenue comes from taxes on petrol and consumer goods. During 1976, Andorra's revenue of 454 million pesetas exceeded expenditure by nearly one million pesetas. However, since the end of 1976, when proposals to introduce direct taxation and increase indirect taxation were put forward, there has been no budget.

Tourism is an important source of revenue, both in winter and summer.

Education

Education is provided by both French and Spanish schools. In 1974 the General Council appointed two inspectors to organize the teaching of the Catalan language and Andorran culture in the schools.

Public Holidays

1978: March 19th (St. Joseph the Worker), March 24th (Good Friday), March 27th (Easter Monday), May 1st (Labour Day), May 4th (Ascension Day), May 15th (Pentecost), June 9th (Corpus Christi), June 24th (St. John the Baptist), June 29th (St. Peter and St. Paul), August 15th (Assumption), September 8th (National Holiday), November 1st (All Saints' Day), December 8th (Immaculate Conception), December 25th, 26th (Christmas).

AUSTRIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of Austria lies in Central Europe, between Switzerland, Liechtenstein, the Federal Republic of Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Italy. The climate varies sharply owing to great differences in elevation. The mean annual temperature lies between 7° and 9°C (45° and 48°F). The population is 99 per cent German-speaking, with small Croat and Slovene-speaking minorities. About 89 per cent are Roman Catholics and about 6 per cent are Protestants. The national flag (proportions 3 by 2) consists of three horizontal bands of red, white and red. The state flag has, in addition, the coat of arms in the centre. The capital is Vienna.

Recent History

Austria was annexed by Germany in 1938. After the Second World War the country was divided into four zones occupied by forces of the U.S.A., the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and France. In May 1955 the four powers signed a State Treaty with Austria ending the occupation and recognizing Austrian independence, effective from July. In October 1955 Parliament passed an act which declared Austria a permanently neutral state and in December 1955 Austria was admitted to UN membership.

A period of over twenty years of coalition government came to an end in April 1966 with the formation of a cabinet composed of the People's Party only. In the 1970 general elections for the Nationalrat (First Chamber) no party could achieve an absolute majority and, although a coalition government was expected, the Socialist Party, with three seats more than the People's Party, decided to take office, led by Dr. Bruno Kreisky as Federal Chancellor. The Socialists had already gained control of the Bundesrat (Second Chamber) in 1969. At another election in 1971 the Socialist Party achieved an absolute majority in the Nationalrat; this remained unchanged in the October 1975 general election. In 1973 elections in the provinces of Vienna and Upper Austria changed the parties' representation in the Bundesrat, each now having 29 seats.

Government

Austria is a federal republic divided into nine provinces, each of which has its own Provincial Assembly (Landtag). There is a bi-cameral parliamentary system. The first chamber, the Nationalrat (National Council), has 183 members elected for four years on a basis of proportional representation by universal adult suffrage. The second chamber, the Bundesrat (Federal Council), has 58 members elected for varying terms by the Provincial Assemblies. The Federal President, elected by popular vote for six years, is the Head of State. He normally acts on the advice of the Council of Ministers, led by the Federal Chancellor, which is responsible to the Nationalrat.

Defence

After the ratification of the State Treaty in 1955, Austria declared its permanent neutrality. To protect its independence, the armed forces were instituted. Military service is six months' initial training, followed by 60 days' reservist training for twelve years. Usually about 40,000 men are conscripted each year. In 1977 the total armed forces numbered 12,300 regulars and 25,000 conscripts (of which the army consisted of 10,000 regulars and 23,000 conscripts), and the air force of 2,300 regulars and 2,000 conscripts). Austrian air units are an integral part of the army. The 1977 defence budget totalled 9,051 million Schilling, about 3.76 per cent of the total Federal budget.

Economic Affairs

The Austrian economy depends on agriculture, tourism and the mining and manufacturing industries. Although the labour force in agriculture and forestry dropped from 17.3 per cent in 1971 to 12.6 per cent in 1975, due to trends towards mechanization and large holdings, domestic farm output in 1975 covered 84 per cent of the demand for food products against 75 per cent in 1965. The agricultural contribution to the Gross Domestic Product in 1975 and in 1976 was between 5 and 6 per cent.

Until 1976 invisible earnings from tourism offset about 80 per cent of Austria's trade deficit. However, the number of tourists has dropped in recent years due to the energy crisis and unfavourable foreign exchange rates. In the first seven months of 1977 earnings from tourism covered only 47.2 per cent of the trade deficit, compared with 59.2 per cent in the same period of 1976 and 90.2 per cent in 1975.

Austria has iron ore and oil deposits, lignite, magnesite, lead and some copper. Hydro-electric power resources are being developed and electricity is supplied to neighbouring countries. An 800 MW atomic power station, built at Zwentendorf on the Danube, is due to go into operation in 1978.

After the war about a quarter of Austrian industry was nationalized, including most of the heavy industry. The nationalized sector is responsible for 19 per cent of industrial output. Industrial relations are good, and the rate of unemployment in 1977 was below 2 per cent. Manufacturing industry provided 34 per cent of the Gross Domestic Product in 1976.

Austria's G.D.P. grew steadily from the 1960s, but dropped by 2 per cent in 1975. The Government reacted by pumping money into the economy; credit was eased, export aid given and taxes curbed, so that personal disposable incomes increased by 2.5 per cent. In 1976 G.D.P. grew by 5.2 per cent and the inflation rate was 7.3 per cent. A growth rate of between 3 and 4 per cent and inflation of about 6 per cent were expected for 1977.

The Government's commitment to a policy of full employment has given rise to large budgetary deficits. The 1977 deficit in the ordinary and extraordinary budgets was expected to total 43,500 million Schilling. The trade deficit in 1976 reached 54,100 million Schilling, a rise of 66 per cent over 1975. This was due to increased fuel imports and the import of luxury goods, encouraged by the rise in personal incomes. Imports of cars rose by 22 per cent in 1976 (Austria has only a very small motor industry) and accounted for 25 per cent of the trade deficit. The trade position worsened in 1977, and in October of that year economic growth of between 1.5 and 2.5 per cent was forecast for 1978.

The Government introduced measures to stabilize the economy. The bank rate was increased, and tax-deductible allowances for companies and self-employed professionals were cut. Government investment was to be cut by 10 per cent in 1978. From January 1978 V.A.T. was raised from 18 per cent to 30 per cent and accelerated depreciation allowances on cars were stopped. A transit tax on lorries using Austrian roads was introduced.

Austria became a member of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA) in 1960. After applications for a form of associate membership of the EEC which would not compromise its neutrality, two treaties were signed in 1972 providing for eventual free trade of industrial goods between EEC and EFTA members, and for some concessions on agricultural produce between Austria and the Community.

Transport

Austria has a highly developed system of public transport by road, rail, air and river. The Danube provides Austria with an artery particularly important for the transport of coal, steel, petroleum and other raw materials. A passenger service is maintained on the Upper Danube and between Vienna and the Black Sea. There are six commercial airports. Railways total about 5,900 kilometres, roads 103,000 kilometres, and commercial waterways 351 kilometres.

Social Welfare

The social insurance system covers all wage earners and salaried employees, agricultural and non-agricultural self-employed and dependants, regardless of nationality. The coverage is compulsory and provides earnings-related benefits in case of old-age, invalidity, death, sickness and maternity and work injury. About 95 per cent of the population are protected. There are separate programmes providing unemployment insurance, family allowance, benefits for war victims, etc.

Education

Since 1962 education has been free and compulsory between the ages of 6 and 15. The central controlling body is the Federal Ministry of Education and the Arts (Bundesministerium für Unterricht und Kunst), higher education and research coming under the competence of the Federal Ministry of Higher Education and Research (Bundesministerium für Wissenschaft und Forschung). Provincial boards (Landesschulräte) supervise school education in each of the nine federal provinces, and district school boards (Bezirksschulräte) in local regions.

Starting at the age of 6, all children undergo four years of education at a primary school (Volksschule). At the age of 10 they may transfer to secondary education, or continue until the age of 14 in an upper primary school (Hauptschule). The senior division of the primary school (Volksschuloberstufe) is limited to rural areas and is losing ground due to the extension of the Hauptschule and the (academic) general secondary schools (Allgemeinbildende höhere Schulen). In the ninth year of general compulsory schooling the polytechnic course (Polytechnischer Lehrgang) includes all pupils who do not attend a school leading to higher levels of education.

After completion of primary education about 22 per cent of the pupils (school year 1976/77) enter one of the two forms of (academic) general secondary education (Allgemeinbildende höhere Schulen) leading to higher education, i.e. the Gymnasium (generally arts biased) or the Realgymnasium (generally science and mathematics biased), in which they may study until the age of 18. Success in the Reifeprüfung ("Maturity examination") constitutes a qualification for university or comparable further education.

At the age of 14 there are numerous possibilities for transfer between those schools mentioned and various types of intermediate and (upper) secondary technical, vocational and otherwise specialized educational establishments, secondary technical, vocational and agricultural schools (Berufsbildende höhere Schulen), which also give access to higher education.

There are seventeen institutions of university standing in Austria.

Tourism

Austria's mountains, forests and valleys make it an ideal resort in both summer and winter. Celebrated beauty spots are the Salzkammergut Lake District, the Tyrol and Vorarlberg valleys and the Vienna woodlands. Vienna is a centre for music and art lovers and historians, with its opera houses and concert halls, art galleries and museums. In winter thousands of visitors go to Austrian skiing resorts. Festivals are held all over Austria in the summer. Internationally famous are the Vienna Festival and the Salzburg Music Festival.

Receipts from tourism totalled 51,124 million Schilling in 1976.

Visas are not required for nationals of the following countries: Andorra, Argentina, Australia, Barbados, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cyprus, Denmark, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Finland, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Gibraltar, Greece, Guatemala, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malta, Mexico, Monaco, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Paraguay, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Romania, San Marino, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, the United Kingdom, the U.S.A., Venezuela and Yugoslavia.

Sport

Skiing and football are the most popular sports.

Public Holidays

1978: March 27th (Easter Monday), May 1st (Labour Day), May 4th (Ascension Day), May 15th (Whit Monday), May 25th (Corpus Christi), August 15th (The Assumption), October 26th (National Day), November 1st (All Saints' Day), December 8th (Immaculate Conception), December 25th and 26th (Christmas).

1979: January 1st (New Year's Day), January 6th (Epiphany).

100 Groschen = 1 Schilling.

Coins: 2, 5, 10 and 50 Groschen; 5, 10, 25, 50, 100 and 1,000 Schilling.

Notes: 20, 50, 100, 500 and 1,000 Schilling.

Exchange rates (October 1977): £1 sterling = 28.65 Schilling; U.S. $1 = 16.11 Schilling.

100 Schilling = £3.49 = $6.21.

Note: From May 1953 to May 1971 the exchange rate (par value) was U.S. $1 = 26.00 Schilling. Between December 1971 and February 1973 the central rate was $1 = 23.30 Schilling. In terms of sterling, the exchange rate between November 1967 and May 1971 was £1 = 62.40 Schilling. Since March 1973 the Schilling has been allowed to "float". The average exchange rate (Schilling per U.S. dollar) was: 19.58 in 1973; 18.69 in 1974; 17.42 in 1975; 17.94 in 1976.

THE CONSTITUTION

Austria is a democratic republic, having a president (Bundespräsident), elected directly by the people, and a two-chamber government. The republic is organized on the federal system, comprising the provinces (Länder) of Burgenland, Carinthia, Lower Austria, Upper Austria, Salzburg, Styria, Tyrol, Vorarlberg and Vienna. There is universal suffrage for men and women over the age of 19.

The National Council (Nationalrat) consists of 183 members, elected by universal direct suffrage, according to a system of proportional representation. It functions for a period of four years.

The Federal Council (Bundesrat) represents the federal provinces. Vienna sends 12 members, Lower Austria 11, Styria 9, Upper Austria 9, Carinthia 4, Tyrol 4, and the other provinces 3 each, making 58 in all. The seats are divided between the parties according to the number of seats they hold in the provincial assemblies and are held during the life of the provincial government which they represent. Each province in turn provides the chairman for six months.

For certain matters of special importance the two chambers meet together; this is known as a Bundesversammlung.

The President is the head of the State, and he holds office for six years. His powers include appointing ambassadors, conferring honours, etc. Although he is invested with special emergency powers, he normally acts on the authority of the Government, and it is the Government which is responsible to the National Council for governmental policy.

The Government consists of the Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor and the other ministers, who may vary in number. The Chancellor is chosen by the President from the party with the strongest representation in the newly elected National Council, and the other ministers are then chosen by the President on the advice of the Chancellor.

All new acts must be read and put to the vote in both houses. A new bill goes first to the National Council, where it usually has three readings, and secondly to the Federal Council, where it can be held up, but not vetoed.

The Constitution also provides for appeals by the Government to the electorate on specific points by means of referendum. There is further provision that if 200,000 or more electors present a petition to the Government, the Government must lay it before the National Council.

AUSTRIA

The Constitution, The Government, President and Parliament

The Provincial Diet (Landtag) exercises the same functions in each province as the National Council does in the State. The members of the Landtag elect a government (Landesregierung) consisting of a provincial governor (Landeshauptmann) and his councillors (Landesräte). They are responsible to the Landtag.

The spheres of legal and administrative competence of both national and provincial governments are clearly defined. The Constitution distinguishes four groups:

1. Law-making and administration are the responsibility of the State: e.g. foreign affairs, justice and finance.

2. Law-making is the responsibility of the State, administration is the responsibility of the provinces: e.g. elections, population matters and road traffic.

3. The State lays down the rudiments of the law, the provinces make the law and administer it: e.g. charity, rights of agricultural workers, land reform.

4. Law-making and administration are the responsibility of the provinces in all matters not expressly assigned to the State: e.g. municipal affairs, building theatres and cinemas.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Austrian Legal System is based on the principle of a division between legislative, administrative and judicial power. There are three supreme courts (Verfassungsgerichtshof, Verwaltungsgerichtshof and Oberster Gerichtshof). The judicial courts are organized into 228 local courts (Bezirksgerichte), 20 provincial and district courts (Landes- und Kreisgerichte), and 4 higher provincial courts (Oberlandesgerichte) in Vienna, Graz, Innsbruck and Linz.

SUPREME ADMINISTRATIVE COURTS

Verfassungsgerichtshof (Constitutional Court): Vienna I, Judenplatz 11; f. 1919; deals with matters affecting the Constitution, examines the legality of legislation and administration; Pres. Univ. Prof. Dr. ERWIN MELICHAR; Vice-Pres. Prof. Dr. KURT RINGHOFER.

Verwaltungsgerichtshof (Administrative Court): Vienna I, Judenplatz 11; deals with matters affecting the legality of administration; Pres. Hon. Prof. Dr. EDWIN LOEBENSTEIN; Vice-Pres. Dr. BRUNO SCHIMETSCHKE.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT

Oberster Gerichtshof: Vienna I, Museumstrasse 12; Pres. Dr. FRANZ PALLIN; Vice-Pres. Dr. WOLFGANG LASSMANN and Dr. FRANZ SOBALK.

THE PRESS

Austria's Wiener Zeitung, founded in 1703, is the oldest daily paper published in the world, and Austria's press history dates back to 1605, when its first newspaper was published. The Press Law of 1922 states that "The freedom of the Press is assured and subject only to the limitations defined in this law".

Newspapers pay 8 per cent value added tax on copy sales price and 16 per cent on advertising revenue. Reform has been demanded in the Press Law with particular regard to right of reply. According to this section of law, any person or persons who feel themselves to have been subject to an incorrect statement in the Press can (and often do) demand to have a formal reply of equal volume and position published in the offending newspaper. This is regarded by the majority of the Press as an obstacle to its freedom. Other objections have been raised on such points as the lack of constitutional guarantees for freedom of opinion and circulation, and the compulsory supply of copy to the Ministry of the Interior. The Austrian Press is still subject to Nachzensur (after-censorship) and a paper's registered Verantwortlicher Redakteur (Responsible Editor) is penally liable for material printed which contravenes the law on such points as libel or "corruption of minors". For many years no "Responsible Editor" has been imprisoned, although fines have been imposed and issues confiscated. In practice there is complete freedom of opinion and circulation in the Austrian Press subject to the restrictions of the 1922 Press Law.

In 1961 the Austrian Press Council (Presserat) was founded. It consists of representatives of the publishers and journalists and its principal duties are to watch over the freedom of the Press and to ascertain grievances of the Press. The political parties each have at least one newspaper, and independent papers tend to follow a political line. Although there is a strong provincial Press in Graz, Linz, Salzburg and Innsbruck, the country's Press is centered in Vienna. The four highest circulation dailies are the Neue Kronen-Zeitung, the Kurier, the Kleine Zeitung (Graz) and the Arbeiter-Zeitung. Die Presse (independent), the Arbeiter-Zeitung (socialist) and the Salzburger Nachrichten (independent) are the country's most respected dailies.

NATIONALIZED INDUSTRIES

After the Second World War the National Council passed a law giving the state control in the sectors concerned with coal and ore mining, iron and non-ferrous metals, mineral oil production and processing, chemical production and machine engineering. Nationalized industries now employ about one-sixth of the total labour force and contribute one-fifth of the country's industrial production. To rationalize the administration of the State's interest in these 8 concerns and their subsidiaries, a Federal Law passed in January 1970 transferred the controlling interest to the Austrian Nationalized Industries Holding Company (ÖIAG).

Österreichische Industrie- und Verwaltungsgesellschaft (ÖIAG) (Austrian Nationalized Industries Holding Company): 1015 Vienna I, Kantgasse 1, Postfach 99; f. 1970 to form an effective co-ordination of the nationalized enterprises on the basis of economic management and to promote research activities in the subsidiary companies; Chair. INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Kingdom of Belgium lies in north-west Europe bounded to the north by the Netherlands, to the east by Luxembourg and Germany, to the south by France, and to the west by the North Sea. The climate is temperate. Dutch, spoken in the north (Flanders), and French, spoken in the south (Wallonia), are the two main official languages. The Law of August 1963 established four linguistic regions, the French, Dutch and German-speaking areas and Brussels, which is situated in the Flemish part but has bilingual status. Approximately 55 per cent of the population are Dutch-speaking, 44 per cent French-speaking and 0.6 per cent speak German. The population is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic. The national flag (proportions 15 by 13) carries three vertical stripes—black, yellow and red. The capital is Brussels.

Recent History

Since the Second World War, Belgium has emerged as one of the leaders of international co-operation in Europe. It is a founder member of many important international organizations, including the Council of Europe and the EEC.

The language dispute between the French-speaking Walloons and the Dutch-speaking Flemings has been the main problem in politics since the war. The problem has been exacerbated by political polarization of north and south, conservative Flanders being the traditional stronghold of the Christian Social Party (CSP) and the nationalist Volksunie, while the Socialists predominate in Wallonia. Until 1977 successive demands for regional autonomy resulted in only tentative legislative steps towards a federal Belgium. Gaston Eyskens' government produced moderate constitutional reforms in July 1971, introducing Cultural Councils with limited powers over each linguistic region. In 1972 the succeeding coalition of the Christian Social, Socialist and Liberal parties, under Edmond Leburton, made further concessions to regional interests, the German-speaking community being represented in the Cabinet for the first time, and in 1973 linguistic parity was assured in central government. Under Léo Tindemans' coalition between the CSP, the Liberals and the federalist Rassemblement Wallon, provisional legislation was passed in 1974 establishing separate Regional Councils and Ministerial Committees.

The prospect of federalist reforms had been expected to weaken the "linguistic" parties, the Volksunie, Rassemblement Wallon and Front Démocratique des Francophones (FDF), but in the local elections of October 1976 the FDF made spectacular gains in Brussels. On a national level, the Socialist challenge to the coalition failed to materialize, though the polarization between Social Christian Flanders and Socialist Wallonia was reinforced at the expense of the smaller parties, who conceded heavy losses to the Socialists.

In 1977 the problem of regionalization became more acute. The Tindemans coalition lost its majority when two Rassemblement Wallon Cabinet ministers were dismissed following an ultimatum over devolution issued by their party. Parliament was dissolved and general elections took place in April, resulting in substantial gains for the CSP and a record number of preferential votes for Léo Tindemans himself. After several delays, Léo Tindemans formed a coalition between the CSP, the Socialists, the FDF and the Volksunie. In June 1977 the coalition had 172 seats in the 212-seat Chamber of Representatives. The Cabinet proposed the abolition of the virtually defunct nine-province administration, and devolution of power from the central government to create a federal Belgium, comprising three political and economic regions (Flanders, Wallonia and Brussels) and two linguistic communities.

The cornerstone of the new devolution plans is the compromise over Brussels, where the national ratio of three Flemings to two francophones is reversed. The boundaries of the capital have been limited to its 19 boroughs in order to check the francophone spread, but the French-speaking inhabitants of the surrounding municipalities have the same rights as the Dutch-speaking minority in Brussels. The remaining regionalization plans entail wide constitutional reforms which could take several years to implement.

Government

Belgium is a constitutional and hereditary monarchy, comprising nine provinces. Legislative power is vested in the King and the bicameral Parliament (the Senate and the Chamber of Representatives). The Senate has 181 members, including 106 directly elected by universal adult suffrage, 50 elected by provincial councils and 25 co-opted by the elected members. The Chamber has 212 members, all directly elected by popular vote, using proportional representation. Members of both Houses serve for up to four years. Executive power, nominally vested in the King, is exercised by the Cabinet. The King appoints the Prime Minister and, on the latter's advice, other Ministers. The Cabinet is responsible to Parliament. There are political organs representing each of the three linguistic regions (see Recent History).

Defence

Belgium is a member of NATO. The total strength of the armed forces is 85,650 (of whom 26,850 are conscripts), comprising army 62,050, navy 4,200, air force 19,400. Defence expenditure for 1977 totalled 66,470 million Belgian francs. Military service lasts eight months for postings to Germany and ten months for conscripts serving in Belgium. An entirely professional force is planned for 1978.

Economic Affairs

Because of its geographical position, particularly in the European context, Belgium is well situated for international trade and is one of the most successful importers and exporters in the world, maintaining a large merchant fleet. Belgium's population represents 0.25 per cent of the world total, yet accounts for 3 per cent of total international trade, its rate of increase being an annual 10 per cent during the 1960's. Over two-thirds of Belgium's external trade is with the other members of the EEC, the latter taking over 70 per cent of its exports. Principal trade partners are the Federal Republic of Germany, the Netherlands, France and the U.S.A. Since 1921 Belgium and Luxembourg have formed an Economic Union, and in 1960 the Benelux Treaty, incorporating the Netherlands, came into force. The country is among the most densely populated in Europe and is mainly industrial. Industrial activity has concentrated in recent years in the increasingly populous Flemish areas of the North, but the government is encouraging re-investment in the southern, Walloon, region. Apart from coal, and to a lesser extent clay, sand and stone, the country has no natural resources and purchases essential raw materials abroad; thus the vital export trade is dependent largely on the state of the world market. About 50 per cent of Belgium's G.N.P. is exported, making it one of the world's principal per capita exporters. Major exports are iron and steel, chemicals, machinery and vehicles. Agriculture provides Belgium with about four-fifths of its food. The year 1970 saw the near completion of total economic union between the three Benelux countries. This established Benelux as a single customs area and also introduced co-ordination between the Prime Ministers on social affairs and industrial and transport policies. In March 1973 Belgium was one of the eight European countries which established a joint currency float (the "snake"), an arrangement by which the exchange rates between the national currencies in the group are maintained within agreed margins.

Following a rise of 6 per cent in G.N.P. in 1973, G.N.P. rose by only 4.5 per cent in 1974, the recession being aggravated by the oil crisis. During 1975 the recession reached its nadir, with falling production (August steel output at its lowest since 1954) and unemployment rising in September to 7 per cent of the total labour force, an increase of 78 per cent over September 1974. Government concern has focused on the rigid linkage of wages to the retail price index. Prices were frozen between May and December 1975 and in June 1976 the composition of the index was changed. Rents, professional fees and dividends were frozen until the end of 1976, and salaries over BF 40,250 per month are no longer index-linked.

Union opposition to alterations in the threshold levels postponed the passing of reflationary measures until March 1976, when the Belgian franc came under heavy pressure in foreign exchange markets. The National Bank's determination to support the currency forced the discount rate up to 9 per cent in August 1976 to discourage continuing speculation. This measure was justified in December 1976, when the inflation rate dropped to 7.5 per cent.

Although the world recession continued in 1976, the Belgian economy recovered slowly but positively. Gross National Product had dropped by 1.9 per cent in 1975, but in 1976 it rose by about 3 per cent. Although unemployment was still severe in 1977, reaching 6.4 per cent, production improved and there was a marked deceleration in wage and price increases. In April 1977 the Government's Egmont Plan introduced a series of V.A.T. increases aimed at reducing the 1977 budget deficit, estimated at 28,600 million francs, and a series of fiscal incentives aimed at promoting flagging capital investments in the private sector.

Transport and Communications

The Société Nationale des Chemins de Fer Belges maintains 3,998 km. of main line railway. On the roads, buses and trams (Société Nationale des Chemins de Fer Vicinaux) are much used. There are over 10,000 km. of state and provincial roads and over 48,000 km. of secondary and unclassified roads. The former include seven motorways with a total length of 1,060 km. There are 2.8 million motor vehicles. The navigable inland waterways cover over 1,700 km., and in 1976 handled an estimated 119 million metric tons of cargo. The modernized port of Antwerp, now the second biggest in Europe, handles a large tonnage of inland and ocean traffic and specializes in general cargo and containers. Belgium's merchant fleet comprised 91 ships, totalling 1,410,403 tons, in 1977. The main international airport is at Brussels. There are also international airports at Antwerp and Ostend.

Social Welfare

Social Welfare is administered by the National Office for Social Security. Contributions are paid by employers and employees towards family allowances, health insurance, unemployment and pensions. Most allowances and pensions are tied to the cost of living index. Workers and employees are entitled to 4 weeks holiday for every twelve month period of work. They are insured against accidents occurring on the work premises or on the way to and from work. Medical care is free to widows, pensioners, orphans and the disabled. Ordinary and supplementary family allowances are the entitlement of all employees.

Education

Education in Belgium is compulsory from 6 to 14 (soon 16). A characteristic of Belgian education is the co-existence of two separate education systems: the école officielle is a state secular school and the école libre is a private denominational school receiving state subsidies. Under the 1963 Language of Instruction Act teaching is given in the language of the region; in the Brussels district teaching is done in the mother language of the pupil.

There are state financed nursery schools for children of 3 to 6. Attendance is voluntary but 90 per cent of infants do attend.

Primary education is from 6-12; for children who do not continue with secondary education a two-year course attached to the primary school is provided, but this is now generally being replaced by the lower secondary school.

Secondary education lasts for a maximum of six years and is divided into three two-year cycles, only the first being compulsory at present. It offers four complementary forms of instruction: general education, technical training, arts education and teacher training. The Diploma of Secondary Education may be gained after an additional two years of higher teacher training.

University Education: University entrance requirements are a minimum pass mark at the end of the last year of secondary school plus a maturity examination. Courses are divided into a 2-3 year course of general preparation, known as degree candidature, followed by 2-3 years of specialization. There are five universities, two of which are divided into French and Dutch-speaking sections, and several university centres or faculties. There are also non-university institutions of higher education for those who
